SPORT CHAT Another record has gone back to England—a big fish one—with the feat of Col. E. T. Peel of Scarborough in catching a 798-pound tuna in the amazing time of 48 minute after being towed a mile and a half by the monster. His achievement displaces the record of Zane Grey f American sportsman and novelist, who set the previous mark with 758-pound tuna off the coast or Liverpool, N.S., on August 24, 1924. Deep sea anglers of England, after trying their luck off the North American coast for tuna, decided a few years ago they might catch tuna in the North Sea. And they were right. Thursday. Wolfe's Monument Attracts Tourists Monument on the Plains of Abraham in Quebec, which commemorates the victory in 1759 which won Canada for the British flag, is a mecca for thousands of tourists who visit the famous St. Lawrence river port. The monument marks the spot where the gallant Wolfe, leader of the British expeditionary force, died, pierced by several bullets, just as the victory was won. This decisive battle marked the end of a century and a half during which time Quebec, founded in 1608 by Samuel de Champlain, had been the headquarters of French rule in America. The monument was erected in 1849. Mr. Oscar Drouin, a member of the legislative assembly of Quebec City, is shown standing beside his new Ford V-8 victoria, parked by the monument. The car was a gift from the Liberal Association of Quebec City.
