Provincial Minister of Fisheries Denies Salmon Was in Rotten Condition

VICTORIA, May 28.—Charges recently cabled from London to syndicate newspapers that British Columbia "put out over" on England during the war when a gift of 25,000 cases of salmon made turned out to be so inferior that it had to be thrown away or fed to the Germans has been stoutly refuted by Hon. William Sloan, minister of fisheries, who declares that the statement is wholly untrue and that it was liable to injure the good name of the province and its salmon canning industry. The facts, according to Mr. Sloan, are as follows: The entire 25,000 cases of B. C. pink salmon were 1914 pack. No other variety was shipped. Before purchase and shipment the entire shipment was inspected, personally, by three of the foremost salmon authorities and inspectors in the world, Messrs. E. O. Cornish, representing Simpson & Roberts of Liverpool; W. P. Lowell, representing Dodwell & Co., and the late Frederick Hawkins representing R. B. Green & Co., Liverpool. These men inspected and bought the bulk of the B. C. pack for British firms that year. This salmon was further inspected by Col. F. H. Cunningham, then chief inspector of fisheries for the Federal government; D. N. McIntyre, deputy commissioner of fisheries for B. C., and C. P. Hickman, inspector of fisheries for B. C. On arrival in London, the entire shipment, at the request of the province of B. C., was again inspected by the government food inspectors. They pronounced the entire lot first class. On the strength of their report Lord Kitchener ordered ten thousand cases of the lot shipped to British troops in France.

The quality of the salmon in this shipment when introduced to France resulted in France buying all the pink pack of 1915 which was available. The balance of the lot, 15,000 cases, were distributed to districts where there was distress in Britain. The agent general for British Columbia in London has many letters on file testifying to the excellent quality of the B. C. canned salmon so distributed.

Big Missouri Mine at Stewart Bonded Again in New York

STEWART, B. C., May 28.—The Big Missouri mine, held under bond by Sir Donald Mann for some time, has been bonded again and a substantial cash payment has been made on the deal, according to word that has just been received here by M. Jamieson from Pat Daly who is now in New York. There are no details to hand except that it is a working bond and a good deal of money is involved in the deal. The Big Missouri is one of the best known mines on the Salmon River and is owned by Dan and Andy Lindeborg of Hyder.

Another Bonding.

Word was also received this week that Mr. Daly had closed another deal in New York for W. Fraser's property on the Marmot River known as the Fraser group, consisting of seven claims situated on the north fork ten miles from Hyder and at a low elevation. This deal also takes the form of a working bond and considerable work is to be done each year over a period of years.

This is one of the old locations and considerable development has already been done on the property. It has a very large showing of a good grade of ore and gives great promise of making a mine.

Also the United States government will be active on the eleven miles of road up the Salmon River from Hyder to the boundary.
