All Regret Loss of Mrs. Patmore.

The loss of Mrs. Patmore has cast a gloom over the city from which it is difficult to recover. Among the first of the settlers to come here, she believed in Prince Rupert and tried to help make it a good place in which to live.

Prince Rupert people will join with The Daily News, we are sure, in conveying to Mr. Patmore sympathy in the hour of trial and regret at the loss which he and the family and the whole community have suffered in the passing of an ideal wife and mother and an admirable citizen.

Looking Forward to a Hard Winter.

Canada has been looking forward to a hard winter and it is now upon us. While in Prince Rupert so far there has been nothing to indicate that relief work will be needed, careful watch should be kept to see that there is no distress consequent on failure to obtain work.

In many localities there has been little opportunity for people to prepare for winter. Not only have wages been low, but work has been irregular. As a result relief work is necessary. The cost of this is being shared equally by the municipality, the Province and the Dominion.

The opening of logging camps in the south has improved the condition somewhat. It is a pity that conditions should not have been such that camps could have been opened in the north. As a lumberman recently stated, the more we study the situation the more convinced we become of the fatal mistake of the railways in rushing up freight rates to a point where it was impossible to do business.

Promises to Make Railroad Effective.

One benefit to be derived from the return of Mackenzie King and his supporters at the forthcoming election is to secure the fulfillment of the promise that he will make the Canadian National Railways effective. It is his opinion that they have not yet been given an opportunity to properly function.

"Give King a chance" is the election cry today. The Meighenites have failed to make good. They have made a botch of the affairs of state. Now there is a young man with abundant energy who has the confidence of the people generally.

Municipalities Try to Shift Burdens.

Some of the municipalities of British Columbia had a mania for spending a few years ago, not considering how the bills were to be paid. They handed out huge contracts and expected some great influx of new people would help to make the payments.

The Provincial Government has promised the municipalities half the profits on the operation of the liquor sales and also the personal property tax which is at present collected by the province. Much more than that is asked, however, and because the province refuses to endanger the provincial credit by handing over everything, the municipalities are trying to raise a political cry.

WESTWARD TRIP IS GREAT ONE

Paul Aivazoff Returned Last Night on Princess Mary from Kodiak Island.

Paul Aivazoff returned last night by the Princess Mary from a month's trip to Alaska ports which took him as far north as Kodiak Island. He is highly enthusiastic about the northwest country from a tourist and scenic standpoint and said that this was the finest and most pleasant trip he had ever made in this country.

Interested in Rupert.

Mr. Aivazoff reports that the Alaskan cities are very quiet and people are leaving by the boat loads from all places clear from Juneau to Kodiak. Prince Rupert is looked upon as the best town of all and the city is talked of everywhere. Many of the people, especially fishermen, would come here to make their homes but living here is reported to be very high and that is why more do not come.

Going north from here, Mr. Aivazoff left the Canadian steamer at Juneau, and taking an Admiral line boat, reached Seward after calling at Cordova and Valdez. From Seward he went by train to Anchorage and from that place took another steamer for Kodiak. The railroad from Seward to Fairbanks, he says, will be completed this winter.

Boats Popular.

The Canadian boats, says Mr. Aivazoff, enjoy great popularity among the Alaskans. They will wait for two weeks to travel on one in preference to the American boats. He thinks that the Grand Trunk Pacific Co. could engage profitably in this service instead of lying their steamers up for the winter.

Mr. Aivazoff's trip north was for business rather than for pleasure. He went to recover his fishing boat "Flossie" which a fisherman had taken away from here and had failed to return. He was successful but left the boat at Kodiak until spring when he will either sell it there or bring it back to this port.

If Colonel Peck is correctly quoted in the "Evening Empire" of November 17, 1921, he is a victim of illusions when he states that "W. E. Williams in attacking me as a soldier in the field, played right into my hands."

It is really too bad to spoil the Colonel's tilt with his own bad imagination for judging from the violence of the counter attack, the Colonel must feel that he has earned another V.G. How disconcerting it will be for him to realize his desperate onslaught was in vain; his annihilating fury wasted, because there was no enemy.

Such tremendous imagination should have had better justification for at no time have I made any comment on Colonel Peck's war record other than a favorable comment; in fact, I have always booked his war record and have given him full credit on every occasion for both his war and Parliamentary services.

Poor Sport.

The Colonel, in justice to himself, should re-read the account of my Terrace address in the Daily News. If he reads with understanding he will be convinced that he is either muddle headed or a poor sport, because if he read the above address, he either did not understand it or has willfully conjured up alleged statements which I did not make, that he might enjoy the exploit of annihilating them and thereby divert attention from the real issue.

As for the balance of Colonel Peck's tirade against myself, I regret the sentiment and language are beneath the dignity of a gentleman. His vocabulary is certainly not parliamentary and may explain his difficulty in representing Skeena on the floor of the House of Commons. I also regret that I have no military war record, but why is my war time record in issue in this campaign?—simply because the Colonel wishes to hold himself up as a real Mars in all his military glory, in contrast with my non-military career, and get a decision on military standards favorable to Colonel Peck. In other words, he is trying to win this election on his military record, regardless of the political issues and his qualifications to represent Skeena.

Barbarous Privilege. In the Westholme theatre, Colonel Peck, referring to his military record, said: "drop—that slush." Surely he did not mean it. He also said he did not wish any hitting below the belt. The people may judge whether or not, he merely wished to be left in sole control of that barbarous privilege. I certainly shall not dispute his reign. But I would remind the Colonel that the position to which he aspires, is one of dignity and honor in a civilized country, and that bad temper, unfair tactics and scurrilous language are not qualifications, at least not in the estimation of people whose opinion a gentleman would value.

W. E. WILLIAMS.

Joseph Heather arrived in the city last night from Hyder.
