LEADING CITIZENS JOINED AT BANQUET IN HONOR OF DR. TILMIE AND COL. PECK

"honest to God" pioneer of British Columbia. He was a native son and his father had come here years ago in the service of the Hudson Bay Company and at one time was a factor at Port Simpson. Several places had been named after him, one of them Mount Tilmie in Victoria. The minister was thoroughly imbued with the necessity of an experimental farm being established in the central interior and he hoped that before long one would be started. Col. Peck urged that all get behind the exhibition and develop what had been so well started. There were a great many difficulties but he would always be willing to exercise any influence he might have in promoting its success. Dr. Tilmie would also be willing to assist.

Consul Wakefield.

E. A. Wakefield, U. S. consul, replied to the toast in his usual eloquent and humorous vein. He had just returned from a trip East and it had just occurred to him to wonder why the government did not do more to bring business over the line of the C. N. R. It was the best trans-continental route in North America. Compared with the C. P. R. and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railways it had a much better grade. The C. P. R. went as high as 5,000 feet above sea level and the American road, 6,000 feet while the C. N. R. climbed but 3,300 feet and its steepest grade was one per cent. Prince Rupert, as the terminus, had its geographical advantages and could not help but become a great metropolis if he was any judge of commercial conditions.

W. E. Williams.

One of the most eloquent and most pithy addresses of the evening was that delivered by W. E. Williams in proposing the toast to "Canada." One hundred years ago Canada had been but a collection of isolated crown colonies, today it was one of the world's greatest independent nations. The history of any country was the history of its great men. Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt had been the greatest men in the history of the United States. In Canada Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been the great and shining lights. The great work of nation building that one had started had been completed by the other. Laurier had cemented the relations of Canada and the Mother Country.

Oriental Exclusion.

The speaker dealt with several problems that are facing Canada now that the war is over. One of paramount importance was that of Oriental immigration. It was high time that the country and the government woke up and shut the gate. The Orientals were different in every respect from the Canadians and could never assimilate with them. A nation could never be great with several different classes of citizenship and the gate of immigration should be shut, barred and locked.

The big debt was one of the problems at home. The people would pay it like men and big taxes must be expected but the government should be careful with expenditures. He criticized the withholding of expenditures on the Canadian National Railway. This was a very short sighted policy when the investments were capable of bringing such large returns. Sometimes one almost felt that the statesmen did not have the right vision, that they played politics and did not develop the country. Why was the C.N.R. not being handled in a better way? This railway question would have to be solved eventually by business methods.

The singing of "O Canada" took place with the drinking of the toast and Hon. Dr. Tilmie responded. He gave an interesting address and made a distinct impression showing that he had an abundance of facts and figures at his finger tips on agricultural as well as other matter. President Munro thanked Dr. Tilmie and Col. Peck for their attendance following the minister's speech.

D. McD. Hunter.

The last speaker was D. McD. Hunter, secretary of the Fair Association. He declared that no single board of directors could be given full credit for the successes that were manifested each

An impromptu toast to the Northern B. C. Agricultural Association was then proposed and the gathering broke up about 11 o'clock with the singing of the National Anthem.

The evening's program was interspersed with musical numbers, among these taking part being the Westholme Orchestra, Capt. C. B. Forsyth, C. V. Exitt and Will Balagoo. H. A. Pryce and Sid Thompson were the accompanists.
