SANTA CLAUS AT ESSINGTON

Rev. Geo. G. Hacker Tells of Splendid Concert Wednesday Night.

Rev. George G. Hacker returned last night from Port Essington where he was chairman of the annual Christmas concert given by the children of Day School and the Sunday School of the Methodist Church. The entertainment took place in the church and there were about 200 persons in attendance. All were impressed by the pride which the white people evidenced in the achievements of their native neighbors. Speaking of the trip, Mr. Hacker said that he enjoyed every hour of it with the exception of the one spent crossing the Skeena in Wednesday's storm. Neither the rocky road to Dublin or Jonah's trip to Ninevah had anything on this, and even old timers admitted that it was a rough storm. However, the entertainment was a revelation to a newcomer to the North. Port Essington was the second mission station opened by the Methodist Church in the North, Port Simpson a one having been established before it.

Concert Program.

The children's program of the Port Essington concert consisted of drills, songs, motion songs and recitations and the children showed remarkable ability in all lines, excelling in vocal music. Miss Fanny Noble, the teacher of the native school, deserves great credit for the fine training of the children. Mrs. Pierce is superintendent of the Sunday School. The native children were certainly a hearty, healthy, well dressed and happy lot and would have done credit to any place.

Another feature of special merit was the singing of Christmas anthems and carols by the choral choir under the leadership of Arthur Stewart with Ernest Roberts as organist. The musical interpretation and arrangements of singers in small groups were unique features originating with the leader and showing true native characteristics.

Santa Claus There.

Santa Claus arrived a little late on account of a miniature prairie blizzard which was raging. He had gifts for all, however, when he did come.

The decorations were in charge of Mark Bolton, chief of the Indian council. They were very artistic indeed.

Rev. Mr. Pierce drew attention to the need of a gasoline lighting system for the large church and a fund was started for the purpose by donating the collection of $21, towards it.

General Superintendent Mehan has returned from a visit of inspection up the line and leaves today on another trip over the steel. He reports excellent progress with construction. Steel will be through the Kitselas tunnel in a day or two now. Mr. Mehan had no notification at all regarding the Skeena Crossing strike, which affects only Foley, Welch & Stewart men.

AT ROTARY LUNCHEON

J. G. Sale Tells of Conditions in England—Stuart Langill Sings.

The guests at the Rotary Club luncheon yesterday afternoon were J. G. Sale, of London, England, George Keith, of Terrace, Stuart Langill, Hon. A. M. Manson, and A. L. Carruthers, provincial government public works engineer.

Mr. Langill, accompanied by Charles Balagno, sang "Very Good Company," and responding to an encore rendered "Old Squire Rob."

Mr. Carruthers was the speaker of the day but Mr. Sale also addressed a few remarks to the members touching on conditions in the Old Country which he had left early in November. Conditions were not good and there was a great deal of unemployment. Some factories were closed down and some were operating at a loss. Conditions should improve before long, however. Three things were needed in England to revive trade—lower wages, lower prices and more work. Wholesale prices had dropped and retail prices would follow suit.

Coal Business.

When he left the Old Country the coal trade seemed to have gone to pot, but from recent observations he had made, it seemed that the output was again taking an upward stride. He had noticed that English coal had been shipped to Cuba, and also to America. He knew that the coal output in England was the same as a year ago although there were still some 3,000 unemployed miners, which went to show that the daily output per man was greater. The freight rates on coal in the Old Country were coming down, and with a drop in the price of coal to the manufacturer the whole cycle of prices would reach a pre-war level. The speaker said he did not expect to see any great boom for the returning to pre-war prices was going to be a hard and tedious job. In looking back, Mr. Sale blamed the politicians for not telling the people the truth about things after the Armistice. For five years they had not been producing and had been setting a bad example to the people at large by squandering money in various ways. He said that it was only by facing the truth and by hard work that any country can pull itself out of its difficulties.

ENRICHING HUMANITY BY PLEASING CHILDREN

Dunlop, the inventor of the pneumatic tire, got his idea while making a bicycle for his son.

Many other useful ideas have been evolved by parents while engaged in trying to entertain their children. Some of the world's greatest writers have won lasting fame by publishing stories originally written for the amusement of the nursery. Celebrated artists have discovered their talent in much the same manner.

Punishing children is a barren occupation but giving them pleasure has often enriched humanity.
