BEGINNINGS OF LONDON LORD MAYOR

The remarkable career is recalled by the demolition, at Girvan, a little Ayrshire coast town, of one of the few remaining old-fashioned thatched cottages, in order to clear a site for a new police station. It was in this building that Andrew Lusk, afterwards Lord Mayor of London, commenced business as a grocer in the early half of the last century. He was the son of a local farmer, and left Girvan for London, where he laid the foundation of his fortune—owing to a quarrel with his landlord over a broken window.

MOOTING DAM BELLE ISLE

Fur-clad Eskimos From Labrador Press This on Newfoundland Premier.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Dec. 28.—Construction of the much-mooted dam across the Straits of Belle Isle which it is claimed would, by diverting the Arctic current, make the winter climate of Newfoundland and Eastern Canada as mild as that of Spain and enable ocean liners to sail up to Montreal the year round, was urged upon Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires by two fur-clad Eskimos from the Labrador, who arrived here recently. In their interview with Sir Richard they suggested the advisability of building the dam as a means of providing employment and requested that they be given positions as timekeepers, as they could be trusted to tell the time of day during the long Arctic nights. After paying their respects to the Prime Minister, the Eskimos took in the theatre and studied the costumes and near costumes of a musical comedy company, gleaming hints to help their better halves deck themselves for the Easter parade at Makovik. Later they were regally informed by the meteorological authorities that the Newfoundland Government would not undertake the much-mooted project, firstly, because it lacked the money, and secondly, because the idea that the diversion of the Arctic current would convert Canada and the Ancient Colony into a banana belt was as badly exploded as the celebrated Maury myth that the Gulf stream causes the British Isles to enjoy a mild climate.

So the Eskimos bought supplies for their tribes and took the boat for the north, expressing the hope that the Privy Council fell down on the job of settling the boundary dispute between Newfoundland, Labrador and Canada their services would be requisitioned.

Give Dad a Good Watch

Dad probably won't say much about Christmas wants, but do a little observing yourself. The chances are that he is toting around an ancient heavy timepiece that does not keep very good time. Suppose mother and children "chip in" and give him a nice new one. Our prices are fair and square and we have all the best makes.
