LAND PROBLEMS ARE DISCUSSED

G. R. Naden Told Rotary Club Some of the Problems of His Department.

SURVEYS ARE NEEDED

Small Salaries in Department Cause Loss of Many of the Best Men.

Some of the problems with which the Lands Department has to deal were outlined by G. R. Naden at yesterday's luncheon of the Rotary Club. He told of the lack of knowledge of such an immense country and of the difficulty in securing funds to pay salaries which would compare with private enterprises.

Mr. Naden said there were three sub-departments in their department. There were the lands, forests, water and surveys. They had on the staff something like 250 permanent employees and twice that number in the summer.

One of the first big problems with which they were faced was the need of taking stock. In connection with this there should be a land classification scheme to find out not only how much land they had and know what was its value, but also what kind of crop it was suited for. They should know whether the land was useful for farming, timber growing, grazing, mining, purposes or just for scenic purposes as an attraction to tourists. A scientific policy of land classification was desirable, but not immediately possible for they had 250,000 square miles of land in the province, most of which is more or less settled.

Old Policy and New.

Under the old policy it was possible for a man to settle anywhere. All he had to do was to stake the land and apply for a record, which was given him. Then the next step was to apply to the Provincial Government for a road. The result was that the roads cost the districts more than the total output of farm produce would amount to in 25 years. This it would be plainly seen was not a good thing. One of the matters they had had to deal with was the prevention of settlement before a survey was made. They had already made a start in the right direction.

Another policy they had adopted was that no land should be surveyed unless they were reasonably sure a man could make a living from it. Under the old system much of the land had been surveyed by contract and the surveyors had tried to cover as much of the easily accessible lands as possible.

They tried to survey the land where the settlements would be large enough to enable the erection of schools and churches and other community conveniences.

Must Have Survey.

It was found that not only was it necessary to survey the land into blocks but a contour survey was necessary and also a survey by agricultural experts. This meant a big expense. So much information was needed but there was not enough money for the purpose. They had to fight for appropriations for reimbursement of the unalienated timber and in this there was necessarily much guess work. It was impossible to outline a forestry policy if it was not known how much timber they had.

To take a specific instance. At Ocean Falls there was a plant that cost $15,000,000 and the company was supposed to get a thirty year supply of timber but so far it had not that much. If they had a thirty year supply and then had to scrap the plant it meant that in order to provide a sinking fund it would cost the company half a million dollars a year, all of which would have to be taken from profits. This meant an immense drain and yet it was necessary if the plant could work only thirty years.

Big Business.

Instead of having the estimates cut down in his department, there should really be a capital of a million dollars provided to take stock. This could then be followed by a policy of development. It would take many years to get sufficient money to complete this stock taking. The forest branch had an income of about $3,000,000 a year so it could be seen that it was a big thing and should be properly looked after.

There would be no difficulty in getting good work if they could pay good salaries but the Legislature would not stand for big salaries. Instead of a four thousand dollar man for chief forester they should have a twenty-five thousand dollar man. The department was badly handicapped because of this matter of low salaries. Any private enterprise would pay a man what he was worth.

Mr. Naden then spoke of the grazing policy of the Government. They had called in an expert from the United States and had got the cattle and sheepmen together and the expert had addressed them. As a result the stockmen had agreed on a line of policy they wanted carried out and there was no difficulty in getting the legislation through the House. As a result they would be able to keep twice or three times as many cattle and sheep on the same amount of land.

The deputy minister said the department was honestly trying to develop the resources of the province on commonsense lines. They were trying to administer it in the best interests of the people and knew nothing about the political side of it.

At the conclusion Mr. Naden was thanked by President Duly for his interesting address.

BANK RESPONSIBLE FOR ENDORSED CHEQUE

Even if Payable to Bearer Signature on Back Changes Effect.

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 16.—An interesting cheque case was decided in the division court. J. J. Hunt, a lawyer, received a Bank of Commerce cheque some time ago for one of his clients for $32.50, made to himself or bearer. Mr. Hunt endorsed the cheque, made it payable to his client's order, and sent it to his client, but it was lost, and the person who found it cashed it at a branch office of the Bank of Hamilton. Mr. Hunt's client and the person who signed the cheque were given judgment today.

The bank's contention was that a bearer cheque could always be paid to bearer, no matter what the restrictions or endorsements, but Mr. Hunt showed that the banking act had been amended in 1906 so that restriction could be placed on a bearer cheque, and judgment was given against the bank.

The husband looked up from the newspaper he was reading to say: "I see Thompson's shirt store has been burned out." "Whose" asked his wife who was slightly deaf. "Thompson's shirt store," said the husband. "Dear me," said his wife, sympathetically, "who tore it?"
