C. G. MINNS, Manager

ALICE ARM

Work at the Homestake mine is progressing with rapidity and already two tunnels have been driven to distances of 103 feet and 45 feet respectively. Foundations for the compressor plant, which will be installed next spring, have already been blasted out.

G. Hanson, who has been in charge of the Dominion Government geological survey here this summer, left last week for Stewart.

Persistent rumors have been going the rounds here that the Taylor Mining Co. will reopen the Dolly Varden and Wolf mines in the near future and that one will be shipped again this fall.

Work has commenced on the bridge for the road from the town to the wharf in front of the hotel. Mr. Buckley is the contractor.

W. T. Muse, the Prince Rupert contractor, expects to start work on the Alice Arm wharf about October 1.

Miss Virginia Riel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Riel, has gone to Prince Rupert to attend the convent.

SHARKS CAUSE HERRING FISHERIES FAILURE

SCARBOROUGH, Eng., Sept. 21.—Light was thrown on the cause of the failure of the herring fishing on the Northeast Coast by the chairman, Councilor Whitehead, at the annual meeting of the Scarborough Harbor Commissioners. He said that he had made every possible inquiry and the reason, as given to him by one of the most experienced and oldest of Scarborough skippers, was that the North Sea at present was infested with shoals of bonitos, a small species of shark, which came from the Spanish coast. Although they had been found in the Channel, had never been found so far north before. They were most voracious, and had scared the herring shoals away. Mr. Gibson remarked that as the weather became colder, the bonitos, which were tropical fishes, would depart to the south. Other Commissioners expressed the hope that the fishing would still be good.

WHAT LIBERALS ARE SAYING TO QUEBEC PEOPLE

Arthur Cardin, M.P. Addresses French Canadians in Opening of Campaign.

People here like to know what attitude the parties are taking in different parts of the country. Following is the report in a Conservative paper, the Montreal Star, of the address of Arthur Cardin, M.P., in opening the campaign.

"Why throw stones at us on tariff? Why should people fear the return of Liberals to power as far as tariff is concerned? The party was in power for fifteen years, and it was a period of prosperity. Did the Liberal party act as a wrecker of tariffs? When did the Liberal party destroy manufactures? On the contrary, never were so many factories started in Canada as under the Liberal regime. Not Extremists.

"The Liberal party," went on Mr. Cardin, "protects, and will continue to protect, the legitimate aspirations of financiers, manufacturers, merchants, and also look after the interest of the mass of the people, and wants a tariff by which Canada can develop, and all citizens be happy, to live in their country. There is no fear of the Liberals on tariff. We are not extremists on any line, moral, national or in financial matters. We are moderates in everything, neither for free trade nor protection that is unjust to the consumers, but we wish to steer a moderate course, suitable to the needs of the time, and taking into consideration the necessity for development of industry and the interests of the great mass of people. We want capital to increase, and industry to progress. We want the tariff arranged in such a way that while it protects the manufacturer it will also see the consumer is not ill-treated.

Government's Position. Mr. Cardin declared that there was no need to fear the Liberals on the tariff issue. It was Mr. Meighen's intention to run the campaign on the tariff issue, he declared. The Government did not want to discuss the administration of the country. Mr.

Meighen and his friends talk about tariff, but has the Government a platform on tariff? For the last four or five years the Government has played with the question of tariff changes. They have announced changes, but have never carried out the changes. They want to keep the tariff flag for general elections. Their program on tariff is that they are protectionists. That is all Mr. Meighen has said. He is for protection, but has he announced a single theory or modification? He stays in the land of generalities, and reproaches the Liberals for not specifying their opinions on tariff. The Government will not only be judged on its past, on all its works, all its sins of commission and omission Mr. Cardin declared.

Time For Revenge.

The government seemed to have pleased no one, he continued. It had showed contempt for public opinion and had abused the confidence given it. "The opinion of the people is formed, and has been for several years, and it will mean extinction of the administration at Ottawa. There will be various appeals made to you, for our enemies are doing their utmost to break up the Liberal group which is the strongest force against the Government. I think that the people have suffered enough, and you have been waiting for so long to avenge yourselves that you will not divide your forces and energy, so as to permit your adversaries to dominate again."

Liberal Bloc.

"The duty in this province and elsewhere in Canada," continued Mr. Cardin, "is to get together the best elements and form a block to resist the organization of the Government, and to eliminate our adversaries. We have only to work together, for everyone is unanimous, with perhaps a few exceptions, in the desire to get rid of this Government."

"We have the conviction that no matter what Government may come, it cannot be worse than the one we have had since 1911, and especially since 1917."

Rich on Blood.

Mr. Cardin said that the party in power had always gained control by awakening prejudices, and preaching one doctrine in Quebec and another doctrine in other provinces. "Again they want to divide us," he said, "so as to keep control of the country for personal benefit, to grow rich out of the public funds, and from the blood shed on the battlefields." It was to the Government's interest not to have the past remembered, but Mr. Cardin said that the past must be dealt with, and, as far as the Liberal party was concerned, there was nothing to be ashamed of. The grant of $10,000,000 to the C.N.R. for the worthless common stock had been nothing more than a theft designed to pay capitalists for services in 1911. Mr. Cardin said that the Liberal party deserved the esteem and confidence of the people. He went on to object to $15,000,000 being spent for militia this year. There was no reason for it, he insisted, and it was a foolish, if not a criminal, expense at a time when famine was at hand.

Renewed Confidence.

With a new government, said Mr. Cardin, business would stabilize itself, there would be more confidence in the country, capital would flow into industry again, new enterprises would commence and confidence and enthusiasm would prevail in the country. He urged his hearers not to divide the Liberal party and made a plea for support for Mr. Boyer. A united front was necessary to avenge themselves on the Government.
