Two Badly Injured When Way Freight Was Wrecked Sixty Miles East of Here

Samuel J. Douglas, fireman, and John A. Sutherland, engineer, remain in the hospital suffering from bad burns and other injuries as a result of the way freight running into a bad rockslide along the Skeena River about sixty miles east of here last night.

A big slide came down over the snow sheds driving them out of place and, owing to the bad lighting and the curves, the engineer did not see the obstruction until too late and crashed right into it, turning the engine end for end and piling the tender on top of it and damaging badly six freight cars. Conductor Abbott and the two brakemen were not injured.

KIDNAPPING CASE COMES INTO COURT

E. Michelson Arrested on Charge of Stealing 40 Cases of Liquor.

The slide is an extensive one and its removal will take some time. A crew from Smithers is working from the other end, and the utmost despatch will be used in clearing the line and getting the trains through.

The shed that was damaged was the most easterly one of the series.

Very favorable reports are received from the General Hospital this afternoon as to the condition of the injured. Both sustained severe burns but Engineer Sutherland, with a broken leg, is the worst. The condition of neither is critical although the doctors were kept busy during the night and this morning attending them.

The regular eastbound passenger train, which was due to leave here at 11:15 this morning, will not get away until 7 o'clock this evening on account of the trouble at Salvers where the wreck occurred. A snowshed practically collapsed over the locomotive, cars and the line with a big quantity of sliding rock and earth behind it.

The case arises out of a whiskey stealing episode which it is alleged occurred in the harbor on a gasoline boat last fall when Miller who was selling the liquor and two associates were taken to Metlakatla on the boat and there held up with guns and a steel bar. At the Indian village they were put off the boat in a ten-foot skiff and told to go home while the robbers proceeded to sea with the liquor.
