Do Parents Make Home Attractive?

The tendency of the day is toward living away from home and making the home just a place at which to sleep and eat occasionally. Men and women of the last generation deplore the tendency of the age, which is to get away from the family life ideal and instead to spend the evenings away from home. They claim, and with a measure of truth, that the time when girls did needlework or spent their time in other home occupations is gone and that instead the young people wish to get away from home influences. This is to a certain extent true, and yet is it not also true that the fault lies largely with the men and women of the older generation who are doing the complaining? If they made the home sufficiently attractive to combat the outside influences the young people would stay there. Many parents forget that they have a duty to make the home pleasant, to provide amusement there, and to invite young people with whom their sons and daughters may associate. If the parents do not invite young people to their homes the children will go where the young people are. Make the home attractive, and the young people will not be so prone to wander away. Parents forget the need of companionship and fail to adapt themselves to changing conditions. Parents are often in need of education even more than children.

Slipshod Marriages
Lead to Divorce.

Divorce records of British Columbia show an increase of 30 per cent. in twelve months. No wonder. Testimony in some instances reveal an acquaintance of a couple of weeks preceding the marriage, while several instances show the weddings were "mail order" or matrimonial bureau matches. All of these, it was demonstrated, were marriages made of hasty acquaintances by mail, with hardly any personal acquaintance when brides and grooms came from distant parts of the United States to complete the contract. One old man met an elderly relative of his expected blooming fiance. He took a chance and married her after the woman threatened to sue him for damages. That is only a couple of weeks ago. Now he is in the divorce court.

Our divorce courts will always have a constant run of business so long as marriage is treated flippantly. The amazing part of the thing is there are not more of them, when all things are considered.

Strange, isn't it, that a man will dicker half a day over the purchase of a tattered set of harness, but will rush into wedlock with a slatternly shrew, open-eyed, on the impulse of an ill-tempered moment?

And how often will one find a shrewd housewife clawing over the contents of a remnant sale for a whole afternoon to save a few cents, but who will smirkingly yield her life's future to a beery old bum whose acquaintance a self-respecting devil would shun? There will always be divorces so long as wedlock is regarded in this haphazard way.

Specialize in Something,
Young Friend.

This is a little lay sermon to you, young man, or you, young lady. If you are soon to go out in life to make your way in the world, don't make the mistake of thinking the world has a welcome for you unless you can do something particularly well. Without training you will be out of luck. The cities and towns are filled with mediocre men and women who never learned to do something well. British Columbia has thousands of them—failures all.

Some girls imagine a happy, ideal marriage will come along to simplify things and render training unnecessary. We hope it will turn out that way, but it seldom does. Learn to cook and keep house, anyway. You owe at least that much to him and to the kiddies that come. But don't be too sure about the ideal marriage. They are scarce at best. Probably you will have to earn your own living. Learn to do it to perfection. If you follow a commercial course, learn to spell perfectly. Many girls in the cities are constantly getting "fired" and hired and "fired" again because the weary employer has no time to fool with getting the same letters written over half a dozen times. And the same thing with anything else you learn to do for your keep. Make sure you know it well.

And you, young man—learn a trade or some particular method of earning a living, no matter what it honestly is. Without a trade you will soon drift into the workless ranks in town or city. Vancouver, Victoria—all over this province of ours—there are thousands of human misfits, human weeds, effigies of mankind, wastrels, wrecks, dismal failures—the fellows who never troubled to learn something when they had the chance. Remember, you cannot "get by" without knowing how to do something well. The world is exacting and has no place for the untrained. Get busy now while this idea is hot in your mind, and learn, something, well!

Aunt Jemima's
Helpful Hints

Aunt Jemima will answer any questions sent in by readers of The Daily News.

Geraldine—One good way for you to shampoo your hair is to wash it well with eggs. But be sure the eggs are fresh and remove all the shells, as it would not be pleasant for your sweetheart to get the shell in his teeth while kissing your tresses.

In dying the hair, you might hang it over the back of a chair in front of an open window when retiring.

