Vancouver Excursion Reached This City on Steamer Prince George; Gets Warm Welcome

With spirits not a bit dampened by a slow, steady rain which started before they left Vancouver and had followed them all the way up the coast, the Vancouver Board of Trade excursionists arrived on the Prince George last night at 10 o'clock and today they are seeing the city. The party numbers 140 persons and everyone is full of enthusiasm. Although their trip is supposed to be merely a pleasure tour, they are all taking stock of Prince Rupert today and gathering information and facts which they will use in the many lines of business which they represent. There was a large crowd of citizens at the dock last night to meet them and they were accorded a hearty welcome by all Prince Rupert.

The trip up the coast has been one of interest and enjoyment. Three calls were made before reaching Prince Rupert, at Alert Bay, Ocean Falls and Surf Inlet. Every where they were greeted as cordially as in this city and there has been little missed by the excursionists. In the day time they have seen the sights and gloried in the scenic splendor of the "inside passage" and by night they have danced and played the hours away. Sleep for them on this eight day trip is being made merely as a secondary consideration. They will be able to get plenty of that when they return to Vancouver.

SYNOD CLOSED LAST EVENING

Much Important Business Was Transacted and Church Work Promoted.

After partaking of a delightful lunch, provided by the Women's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Church, the Anglican Synod resumed its sessions at 2:30 yesterday afternoon. The election of the executive committee having taken place, Archdeacon Collison moved a resolution of deep regret at the death of Rev. James Benjamin McCullagh, a former missionary of the Church Missionary Society, who for thirty-eight years labored among the Indians of the Upper Naas River, where he was instrumental in breaking down heathenism and winning the natives to Christ and the Church. The Synod expressed its great sympathy for the widow and family.

A most interesting vote of thanks was expressed by Archbishop Du Vernet, on behalf of the Synod, to the Venerable Archdeacon Collison, who has worked among the coast natives since 1873. Heartfelt and deep affection and a warm appreciation of his faithful work was voiced. Thanks were duly expressed to the Church Missionary Society of England, which society has most generously assisted the work of the Church in Canada for the past sixty-three years by sending men of the finest Christian type and also means for their support. The society is now withdrawing from the field and the work will, in future, be maintained by the Church.

After much discussion on various topics which brought the members of the Synod into close touch with each other by the exchange of opinions, the meeting drew to a conclusion last night, much important business having been transacted and the feeling of Christian fellowship deepened.
