It was a wonderful scene. Twelve thousand people watched the play in the great arena. They expected to see a good exhibition of the great ice game and they were not disappointed. It was fast all the time.

Vancouver scored the first goal at 16:26, the first period ending in a lead for the local team 1-0. Vancouver fans were wild with excitement and cheer followed cheer at every good point made. The visitors also had their supporters and the audience was not niggardly in its recognition of exceptional skill.

The Vancouver men did their best playing in the first period when it dawned on the visitors that they were to lose the championship of the world and all the honors that go with it. They made a wonderful comeback. No such hockey has been played here for many a day.

A good deal of money changed hands on the result.
