Contract Signed For Ship Completion.

The news published on Saturday by this paper that the contract with the Wallace Company for the completion of the ships had been signed by the Dominion Government was most welcome to everyone. There had been rumors that the contract was being held up. It took many weeks to settle what it was thought would have been done in a few days. Now everything is ready but the difficulty between the Government and the creditors, which the courts should straighten out quickly. Then the sound of the rivetters will again be music in the ears of the local people.

Are Men Worth Conserving?

Some exception has been taken to an editorial article recently published in regard to men being better sports than women. One lady expresses herself something like this:

You men always have a high opinion of yourselves. You have never yet got over the idea that you are the Lords of creation, and yet what use are you? You fuss around at your offices but most of what you do is unnecessary. The bees and the spiders are really the wise people. They know how to treat their men.

The drones in a beehive are only raised when they are needed and as soon as their work as fathers is done they are put off of their misery, either by the females stinging them to death or keeping them out of the hive and allowing them to starve to death. That is the way to treat them.

In the spider world, the male is very small and insignificant compared with the female. He is allowed to live until his work is completed and then the female takes him in her deadly embrace and squeezes the life out of him. What a noble example!

Among humans until of recent years, the men assumed that they were the all important factor in society. Women existed for their benefit and pleasure. Now all that is being changed. We are approaching more nearly the primitive but natural ideals of the bee and the spider. Why keep a man hanging around, eating his head off and like a drone bee making a loud buzz as if he were important. It is a useless waste. Doubtless Dr. Osler had this in mind when he proposed gently disposing of the men after they were forty years of age and passing them on to the next sphere of life where they may possibly be more use than they are here. Why keep the drones when their work is done?

Wales Supports

Lloyd George.

The election at Cardigan is an indication that the people of Wales, like the people of England, still have faith in the little Welshman who brought them through the troublesome times of the war and who is sticking to his guns during the period of reconstruction. It must be remembered that in England their problems are much larger than ours. They sent more men to the war, they have to pay a much larger proportion of the cost and consequently their taxes are heavier than ours. They were nearer to the scene of action and their natural resources are more fully developed so that they have not the safety valve which we possess and shall possess for many years.

Lloyd George is attacked very fiercely by his opponents, but he is revered by his supporters and there is no indication as yet that he has lost the confidence of the people. The Cardigan election is an indication that he is still the big little man of the country and that he is likely to be premier for some time yet.

The time used is Pacific Standard, for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours from midnight to midnight.

The table given is for Port Simpson but the time for Prince Rupert varies only a few minutes on some days and on others is the same. The range of the tide may be computed as 5 per cent greater at Prince Rupert than at Port Simpson both at springs and neaps. Therefore the rise in the Prince Rupert harbor is slightly greater than Port Simpson.

The height is in feet and tenths of feet above the average level of lower low water.

A lot of people spend money in advertising, others invest it in advertising. An advertisement in the Daily News is an investment.

POSSIBLE TO LIVE LONG

Professor Huxley says Extension of Age is Possible with Worms

Popular interest in the oft-discussed question whether it is possible to keep old age at bay indefinitely and correspondingly prolong the span of life has been revived by Professor Julian Huxley of Oxford University. Julian is a grandson of the great Huxley and inherits no inconsiderable measure of his talent for painstaking scientific research.

"The commonsense view of the life-cycle, drawn from the observation of man and the familiar animals," said Professor Huxley, "is that it proceeds always and inevitably in a definite direction with a definite plan. The normal life-cycle of man, for instance, is as follows: The individual starts as a minute single cell, then follows a period of rapid growth accompanied by differentiation, then growth without differentiation, then senility and finally death, which supervenes as a natural phenomenon, even if not through disease or accident."

Modify Growth.

Experiments had shown, however, that this process is not irreversible, and was not inevitably similar in all animals; that it was possible to modify the rate of growth and the length of the period of growth and thus prolong life.

"It has been shown," Professor Huxley continued, "that by alternately starving and feeding planarian flatworms they can be kept not only within certain definite limits of size, as was to be expected, but also within certain definite limits of age. One animal has thus been kept of the same age—that is, the same lively activity, the same form, the same type of behavior—for a time during which the rest of the brood have passed through 19 generations; a period which, translated into human terms, would take us back to Chaucer. Thus, age does not merely depend on the lapse of time; it is the expression of internal processes."

Only Flatworms.

"The elixir of life so long sought in the Middle Ages has at last been found—but, alas, only for flatworms."

As an illustration of reversal in mental life, Professor Huxley mentioned that in some cases of shellshock and neurasthenia the patients revert to an earlier stage of mental existence, having the minds of children in the bodies of adults. "The most striking case," he said, "was that of an Australian soldier who reverted to the condition of an infant, unable to walk or talk, and incapable of taking any food but milk. This is known as mental regression."

Professor Huxley held that numerous other examples showed that the apparent irreversibility of the life-cycle was only apparent, and that the ordinary type of life-cycle had been adopted as the most convenient, but not as the only possible method of grappling with existence. In the case of mammals, the normal life of rats had been prolonged by about 40 per cent.

A request by Vancouver for permission to annex South Vancouver has been refused by the provincial government.

Local boxing enthusiasts last night had much pleasure in watching a program of bouts in the Kaien Island Club. The Donaldson boys gave an exhibition. Knockout Murphy got a decision over Gunboat Jack, Billy Kentzel and Battling Swede fought to a draw. Scotty Buchanan won from Billy Collins, and Jack Dempsey and Perry Queenan fought a draw. Frank Keeley introduced the fighters, Frank Bowness was referee and Julius Levy timekeeper.
