Russia Becoming Capitalistic.

The efforts of the communists to communize Russia seem to have failed. The despatch yesterday telling of the establishment of a state bank for the purpose of extending credit facilities with a view to developing industries is in itself an evidence that Lenin is finding himself forced to capitalism. As a commune he would have been cut off from the trade of the world, and doubtless he found the people of the country opposed to the idea, especially the peasants. As long as the peasants were getting free land they were satisfied, but when it came to dividing up the product of the land with others they could not agree. Taking was pleasant but giving was different. As a matter of fact Lenin's philosophy is centuries ahead of the age. He had to deal with an ignorant people and as long as he offered them advantages they were with him. On the other hand the very essence of communism or socialism is self-sacrifice, and that is something few of us have yet learned in spite of the teachings of two thousand years.

Shall We Say England or Britain?

Yesterday The Daily News published a picture of the three sons of King George in Scottish national dress. Above it was an inscription "The King of England's Three Sons in Kilts," and of course exception was taken to the use of the word England in this connection. The inscription was a part of the engraving and was the one in use in New York. So it is in almost every country of the world "England" is used to personify the United Kingdom of England, Ireland and Scotland, or the islands of Great Britain and Ireland. There is no word which includes the three countries, or four if we mention Wales as a separate entity. What we need is a name.

During the war it was noticed that the statesmen of European countries invariably spoke of England as meaning the British Empire. Here in order to mollify the Scottish people we use the name Britain, but that excludes Ireland. However, Britain is the best word available and it is the most widely used in Canada except in the French communities, where they still use England.

In shipping parlance United Kingdom or U. K. is always used to indicate the destination of ships which may call at any of the ports of Scotland, Ireland or England.

Famine in Russia is Extending.

The famine area in Russia is extending, according to telegraphic reports received yesterday. The need of the people is very great. There is, however, a reluctance on the part of the people here to donate money for relief owing to the lack of any official means of sending it and making sure that it is properly applied. It should not be the work of any private concern to make collections for a purpose such as that. It should be done either through the Red Cross or through some relief commission that would guarantee to the public the proper expenditure of the funds. This is not meant to in any way depreciate the efforts of any who have been raising money for relief purposes, but so many funds of a similar nature have gone astray in the past that there should be proper assurances given that the funds are being applied in a legitimate manner. Canadians will sympathize with the ignorant people of Russia who had to go through the throes of a rebellion in order to rid themselves of czarism and who now find themselves enmeshed in another form of autocracy, less efficient in many respects than the former. It is part of the struggle for self-government which must come through education and experience and in which outsiders can help little. Eventually the people of Russia will find themselves and will develop very fast, for they are a virile race. All they need is opportunity. Now that they have had a rude awakening, we may expect to see great developments with a gradual working out of an equitable form of government. Lenin is adapting himself gradually to the conditions which he finds and is sloughing off much of his idealism and getting down to practical politics. He must, however, give up the idea of interfering with the internal affairs of other nations. This is something of which he complains in others and until he carries it out himself he cannot expect any co-operation.

Nervous Breakdown

The extreme depression and discouragement which comes over one at times is the most alarming symptom of nervous exhaustion.

This letter is a message of hope to all who find themselves in this unfortunate condition.

Mrs. Geo. T. Tingley, Albert, N.B., writes:—

"For years I was in a very nervous, run-down condition, was much depressed in spirits and suffered a great deal at times. The least noise would irritate me and at times I felt as though I certainly would go crazy. I consulted different doctors to no effect.

"A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and I can truly testify today to the great benefits received. There was a marked change before I had finished the second box and when I had used a dozen boxes my nerves were thoroughly restored and I was entirely relieved of those terrible feelings I used to have. I shall ever be ready to testify to the benefits of this wonderful medicine, feeling sure that it will give to others the quick and permanent relief it has given me."

RELIEF MONEYS MAY BE USED THIS YEAR FOR PERMANENT WORK

The federal government is going to allow moneys granted to municipalities for relief work this winter to be used in permanent work instead of temporary as was the case last winter, according to a reply made by Mayor Rochester to an inquiry from Ald. Kerr on the subject at last night's council meeting. The mayor also stated that he had taken the matter up with Hon. Gideon Robertson, federal minister of labor, and the plan that had been adopted by the government was practically in accordance with the suggestions made by him.

The opening up of Seventh Street was mentioned by Ald. Kerr as a work that might be done with the relief moneys.

Many people read newspapers as much for their advertising columns as they do for news.

FIRE CHIEFS HAD REUNION

Chief McDonald Met Old Team Mates of 1899 at Victoria Convention.

Six fire chiefs from various parts of British Columbia, Nevada and Montana, who served together on the Rossland fire department in 1899, met and had a reunion at the convention of Pacific Coast Fire Chiefs which was held last week in Victoria.

They were: Charles Collins, chief of the fire department in Anacosta, Montana.

Dan H. McDonald, chief of the fire department, Prince Rupert.

Frank Raymer, chief of the fire department, Point Grey.

Frank Boyd, chief of the fire department, Nelson.

Joseph Martin, chief of the fire department, Anxox.

Charles Asken, chief of the fire department, Tonopah, Nevada.

In 1899 all six were firemen at the same time at Rossland and it is quite a coincidence that all should now be chiefs and should have met again. It speaks well for the department at Rossland but anyone who has been at the Kootenay mining town will know that a fireman has to be a real man there on account of the situation and conditions of that place where one has to be almost a human fly to climb up some of the side streets.

The Rossland fire department in 1899 sent a hose team to the convention of Pacific Coast Fire Chiefs held in New Westminster that year. The team, which comprised all six men mentioned, won all first prizes and lowered world's record for hose races. Dan Guthrie, who died recently in Nelson, was chief of the Rossland department at that time. Chief Collins, Chief Raymer and Chief Martin were at one time chiefs of the Rossland department. Chief McDonald was assistant chief at the time of his appointment as assistant chief to the Prince Rupert department in 1911, and Chiefs Asken and Boyd were firemen.

Chief Cappy Smart, of Calgary, who was chairman of the judges of the 1899 races, was also at the recent Victoria Convention. He is one of Western Canada's pioneer fire chiefs and started thirty years ago with a hand hose reel and a lot of Scotch pep. He is today chief of the most modern and thoroughly equipped fire departments on the American continent.

Another pioneer who was present at the Victoria convention was Fred A. Wood who has installed fire alarm systems from Mexico to Alaska.

CITY CARTAGE WORK TO BE DIVIDED UP

Council Adopts Report to This Effect Following Complaint Laid by J. Breden.

As a result of a complaint recently laid by J. Breden, treasurer, regarding the fair division of the city cartage work, the city council last night adopted a report of the Board of Works recommending that in the future the work be divided up among the different cartage companies in proportion to the number of cars operated.

Cartage accounts of the city from the first of the year to August 30 were also presented for the consideration of the council. They were as follows: Pacific Cartage, $1,207; Lindsay Cartage, $743; Breden Transfer, $420.50; Rapid Transfer, $245.75; Sheddon Transfer, $151; General Bus Co., $88.10; J. G. Weston, $57.55; Wakefield Cartage, $44; Prince Rupert Transfer, $16.50; Cody's transfer, $12.50; Cole's Transfer, $2; Hyde Transfer, $1.
