FLAVELE AND THE RAILWAYS

Says Effort Was Made by Laurier to Avoid Duplication of Roads.

HAYS THOUGHT C.N.R. WAS NOT GOOD ENOUGH

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—In addressing the Board of Trade here on the railway situation, Sir Joseph Flavelle said that during the negotiations Sir Wilfrid Laurier brought William Mackenzie and Charles M. Hays together, the purpose of the meeting being the fusion of interests either by purchase or agreement between the G.T.P. and William Mackenzie's line, whereby the Western extension of the Grand Trunk road would absorb the Canadian Northern, or the then Mackenzie & Mann system, and continue through to the west as a single operating line.

Not Good Temper.

"I suppose," said Sir Joseph, "it may never occur again in Canada that two men will be in conference together in a matter so fateful in its results. Neither man was in a good temper to secure successful negotiation. Mr. Mackenzie was deeply angered at the proposal to build a road somewhat paralleling his own road through the west. Moreover I presume at the bottom he was troubled because of a plan (or a dream perhaps) which he had had that possibly some day he would acquire the Grand Trunk, which would be the eastern end of the Canadian Northern."

Mr. Hays had conceived the idea of a line which he wanted equal to the Pennsylvania in standard, and knowing the Mackenzie road had been cheaply built—which Sir Joseph thought was wise for what were after all colonization roads—he was not interested in the property, and felt that it did not adequately meet the standard which he desired.

Seriousness of Situation.

"They separated," said Sir Joseph, "because neither one would accept the terms of the other; and in that separation was involved the loss to the shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railway. It involved the disappearance of this old line which for 60 years had been closely associated and identified with the development of this country; and it disappeared in a somewhat ignominious manner. It meant the loss to Mr. Mackenzie of control of a property which was to grow to him almost as dear as life itself; and it meant to this country the present railway problem, which makes this group of business men gather here today, and which will make many other groups of men to gather everywhere before we are through with it, because of the gravity and seriousness of the situation."

BIG SCHEME WATER POWER

Sir Adam Beck Plans Extension of Niagara Scheme of Hydro-Electric.

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—Sir Adam Beck announced in the course of an address at the luncheon of the Commercial Travellers' Association at the King Edward Hotel that within a month the Hydro-electric Power Commission's engineers would present to the Canadian section of the International Waterways Commission a scheme for development on the St. Lawrence River which would produce 100,000 or 200,000 more horsepower. It was a scheme, he said, which would make the St. Lawrence a navigable stream and regulate the levels of Lake Ontario. He added that he believed the engineers, in conjunction with certain manufacturers, had devised certain equipment which had never been used in the world before.

Great Industry.

"We are going to be the pioneers of the greatest development of its kind, supplementing the great engineering feat that is going on today," he said.

Sir Adam said the new plan would not bring forth opposition such as had been produced recently in connection with a scheme submitted to the minister of railways and canals, which was condemned on the ground that it would flood a fertile section of country and force descendants of U. E. Loyalists to leave their holdings.

Power Prediction.

He predicted the time when the province would have 3,000,000 of horsepower from Niagara, the St. Lawrence and other sources. This amount of horsepower, he pointed out, would be equivalent to fifty or sixty million tons of coal, which represented, at the present price of coal, a sum of $250,000,000 per annum, which would otherwise be spent in foreign countries for coal.

"That will be retained for the people. No exchange on that," said Sir Adam.

In the world's series, Burns, the Giants' centre fielder led all the players in the world series for the number of hits made, his record being eleven. He played in all eight games. Rawling's, second baseman, came second with ten. Frisk and E. Meusel made nine each and Snyder made eight. Young and Kelly each made seven. These were all Giants and eclipse the Yankee players, the records of some of whom were: R. Meusel, Ward and Schang, 6; Miller, Peckinpaugh and Ruth, 5 each.

Bancroft led the run getters with five to his credit. Snyder and E. Meusel each made four while Frisch, Young, Kelly and Barnes each had three to their credit. For the Yankees, Miller, Ruth, R. Meusel, McNally and Fewster each made three. Barnes, of the Giants made an especially good showing. He played in only three games but made four hits and three runs.

* * *

The Giants used thirteen players in the course of the series. They were as follows: Burns, rf; 8 games; Bancroft, ss., 8 games; Frisch, 3b.; 8; Rawlings, 2b., 8; Snyder, c., 7; Douglas, p., 3; Smith, c., 3; Barnes, p., 3; Nehf, p., 3; Toney, p., 3;

* * *

The Yankees used nineteen men in the course of the struggle. They were: Miller, cf., 8; Peckinpaugh, 8; Ruth, lf., 6; R. Meusel, rf., 8; Pipp, 1b., 8; Ward, 2b., 8; McNally, 3b., 6; Schang, c., 8; Mays, p., 3 Hoyt, p. 3; Fewster, lf., 4; DeVormer, c., 2; Shawkey, p., 2; Quinn, p., 1; Collins, p. 1; Rogers, p., 1; Baker, 3b, 4; Harper, p., 1; and Piercey, p., 1.

* * *

Frisch, third baseman, made two of the errors chalked up against the Giants, Bancroft shortstop, Nehf, pitcher, and Smith, catcher, made the other three, one each. The six errors made by the Yankees in the series were equally divided between Peckinpaugh, short stop; Ward, second baseman and McNally, third baseman, each having made two. Despite the fact that they did not come up to the Giants' in batting, it was due to errors in critical moments that lost the series.

FICKLENESS OF POLITICS

Quebec Was at One Time Conservative and Ontario Has Voted Liberal.

OTTAWA, Oct. 15.—(By Canadian Press.)—In past years the present Liberal stronghold of Quebec gave Conservative majorities, and four times in its political history has discarded Liberalism for the beliefs of the opposite party. Commencing in 1867 Quebec returned 45 Conservatives as against 20 Liberals, but from then on, and with only one lapse, continued to elect more and more Liberals until at the present time any hope of a Conservative majority in the ancient province is regarded as entirely mythical. In the general elections of 1872, the second held in Canada, Quebec returned 38 Conservatives and 27 Liberals, but in 1878, the fourth general election, dropped back to figures of 1867. The fourth and last Conservative majority in Quebec was in 1882, when the government of the day succeeded in electing 48 candidates as against 17 Liberals. From then on the Liberals continued to produce majorities in Quebec until the climax of 1917, when the Unionist Government returned three members while the Liberals rolled up 62.

Ontario Lapses.

While Quebec was wayward to the extent of four terms of duty under the Conservative banner, Ontario joined the Liberal ranks on only two occasions. First in 1872 Ontario rolled up a Liberal group of 50 compared with 38 Conservative representatives, and for the second and last time in 1974 when the returns showed 64 Liberals and 24 Conservatives.

Both parties have come within one vote of splitting both provinces, but on only one occasion in each. In 1874 the Conservatives took 32 seats out of Quebec with the Liberals running one better with 33 seats. When the Liberals secured power in 1896 the Conservatives held Ontario with 44 seats, 43 seats went to the Liberals, while the independents captured five.

Independents.

The official returns of the general elections since 1867 show straight party fights until 1896, when in addition to the five independents elected in Ontario one was elected in Manitoba and one in the Northwest Territories. Each succeeding election since that date has brought a few independents into the House of Commons, but the number at no time exceeded eight until recent years, when floor crossing to sit in "No-man's-land" became one of the features of parliamentary life. The eight peak was reached in 1900, but fell to two in 1911, when Ontario and Quebec each contributed one.
