BISHOP BUNOZ ON SUBJECT OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Discussed Problem in Able Address at Rotary Club Yesterday.

GREED RESPONSIBLE

Uncertainty of Labor Was One of Difficulties of Honest Workmen.

That the subject of unemployment was being considered by many people and called for immediate action was the opinion expressed yesterday at the luncheon of the Rotary Club by Bishop Bunoz in an able address on the subject delivered by him.

The Bishop said that unemployment was one of the problems in ancient Greece and was therefore not a purely modern problem. Conventions and public bodies had discussed it in days past and varied remedies had been adopted or proposed. The last word had not yet been spoken, however. It was necessary to distinguish between the various kinds of unemployed. These might be classified as follows:

1. The old and feeble and those who were unable to work.
 2. Professional vagrants who would not work unless compelled to do so.
 3. Red agitators who would not accept work except on their own terms.
 4. Men willing to work and unable to find employment.
- Of the different classes, the old and feeble had to be provided for, the vagrants had to be compelled to work, and the red agitators were of interest only to the criminologist or police. It was with the men willing to work and unable to find it that all were concerned.

Public Relief.

The Bishop went on to speak of the different methods employed or proposed to deal with the big question. The most obvious of these was the provision of public relief such as was being undertaken in almost all nations just now.

At a convention in Holland to discuss this matter the minister of labor of Holland had advised that public bodies defer public works undertakings to the slack seasons of the year and also that a reserve fund be created to provide work where necessary. It was also suggested that an economic commission be created to study the matter, especially in connection with the more or less regular recurrence of periods of unemployment.

The delegates from England at that convention had reported that the creation of public works as a means of finding relief had proved most discouraging. It had failed to get results because it was the means of taking men from their legitimate callings, especially in connection with agriculture. Public works as a means of relief must be conducted judiciously.

An examination of the box scores in the World Series baseball games this year once again proves that the making of errors loses more games than the making of hits won. In the fifth game the Giants made ten hits to the Yankees' six but lost the game on account of one untimely error. In the seventh, the Yankees made eight hits and the Giants six. One error for the former lost them the game. It goes to show that good pitching cannot alone win but that there must be good support behind it.

Aggregate figures for the series show that the Giants victory of five games to three was proportionate to the play of the series in runs, hits and errors. The Giants made a total of 29 runs, 71 hits and 5 errors. The Yankees made 22 runs, 50 hits and 6 errors. Of 29 runs made by the Giants, thirteen were scored in the third game and eight in the sixth. Of their 71 hits, 20 were made in the third and 13 in the sixth. The Giants also hold the record for the number of errors in a single game with three in the second. One game was errorless and, peculiarly, it was the third game when the Giants had such a jamboree of runs and hits. The Giants had five errorless games to the Yankees' three.

Following is box score for the eight games:

Yankees	R.	H.	E.
First	3	7	0
Second	3	3	0
Third	5	8	0
Fourth	2	7	1
Fifth	3	6	1
Sixth	5	7	2
Seventh	1	8	1
Eighth	0	4	1
Total	22	50	6
Giants	R.	H.	E.
First	0	5	0
Second	0	2	3
Third	13	20	0
Fourth	4	9	1
Fifth	1	10	1
Sixth	8	13	0
Seventh	2	6	0
Eighth	1	6	0
Total	29	71	5

Bureaus and Insurance.

Two other means of dealing with unemployment were the establishment of labor bureaus and employment exchanges and the establishment of the insurance system. The former had been of great assistance and in ordinary times were effective in coping with the problem. The distribution of labor was rapid and effective but even this was insufficient at a time of crisis such as the present. Then it was up to the Government to come to the rescue.

The insurance system had proved ineffective because it had been adopted chiefly by skilled labor, leaving the great mass of unskilled workers unprotected. To be a success it would have to be compulsory.

Bishop Bunoz then expressed the opinion that there was plenty of work for all without adoption of either race suicide or the programs of the Reds who advocated short hours of labor. This would encourage loafing, which was a curse to the loafers. He gave it as his opinion that there was an unlimited amount of labor to be done and there was work for all.

Root of Evil.

Some thought the advent of the machine for facilitating the manufacture of goods without the use of labor caused the condition of unemployment, but he did not wholly agree with that. "To get back to the root of the evil you must get to human greed," declared the speaker. "It is the greatest disturber of the peace in the world and so long as it is let loose we must feel the evil effect." Legislators were trying their best to remedy the evil but unless the legislative code was guided by high principles they would fail. "It is on the great code of Christian principles that people of all nations can meet to discuss the questions which are of interest to all."

The final point discussed by the Bishop was that of the uncertainty of labor. This was the difficulty met with by the honest workman. He may be laid off
