HIGH OFFICERS OF REBEKAH LODGE IN CITY ENTERTAINED

Mrs. Cozens, President, and Miss George, Vice-President, Assembly of B. C., Here.

Mrs. Helena C. Cozens, president, and Miss E. L. George, vice-president, of the Rebekah Assembly of British Columbia, are paying an official visit to the city, having arrived from Vancouver on Wednesday. On Wednesday night they visited Centennial Lodge, Prince Rupert, when initiatory degrees were conferred.

Yesterday afternoon and evening they were entertained by local Rebekahs and Oddfellows at a picnic at Digby Island. The launch "23" was chartered for the occasion and the former went over in the afternoon, the latter joining them in the evening. The afternoon was thus enjoyably spent. Tonight Mrs. Cozens and Miss George will be the guests of honor at a reception in the Rebekah lodge rooms.

Tomorrow the visitors will leave on the train for Prince George to conduct similar work in connection with the lodge there. They will return here on Thursday night to go south to Vancouver. Mr. Cozens, husband of Mrs. Cozens, is also here.

The Man in the Moon SAYS:-

A LOT of people are too mean to live but the difficulty is they don't know enough to die.

THE chief objection to life in Prince Rupert is that corn on the cob is late in coming.

"You see that man over there with a face like a lantern," exclaimed the lady of doubtful age to her friend. "That person won the prize at a baby show down east when I was a girl. What an awful fate for such a beautiful baby!"

AMONG the things that don't get you very far is trying to take ice cream to a picnic serve it without spoons.

WHEN you see a man struggling around in a dress suit in August, you begin to realize how sensible a woman is who wears a georgette upperworks.

THE announcement that a delegation to the Rotary Club was to arrive on Saturday caused some consternation around town until it was found that they had nothing to do with any steam roller system.

THE manager of the Cold Storage Company says he sees one bright spot in the business firmament. Wish we could also get our eyes on it.

ACCORDING to yesterday's despatches the British Lords do not agree on the question of the possible Irish Settlement. But who cares whether the Lords agree or not?

ITS an old story, that of the man who cut out his advertising to save money. He didn't.

SUPPOSING you were to buy out of town and I were to buy out of town and all the other people around here were to buy out of town, we shouldn't have any town to buy out of very soon.

WHEN motoring out of Prince Rupert you can't get into Prince Rupert and when motoring in Prince Rupert you can't get out of Prince Rupert and what in the name of all that's crazy do you want to go motoring for when you can go out in a boat.

YOU'VE all heard of the man who struck a match aboard the boat to see if the gasoline tank was empty. It wasn't.

THERE was another man who met a tragic death. He had lumbago and they rubbed his back with alcohol. Then he broke his neck trying to lick it off.

"THE KID" MADE MANY FRIENDS LAST NIGHT WESTHOLME THEATRE

Charlie Chaplin's "Kid" made many friends last night at the Westholme Theatre. The play is the longest in which the clever comedian has ever starred and the audience was in no way disappointed. It is full of witty scenes and yet there were solemn touching parts in which the lump comes to the throat of the members of the audience.

Possibly there is no more popular movie actor than Chaplin and his play shown last evening showed no lack of grip on the local audience.

UPROARIOUS FUN IN EILEEN PERCY FARCE

"Beware of the Bride," a new William Fox farce comedy, opened at the Empress Theatre last night. Eileen Percy, one of the most pleasing combinations of beauty and talent on the screen, is the bride to beware of—which is the very thing that people who have seen her in former successes such as "The Husband Hunter," simply can't do.

The opening subtitle says "When a man turns his honeymoon into a business trip, let him beware of his bride"; which introduces the fact that Mary Emerson, the bride of a month, learns that her adoring husband is summarily called back to business. She prepares to go with him, and taking advantage of his absence while preparing for the trip, goes to a masked ball.

The fun starts before the ball, when Mary agrees to meet a former suitor, also a newly wed, at the ball and identify him by a suit of armor. Mary is forced to dress in the apartment of her partner to the dance, and hops herself to his absent wife's silk hose and Parisian slippers. When the wrong man gets the only suit of armor available, and in it appears at the ball, the fun quickly becomes uproarious and continues at high speed to the end.
