ALICE BRADY IN "OUT OF THE CHORUS"

Story of Young and Attractive Girl who Elopes with Son of Aristocrat

A new Alice Brady picture is always a treat to film lovers, and local playgoers will welcome the appearance of this popular star at the Westholme Theatre, in "Out of the Chorus," a tense emotional drama which borders on the melodramatic, as strong drama is bound to do, but which gives Miss Brady a role of the sort which she handles most expertly. The plot swirls about a young and attractive girl who has rashly eloped with the son of a more than usually haughty "first family," who condemn the bride as a commonplace and designing vamp before they have ever seen her, and resolve to get her out of the family as speedily as possible. It is doubtful if any street in any town or city harbors quite so mean a specimen of mother-in-law as the aristocratic dame whom poor Flo draws in the marriage lottery. The schemes of that selfish old dowager, aided and abetted by a villain who wants the family to cast the girl off so that he can get her himself, work out with extraordinary smoothness, but there is a hitch and that is where the chief interest in the plot comes in.

After refreshments were served there was a dance, music for which was provided by Robert Arthur, Jr., Mrs. Gawthorne, R. Greenfield and J. N. Kelly. W. M. Brown was master of ceremonies. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. J. Clapperton, Mrs. Ryan, Mrs. B. Davis and Mrs. G. Abbott. James Simpson assisted in the kitchen.

UNIVERSAL AUNTS AID TO VISITORS

LONDON, May 11.—There is a growing demand for "aunts" to escort schoolboys and girls who are passing through London on their way to and from School for vacations. American visitors are also keen on securing the services of "aunts" for sightseeing and shopping expeditions.

This has led to the formation of an association called "Universal Aunts," composed of about 70 cultured women experienced in travel and having linguistic ability.

Their sphere of usefulness is not confined to the chaperoning of boys, girls and American visitors, as many of the "aunts" are experts in designing gresses and decoration of houses.
