The Postmaster-General, referring to the fact that many new telephone exchanges had been completed recently, and that the total number of stations in use at the end of September was 261,179, an increase of 3,117 over the total at the end of August, and that new orders were coming in at a satisfactory rate, expressed the belief that the increase in telephone services indicated a revival in trade.

With regard to St. Peter's Mr. Oglesby said: "The upper portions of the interior of St. Peter's at Rome were shams—cleverly decorated to look like marble." He added that the most of the great Palladio's best work at Vicenza and other places was sham—merely stucco laid on brickwork, but none the less beautiful in form, "and our own
