OLE EVINDSON BUYS A RANCH

Story of Discovery of Dolly Varden Mine through Dream

Ole Evindson, the man who discovered the Dolly Varden mine and put the Alice Arm district on the limelight, is in the city and proposes to make his home here, says the Vancouver World. Mr. Evindson has purchased the 24-acre orchard near Fifty-Seventh Street, South Vancouver, from the Stewart estate, and proposes to turn from deep-sea diving and mining to orcharding.

Mr. Evindson has been wintering in California, where he and his family had a house at Coronado. He has sold out his hotel at Alice Arm and most of his mining interests in the north.

"I was surprised to find that even down in California people had heard of the Dolly Varden mine. One man motored down from Fresno to Coronado to talk to me about it," he said, in referring to the interest which is being evinced in the opening up of the northern silver fields.

Before finding a fortune in Kitsault canyon by his discovery of silver, Mr. Evindson had been a diver and did a lot of under-water work at Prince Rupert. He is of Swedish birth. His explanation of how he came to call the famous mine by the name of one of Dickens' characters is an interesting one.

Olson's Dream

"I had a young chap from Sweden with me named Olson, who had never been out prospecting before. The second day out he told us he had had a dream the night before and that his dead uncle had come to him and told him he would find a rich mine on the trip. He said his uncle showed him a big white boulder and said that when he came to this boulder to stake the claim around it and call it the Dolly Varden.

"We had some fun about it, but paid no more attention to it. When we ran short of grub, two of the party went back for supplies and Olson and I continued slowly on our prospecting of the Kitsault Canyon. We were on different levels but within sound of each other. Just as I came to the discovery ledge and had broken off a chunk of ore with my hammer I heard Olson shout out, 'I've found the mine; I've found the mine.'

Pointed to Big White Boulder

When I got down to where he was and asked him to show me the ore, he pointed to a big white boulder. 'I haven't any ore, but there's the boulder my uncle showed me in the dream,' he said."

Having staked the claim the two men then cudgelled their brains to think up the name that had been giveyn them for the claim. The name would not come. For two days they waited, reluctant to return and record the claims unless they had the name which had been giveyn in the dream.

On the third day their companions returned. "What was that name that Olson's uncle said we were to call the claims in his dream?" asked Evindson.

"It was the Dolly Varden," replied one of them. Accordingly all six claims were given the name "Dolly Varden" and the prophecy in the dream was fulfilled.

It is Mr. Evindson himself who has spoiled a good mystery story with a probable explanation.

"That thing worried me," he acmitted, "until in going through the equipment one day I found a tattered copy of a story book by Charles Dickens and saw the name Dolly Varden in it. I think that must have been where Olson got the name without knowing where it came from. But as for that big white boulder—well that's still a puzzle to me."

WENT TO STEWART TO CONTINUE WORK ON PATRICIA GROUP

Crawford McGee and Dr. R. E. McKechnie, of Vancouver, Have Promising Showing On Marmot River.

Crawford McGee, who with Dr. R. E. McKechnie, of Vancouver, is interested in the Patricia group of mines on the Marmot River, Stewart, arrived yesterday from Vancouver and, after outfitting here, left today on the launch Provincial for the north where he will spend the summer conducting development work on his claims. There is already some tunnelling on the group and ore running $12 in gold and $10 in lead and silver has been taken out. There is a big lead in sight and at the present time the ore that is taken out in thetunnelling to it is paying for the development. Mr. McGee has great confidence in the future of Stewart as a mining camp.

TELKWA CHURCH

Editor, Daily News:

My attention was directed to a paragraph in your paper of 10th inst., dealing with the Hazelton District Meeting of the Methodist Church, in which it was stated that the Telkwa church had become self-sustaining.

That statement is not correct and as we stand for the things that are true we could not let it pass without drawing your attention to it.

The facts are that during the past year the work on the Telkwa and Houston circuit has been consolidated and at Telkwa a new church has been built.

We have a sturdy young congregation of Methodists and Presbyterians working unitedly under a cooperative committee of these churches and are conducting regular services at Telkwa, Round Lake, Deep Creek District, Houston, North Bulkley and Topley.

Missionary Help

We have had the hearty cooperation of the people at all these points, but the country is too new and the initial expenses too great for us to be self-sustaining already, and our circuit is still indebted for its support in a large measure to the Missionary Society of our Church.

Our financial reports for the year ending 30th April shows that there was raised locally for all purposes the sum of $2,247.00. This has meant hard work and self sacrifice on the part of many of our members and augurs well for the future when you will be able to report truthfully that Telkwa is self-sustaining, but the time is not yet. Yours very sincerely,

WM. DEANS,
Minister, Telkwa, B.C.
