Is Sport News Overdone?

Is sport news being overdone in the modern newspaper? That is a question that the opinion of newspaper men and people generally is divided upon. There is no doubt that certain features of sport are paid too much attention to in the press today. Take for example the thousands of columns that have been appearing both in American and Canadian newspapers, small and large, in regard to the forthcoming Carpentier-Dempsey boxing match. There is a great temptation for the ordinary newspaper man to feature the doings of these two men over much. Every day he is confronted with thousands of words from various sources on the event which is to take place next Saturday. It may surprise some people that even in the Daily News editorial rooms ninety per cent of the matter that is received about this fight finds its destination in the waste paper box. The great preponderance of press matter on sports that has reached newspaper offices in the past month is about this fight. The same percentage of matter that has to be rejected in regard to the Dempsey-Carpentier battle applies to other sporting events. If any reader of the daily newspapers does not think there is enough sport matter presented to him each day he should call around to see the sports editor. He would be supplied with enough to keep him reading all the time he has to spare and perhaps more.

Reflection of Spirit of Day.

The manner in which sport is being featured in all the up-to-date newspapers is noticeable to everybody. Some newspaper men claim that the sport section is the most widely read portion of a newspaper. It is so that a great many people will glance over the headlines and read haphazardly at other sections of a paper, but, turning to the sport page, will read with avidity every word that appears on it. Very few people who go to hear a great speaker deliver an oration will the next day read over the speech that they heard the night before. It is different with the description of a ball game or a boxing match or some other athletic event. The players and spectators as well as many others who did not attend will read carefully the written account of the event. The sporting section of a newspaper is the part of the paper that does not deal with serious events of the day but rather with recreation. As athletics are more and more being paid attention to as civilization advances, just so does that spirit reflect itself in the modern newspaper.

Care Should Be Exerted on Water.

The unusual number of marine accidents, fatal and otherwise, that have occurred around Prince Rupert recently impress on one the necessity for exerting a great deal of care on the water. Although the most of the accidents have been of a purely accidental nature and carelessness could not be very well implied, there cannot be too much caution. Especially does this apply in regard to gasoline boats where there is always carried more or less amounts of inflammable material. It is said that gasoline cannot be ignited except by an open light but the truth of this statement is sometimes doubted. Explosions are sometimes caused by very mysterious means. One thing is sure, however, there should be no matches lit around a gasoline engine. Neither should smoking be permitted in the vicinity of one. The exertion of a little common sense may avoid not only the loss of a careless person's life but may also mean death or injury to others. The person who lights matches or smokes near a gasoline engine shows besides carelessness, recklessness and thoughtlessness on his own part, a lack of consideration for the safety of those around him.

PEOPLE INTERESTED ABOUT KENNEL CLUB

Good Evening Show Could Easily Be Held in Prince Rupert.

The idea of establishing a Kennel Club in the city seems to be meeting with a good deal of favor. Quite a few people have shown their enthusiasm in the matter and there is no doubt that a small but interesting club could be started here. Twenty or thirty dogs would make a very good evening show and it is probable that if such an affair were announced there would also be entries from such points as Terrace, Anyox, Stewart and other places.

Any dog, with or without a pedigree, could be entered in such a show. There are many people in this town who have good animals but do not know it. The starting of a Kennel Club would give them an opportunity of finding out. It might be remembered that its costs no more to keep a good dog than it does to keep a poor one.

Children might also become interested in a Kennel Club or a Dog Show. Girls and boys would take more interest in a real living dog than they would in dolls or toys. The dog often proves an invaluable friend to the child and is a good protector and there are many stories told of how a dog has saved a child's life.

PULLEN STILL TELLS SOUTH ABOUT RUPERT

Gets Quite Enthusiastic Talking to Vancouver Sun.

Mr. H. F. Pullen, editor of Prince Rupert's daily paper, "The News," is a traveling bureau of publicity for the North, says The Vancouver Sun.

"No man can measure the possibilities of the rising metropolis of Prince Rupert," said Mr. Pullen in an interview in Vancouver last night.

"The sum of $5,500,000—that is the annual harvest of fish enjoyed by the city of Prince Rupert."

"That's cash, too—fish is cash," he said with enthusiasm. "All we need now are a hundred more refrigerator cars on the C.N.R. and then it will not be necessary for us to have Vancouver, Seattle or Ketchikan handle any portion of our big catch."

Beef is coming on the Prince Rupert market from the interior, continued Mr. Pullen. "Telukwa beef is the most tender and the most beautiful in the world. The big new ranching areas of the interior are turning out immense quantities of farm produce, dairy goods, beef and hogs. That's wealth, too, and Rupert is the clearing house for it."

"At the coast we will soon have a new paper industry and a new pay-roll there of 400 men."

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

Printers, 37; Royal Blue Ribbons, 36. By the above close margin the printers defeated their rivals in the indoor baseball match at the Auditorium last night. Black, of the Ink and Type boys, pitched his lads in the seventh inning where he wanted them. He wanted nine runs to win. With only one man out he got them, then the umpire said "certain." Fred Hennings was the umpire and did well. He was fair and square to both teams though the fans hurled many satirical epithets at him.

The Prince Rupert Amateur Dramatic Society was formed last night at a meeting which took place in the reading room of the Prince Rupert Inn, kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. G. A. Sweet. W. E. Williams made an excellent chairman. Mayor Manson was elected Hon. President; L. Bullock, Webster, president; W. E. Williams, vice-president; Miss Marion Johnston, secretary; treasurer Mrs. Roberson, Miss Milligan, Frank Ellis and Mr. Thompson, members of the executive committee. It was decided to begin rehearsals September 1, and put on a
