BRITISH LIGHTWEIGHT.

Ernie Rice, lightweight champion of Great Brit-in, who is now in America, where he is seeking a match with Benny Leonard, world's champion. Rice is a promising youngster, but before Leonard will meet him he will have to show his wares against some of our other boys, many of whom have enviable records.

Sport Chat

President W. E. Whittier and other officials of the Basketball League were highly pleased with the success and enthusiasm which attended the opening games of the season on Tuesday night.

Special appreciation was expressed for the Great War Veterans' Band's services which were provided free and contributed so largely to enlivening the occasion.

Judging from the performances of the teams which presented themselves for the openers at Agricultural Hall, there is going to be lots of good play during the season not only in the Senior League but in the Intermediate and Ladies' Leagues as well.

The Senior League made a rather rough start on Tuesday night and it was one or two players that were responsible for it. These few players and their actions are likely to determine very largely what quality of basketball is to be played in this league.

They cannot play with dirty methods and get away with it very long. Sooner or later the others will follow suit and there would be a danger of the quality of the games being lost sight of while the players seek for mean advantage. There will have to be strict refereeing if these players continue to employ the same tactics a few of them showed on Tuesday night.

It is to be hoped, however, that the players will not let any petty feelings that might exist detract from their efforts towards fair and clean sport with careful observation of rules.

cost of living and reducing the costs of instruments of production required in the development of our natural resources the name of Peck stands in the Meighen column against the amendment and against the Liberal, Farmer and Independent vote of the House.

Against Independents.

On June 28, 1920 on four successive divisions on proposed amendments to the Elections Act emanating from Liberal and Independent benches the member for Skeena demonstrated a moment to stand squarely behind his leader Meighen. It is the only way to stand squarely behind your leader when you have one and Peck certainly did so in the last four sessions. Was the Government always right? Do the people think so? Are the people of Canada dissatisfied? It is conceded from east to west of Canada that Meighen cannot possibly hope for more than a handful of members in the new House. Peck is listed in the press of Canada today as a Government candidate.

Colonel's Compromise.

But the Colonel says he had to do it—he couldn't vote against the Government because he wanted things for Skeena. Is that the brand of politics Meighen insists upon? Does it speak well for Meighen or for the member who stands for that kind of thing? Is it not time to send a man to Ottawa who unequivocally and absolutely stands opposed to Meighen and his methods? Can we afford to do anything else?
