ELKS WON AN EASY VICTORY

Red Sox "Dark Horses" Last Night Went Down to Bad Defeat.

Last night's Senior baseball game between the Elks and the Red Sox, won by a score of 22 to 4 by the former, was undoubtedly the most ragged one yet put on this season. There was a fair crowd in attendance due partly to the fact that Manager "Slats" Weber, of the Red Sox, had announced a flock of "dark horses" for his line-up. It was early apparent, however, that his new men were probably not as strong ball players as those who have played earlier in the season with the Sox.

DOING STUNTS

Delcourt, the Elks' second baseman provided acts between runs last night.

In the second half of the first inning, the Elks made six runs off Cant, the Red Sox pitcher, who was then put on the bench and replaced by Lyons, who did not do so badly but was handicapped by a sad lack of support almost everywhere behind him. Neither batteries showed much and Clementson, in the box for the Elks, was freely hit but received good support up to the ninth inning when the entire team appeared to lay down much to the disgust of Donohoe, the Elks' catcher. There was only one run made by the Red Sox up to this inning when three were allowed.

OH, SLEEP!

Several of Slats' fielders showed signs of somnolence.

Sid Winsby was the umpire of balls and strikes while P. Laporte handled the base lines.

Lineup and Scoring.

The teams lined up as follows:

Red Sox—Parrington 3b; Scott 1b; Curtis, ss; Mitchell lf; H. Menzies, 2b; Houston, c; Cant, p; H. Astori, cf; Charlton, rf; Lyons, p, after the first innings.

Elks—Fleming, 3b; Delcourt, 2b; V. Menzies, 1b; Clementson, p; Donohoe, c; Gibbs, cf; Esson, ss; Hardy, lf; and Shaw, rf.

The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	—
Red Sox	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	3	— 4
Elks	6	0	2	0	3	2	4	5	x	—22

Sport Chat

Even though the big heavyweight battle between Carpentier and Dempsey is now a matter of history fans still continue to discuss it with avidity and the retrospect seems to be almost as interesting as the anticipation which itself was great enough in this case. Whys and wherefores, regrets and reasons may be heard at every hand and there are many different views taken. One thing about this fight is that it will go down as the most talked-of bout so far in the history of the ring.

• • •

Odd stories of the negotiations between Carpentier and Dempsey and Tex Rickard before the signing of the papers are told. A good deal of precision was demanded by both men about this part of the business and it almost seemed that they wished to annoy each other even at this stage of the game. Jack Kearns was very anxious to sign the papers for the fight for his principal but Carpentier insisted on Dempsey signing personally. After waiting for him two hours Jack arrived and up jumped the Frenchman and felt his legs, arms and body exclaiming "Magnifique," "Mon Jacques," etc. This seemed to annoy the champion. Following the signing of the papers foxy Manager Deschamps persuaded Dempsey into playing a game of golf with Carpentier simply to allow his pupil a good chance to look him over and get a better idea of his temperament.

• • •

Kearns insisted in the articles that Carpentier enter the ring promptly at 3 o'clock. This was because he knew Dempsey's failing—that he was just a bag of bones and if he was kept waiting he might lose his head. It is said that Dempsey came into the ring with a three days' growth of beard simply to make him look fiercer, and somewhat get the best of his opponent's morale. The recent fight puts at rest any idea that Carpentier has no punch, even if he was beaten. There is not much doubt, now, that he will be easily able to beat any middle-heavyweight he is pitted against for he is apparently the best of his weight in the world.

• • •

Dempsey's unpopularity still remains despite the fact that he won such a glorious victory a week ago Saturday. He will have to do something to overcome the feeling being shown towards him. His friends say he is just an overgrown kid and is misunderstood but some of his actions have not altogether been to his credit.
