Leek Resigns from Police Force; New Lineup Is Decided

Warden Albert H. Bailey becomes senior sergeant next in command to Chief Vickers on the city police, Constable Hugh McGlinchy becomes sergeant and Special Constable George P. Logan is now a permanent constable, according to the decision of the police commission at its meeting last night. As a result of the recent shooting affair in the city jail the resignation of Constable Leek was received and accepted.

There was a large attendance at the meeting in the council chamber on account of the announcement that the commission would deliver its finding in the Leek affair. The resignation of Constable Leek was the first business dealt with. The officer in his resignation referred to the city jail as a "bull pen" and stated that being an officer for 27 years he had started that work before the main witness in the shooting case had been born. Through this experience he knew more about police work than some of the present officers would ever know.

The acceptance of his resignation was unanimous. Commissioner Myhill Jones and Macdonald being the mover and seconder respectively, the latter stating that he had intended moving for dismissal.

Logan Recommended

The application of Constable Logan was accompanied by a written testimonial from Chief Constable A. C. Minty, of the provincial police and the verbal recommendation at the meeting of Chief Vickers. Commissioner Macdonald moved the acceptance of his application with Commissioner Myhill Jones seconding.

The question of new appointments to the force was brought up by Commissioner Macdonald, moving that Warden Bailey be made senior sergeant in recognition of his ten years as sergeant and that Constable McGlinchy be made sergeant, he being the next man in line of seniority with four and a half years' efficient service to his credit. Senior Sergeant Bailey will receive same salary as at present and Sergeant McGlinchy will get a raise of $10 a month effective from April 1.

Visited Many Big Centres, Met Many Prince Rupert People in Their Travels

Concluding one of the most wonderful tours conceivable, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Self returned home last night after having been at the various United States and Canadian centres since January 13, when they left Prince Rupert. One of their chief aims was to improve their health and this they did, for they are looking wonderfully well and strong compared with when they left.

Mr. Self took advantage of the visit to the big centres to make a thorough study of the motion picture business and doubtless the patrons of the local theatres will benefit from what he saw. He says that the only enemies of Prince Rupert were a certain element in Vancouver and those whose business it was to know about the place but who did not.
