CHOLERA INFANTUM The Fatal Disease of Children

Mothers should look well after their young ones during the hot summer months as this is the time of year when this summer complaint is most prevalent. It begins with a profuse diarrhoea, the stomach becoming irritated, vomiting and purging set in, and the matter ejected from the stomach has a bilious appearance; the child rapidly loses flesh and is soon reduced to great prostration which in a great many cases terminates fatally.

DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY should be administered.

Mrs. Charles Kretlow, Wideview, Sask., writes:—'I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for summer complaint. I think it saved my little girl's life one time as she was so bad I thought she was going to die. A friend advised me to get "Dr. Fowler's," so I got a bottle and it helped her right away.'

MANSON TALKS TO ROTARIANS

Continued from Page one. been no such deadlock as occurred in the United States over the peace treaty, when the President and his cabinet were at variance with the other executive body the Senate.

In Canada there was a partly written constitution and so there was in each province, but by far the greater part of the constitution was unwritten. In the statute books there was no provision made for a cabinet.

Provincial Freedom. The speaker showed that the Provincial Government in its sphere was just as much supreme as was the British Parliament. The nation was gradually becoming freer and even today there was absolutely no interference with our own affairs by the British King or Parliament.

Mr. Manson then gave the history of a bill in its passage through the Legislature, taking as an example a "Bill to Regulate Mosquitoes." In a racy manner he told of the different stages through which it must pass and the places where it met with fiercest opposition.

Killing a Bill. An interesting part of the address was that dealing with the methods of killing a bill. Sometimes it was given what is known as the six months hoist! As the house is not likely to be in session six months hence it means the same as killing the bill. Another method was to let a bill die a natural lingering death being unfinished at the close of the session. The third method was to vote it down, but under such conditions the bill might bob up again at any time.

A bill might also be killed in committee by amending its vital part so that it was of no effect. Many bills, Mr. Manson said, were introduced only by the government, and with the budget there was a peculiar practice which was always followed only in that particular case. It was in the budget and on the supply bill that the fiercest debates of the session often took place. The supporters of the government showed how splendid was the condition of the country, while the other side indicated the state of awful wreckage into which the government had brought the country.

Other Details. The speaker then spoke of the delegations which had to be met, of the committee work and of the other incidents of work which engaged the time of the members. At the conclusion the speaker was thanked for his address both by the president and personally by the Rotary members.

JUNCTUATION. Returning from school the other afternoon a little girl proudly informed her mother that she had learned to "punctuate."

"You see, mother," explained the child, "when you write 'Hark!' you put a hatpin after it, and when you ask a question you put a buttonhook!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

NECROMANCER FORMS SHIPPING COMPANY

Curious Sect in Japan Goes Into Shipping Business.

An account of a mysterious shipping company, organized and maintained by a religious cult as a means of giving effect to their teachings, is given in the Japan Advertiser.

The advent of the new lines was sudden, and its activity in opening up routes to Shanghai and elsewhere along the China coast, meteoric. Known as the Tengu Yoko, it opened a head office in Tokyo, but particulars of its organization were a sealed book to outsiders. Shipping men had little success in ascertaining its character. The nominal proprietor of the concern was discovered to be a former superintendent-general of the Tokyo police, a believer in "Reichartzu," a faith based on a sort of necromancy. His co-believers in the cult were the contributors of the capital of the shipping company.

The guiding principle of the head of the line is to sacrifice self for the sake of the public. He obtained a divine revelation, it is said, that "China-Japanese friendship is the will of God." So he made up his mind to arrange for the supply of goods to China as inexpensively as possible, and the shipping venture was designed as a preliminary to the execution of that idea. He is said to have about 500 faithful followers in Japan and China, and between them they have subscribed some $500,000 to the company, with more to come if needed. Besides shipping business, the Tengu Yoko maintains a rubber factor, a dyeing workshop and a silk weaving mill. The marine venture is, however, the most important of the enterprises.
