The Man in the Moon SAYS—

THE chief objection to the bad weather is the absence of hunting stories. Some of the imaginations will run dry if there is nothing to practice on.

THE way some people tell an editor how to run a newspaper is like the way an old maid always tells married people how they should bring up their children.

JUDGING from many of the telegraphic despatches, everybody must be interested in statistics. Here goes then. If every drop of spirituous liquor in the country were destroyed and all the toppers buried, there would be ten billion times more happiness and the world would be too noisy to live in because of the shouts of the youngsters.

IF husbands were only half as good as wives say they are, this would be a wonderful world.

NOW there are two political candidates in the field and if you don't like either of them you can always run yourself.

LET'S all go to Terrace and make our fortunes, 'n have a good time.

NOW that the legislative mill is grinding, you should see the industries of the country pick up.

Mary had a little cold
 That started in her head,
 And everywhere that Mary went
 That cold was sure to spread.
 It followed her to school one day
 There wasn't any rule;
 It made the children cough and sneeze
 To have that cough at school,
 The teacher tried to drive it out
 She tried hard, but kerehoo!
 It didn't do a bit of good,
 For teacher caught it, too.

SHE KNEW HIM.
 Hostess—Well, Tommie, when you get home, you can tell your mother for me that you are the best behaved boy at table I ever met.
 Tommie—Thank you, ma'am, but I'd rather not.
 Hostess—Rather not! And why, pray?
 Tommie—She'd think I was ill, ma'am, and send for the doctor.

Sport Chat

Winter is coming and the skating is now not very far away but nothing has yet been done about getting the Morse Creek pond prepared for the convenience of local skaters. The heavy rains are still on and there is time yet but, if the matter is to be dealt with at all, it should be taken up very soon. It has not yet come officially before the council although it is understood that certain of the aldermen have been approached on the subject. For the information of those who may be interested it might be pointed out that the proper and most effective course would be to take the matter up directly with the council or the board of works. Then the latter body could make a recommendation and there is little doubt but that they would favor the expending of the small amount of money that will be required for the work.

The New York Yankees, it is said, paid $125,000 for Babe Ruth, the heavy hitting and spectacular outfielder and "Home Run King," while Ty Cobb, the veteran batter of the Detroit Tigers, cost only $700 in 1905. Navin, owner of the Detroit club did not want to risk $700 on Cobb but his manager, Bill Armour, liked the young Georgian and offered $500 down and $200 more when Ty made good and he made good. So the difference in purchase price between two stars is something like $124,300.
