Miriam Hopkins, Wynne Gibson and Phillips Holmes Leading Players in Capitol Theatre Picture

The moving picture "Two Kinds of Women," mid-week feature offering at the Capitol Theatre here, is an ultra-modern play which ran on the New York stage as "This is New York."

The story deals with New York life as it falls about the ears of the eager and pretty Miriam Hopkins, daughter of a senator from South Dakota. The latter part is played by Irving Pichel. When Pichel and Miriam visit New York on an enforced business trip, she gets out of his control, meets some typical Broadwayites and night club habitues and is drawn into a whirl of excitement which culminates in a with Miss Hopkins. Stuart Erwin participates in the goings-on as a New York reporter who looks dumb James Crane.
