POULTRY CLUB FORMED HERE

Enthusiastic Meeting Last Night
Took Up Suggestion of W.
James, Government Judge

At an enthusiastic meeting of local poultry men in the council chamber last evening, the Prince Rupert Poultry Association, the first organization of its kind in the city, was established. Members were enrolled and officers were elected and the club was given a good start. W. James, editor of the Poultry World and T. M. Anderson, who were judges at the Exhibition sent by the Department of Agriculture, addressed the meeting and joined the newly formed society each putting up silver cups for competition in the poultry classes at next year's fair. It was decided by the meeting to join the B. C. Poultry Association so that the advantage may be taken of yearly grants of not less than $150 which are made by the provincial government.

The officers elected were as follows:

President—J. E. Davey.
Vice-President—J. R. Murray.
Secretary-Treasurer—H. M. Daggett.
Committee—J. Unwin, D. Scott, H. R. Smith, R. M. Clarke, W. H. Melliar and J. Lettis.

Expected Better.
Mr. James gave a highly interesting address to the meeting. He had been surprised to see so much apathy to poultry breeding in the city. He had expected a better show at the Exhibition than he had seen both in number of entries and the quality of the fowl exhibited although he admitted there were several good birds. It was no use blaming the executive of the Fair Association and the fault was with the poultrymen themselves. The only way to make headway was to co-operate with the Fair Board and by forming a local poultry association weight could be brought to bear. Individuality always fell by the wayside.

"The prospects for poultry culture in Northern B. C. are bright," said Mr. James, "but what is wanted is a barrel of pep and two cases of enthusiasm."

Combat Oriental.
The speaker explained how an executive committee consisting of five members had been formed to combat the use of the Oriental egg. This committee comprised Rev. McDermott, of Mission City, Professor Lloyd, of the University of B. C., H. M. Rutledge, of Sardis, Richard Wilson, president of the B. C. Poultrymen's Association and himself. They had in view the drafting of an act to be presented to the federal government entirely excluding the Oriental egg. There was one weakness which was undermining the work of the association and that was the fact that there are not enough eggs produced to meet the demand in this country. There was only one thing to do and that was for poultrymen to co-operate and breed sufficient poultry to supply the demand. There was not a better market to be found than right in British Columbia and the people were always willing to pay the price for a good article.

Mr. James then suggested the forming of a local association and the suggestion was received with a great deal of enthusiasm and it was immediately decided to organize one then and there. The first member enrolled was Mr. Anderson, followed by Mr. James and then the rest present at the meeting. An immediate meeting with the Fair Association was then proposed by Mr. James with a view to improving the Exhibition building especially in regard to the poultry coops.

Co-operation.
Mr. Anderson gave a brief talk dealing with the importance of co-operation and the benefits to be gained thereby. He gave some interesting figures to back this up.

The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. James and Mr. Anderson.