Dear Aunt Jemima—While on my holidays in Vancouver this summer, I fell in love with a beautiful girl whom I met at English Bay. But one night we had a moonlight beach picnic in bathing suits, and fried weiners in the sand. In the darkness, I mistook one of her toes for a sausage and stuck my fork into it. She got mad and hasn't spoken to me since. She has now come here to live and I want to renew her friendship. What shall I do?

Yours truly,

WILLIE BIFFLE.

Answer—Quite easy, Willie. Just tell the girl she looked nice enough to eat and you forgot yourself.

PRINCE GEORGE

The Unionists will have a meeting here tomorrow night to organize the campaign for the forthcoming federal election in support of Fred Fulton, M.P., the candidate.

P. S. Bonney, district forester, is back from a journey to the northern boundary of the province in the Peace River country.

Marshall Sales, partner of H. G. Perry, M.L.A., in the brokerage business, is back from a visit to his home in Calgary.

Dr. Lyons is building a $4500 residence on Seventh Avenue near Vancouver Street.

Telegraphic news to hand this morning reports that the ore from the Silver Standard Mine at Hazelton gives values of $798.24 to the ton. The owners of the mine are D. McLeod, Angus Stewart and A. L. McHugh.

The contract for the building of the new Methodist Church at the corner of Sixth Avenue and Musgrave Place has been let to Emil Kauffman at a cost of $18,000.

ALD. SILVERSIDES
IN CRITICAL MOOD

Called Board of Works to Task at Council Meeting Last Night on Several Points.

Ald. Silversides was in a critical mood at last night's council meeting and called the Board of Works to task on several points.

First he wanted to know why planks had been taken to Eighth Avenue and decking work commenced on either end of the avenue and then the planks had been removed without the job being finished. Ald. Kerr explained that the Board of Works did not know anything about this decking and had not authorized it. The foreman in charge it had seemed had wanted to use up some plank. The work had been ordered stopped by the mayor.

Then Ald. Silversides wanted to know if something could not be done on Taylor Street. That street was in bad condition and was almost impassable. Would it not be possible to take some of the old planks from Fulton Street and lay them down there? Ald. Kerr replied that the road foreman said nothing could be done for Taylor Street and suggested personal reasons for this decision. He knew that Taylor Street was in bad shape. Finally the matter was left with the mayor for attention. The mayor stated that changes in the conduct of work in the city engineer's office had been made. There was now an order book where orders were written instead of the verbal system that had been in vogue.

Alderman Silversides also wanted to know what was being done about Summit Avenue. Ald. Kerr said that the Board of Works would have a report on this for next meeting.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 4.—E. A. Wakefield, United States consul at Prince Rupert, sailed last night for the north by the steamer Prince Rupert* on his return from a ten week's visit to the East.

On Mr. Wakefield's arrival at Prince Rupert, Major George Crosby, now acting consul, will leave for Halifax to assume his new post there. Major Crosby expects to get away on Saturday morning's train.

In the Letter Box

PAUL AVAZOFF EXPLAINS

In your yesterday's issue in regard to Jack Johns and myself selling out Jack's Cigar Store to a firm from Vancouver, Messrs. Crawford and Morgan, I wish to make clear to you and the public that we were forced out, not sold out.

When I and G. W. Nickerson decided to take over Jack's Cigar Store I asked Mr. Beynon, who was acting as Agent for the owner of the premises, if we were taking over said cigar store, the owner, Mr. Alder, would re-issue the lease to me for three years or more at the same rental as was then being paid.

Mr. Alder wired back to Mr. Brynolson that he would gladly give me a lease for five years at the same rental, and on that understanding I closed the deal with Mr. Johns.

Just a few days before the end of the present lease we got a letter from Mr. Alder saying to vacate the store as the same was leased to some other party from Vancouver, and the party from Vancouver arrived with their own stock and therefore we were forced to remove our stock and leave the fixtures in the store for two-thirds of what it cost us to put them in.
