NEXT CITY COUNCIL

Already there seems to have been a good deal of discussion as to the possible personnel of the next city council. The Mayor has already intimated that he will retire at the end of the year and there will be half the members of the council either retiring or offering for re-election.

Naturally at a time like this there has been considerable criticism of the council. It could hardly be otherwise. Any people holding public position at such a time would expect it. At the end of the year there will be an opportunity for the critics to put forward their candidate, as it is understood they will do. In fact there is a possibility that several candidates will be in the field for the mayoralty, at least three having already been seriously mentioned as men likely to be in the field.

POLICING THE PROVINCE

There are a great many people who are anxious to see the policing of the province of British Columbia turned sonal savings have disappeared over to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Several of with Winnipeg church trust the provinces have already done so but it is too soon yet to decide whether the change has been beneficial or not. It is already claimed that too many prosecutions are being LACROSSE brought under Dominion statutes and that the fines in those cases go to the Dominion government.

It must be remembered that the headquarters of the Dominion police are at Ottawa, nearly three thousand miles away. Also it must be remembered that it is only within the year that the Mounties have had to do with such detailed work as the policing of the province entails. Hitherto their work has been more or less specialized.

In Prince Rupert many people objected to provincial policing, preferring to have local control. The new proposal would place the authority farther away than ever. Possibly it would be better to wait and find out how the change works out in the prairie provinces before making a decision in British Columbia.

There was no square general expectation that real benefits from the conference would be felt by next spring.

Mr. Champion told his listeners reau the reason for the existence of which was principally to assist manufacturers and producers of British Columbia to merchandise their products so that payrolls might be developed. The work of the bureau was by no means narrow in scope but its purpose was to assist every point and corner in British Columbia. That its activities were confined to Vancouver alone was far from being the fact of the matter. Its purpose and desire was to function for the benefit of the whole province in the knowledge that what was for the good of any point or part of the province was good for Vancouver.

Possibly few people realized, Mr. Champion stated, that no less than 826 separate and distinct products were turned out in British Columbia today.

While the purpose of the B. C. Products Bureau was essentially to promote the sale of products of the province, it in turn encouraged the purchasing of Canadian and Empire products which were noncompetitive with those of British Columbia.

Mr. Champion stressed the importance of a community boosting first for itself and its own products. The specific purpose of his visit to Prince Rupert was to encourage local consumers to purchase, as far as possible, British Columbia products, the speaker said. As women were the most important purchasers, an especial appeal was being made to them. His principal work, however, was not to give lectures but rather to keep in close touch with the industries and manufacturers and to assist them in various ways in the disposal of their products.
