Greatest Event in World History.

If the great powers of the world now in conference at Washington evolve a permanent disarmament scheme which can be worked out successfully it will be the greatest event in human history. The world has always been fighting. The farther back in history we look the more fighting there was. Those who did not fight were killed off. The survival of the fittest meant very largely the survival of the best fighters.

In the early history of Britain we find war viewed as a noble thing. King Richard, Coeur de Lion, is the hero of all young boys, and a fight was the very breath of his nostrils. He never did anything else. Of late years, however, public opinion of the world is being modified. China long ago learned to look on war with horror, and that part of her civilization is permeating what we call the civilized world of today.

The climax of the movement toward peace seems to have come in the Washington conference, where the great nations of the world have sent their representatives to work out a scheme which it is hoped will eventually lead to universal peace.

Sportsmanship Badly Needed.

What is needed in the world today is the spirit of sportsmanship. When young boys are encouraged to take part in competitions and shown that it is honorable and noble to take a beating with a smile it is not always realized that this is the force that will prevent the wars of the future. To play the game without resort to improper methods is the power of today. Once that is learned, we have with us the spirit that will eliminate war.

There must always be competition between nations, just as there must always be competition between individuals, between communities, between provinces or states and between any groups of human beings. It is implanted in our natures to try to do better than the other fellow. It is the impetus which makes for all progress. In which he conquered the whole world and wept because there were no more worlds to conquer. There comes in however, the spirit of sportsmanship which forbids men going the limit, but keeps them within reasonable bounds. They have to play according to the rules and learn to take no mean advantage of an opponent. That is the spirit that must eventually rule and that will make it possible for the nations of the world to agree not to quarrel while at the same time competing.

Cultivate at Home Spirit of Fairness.

In every phase of life we find this spirit exhibited and its failure is also noticed. When men at election time meet in debate and discuss the issues and the fitness of their respective candidates without rancor and ill feeling, there is the spirit which will make wars impossible in the future. When, however, they become carried away with the importance of the issues and allow themselves to take unfair means or to abuse or threaten their neighbors, or even to go farther than that, then the spirit which is a danger to the future peace of the world is very much in evidence.

Until men learn to play the game fairly, observing the rules and keeping their tempers, there is little hope for permanent peace. Happily, it is not the small men with small minds that usually control the destinies of nations. It is the men with the broad outlook that are desirable, men who are safe and who can view things as from an eminence where others cannot see.

Learning Sportsmanship Right in This City.

There is no means of training for sportsmanship like the indulgence in many sports and games. Last night the basketball season opened and a number of young people, boys and girls, lined up in opposing teams and played more or less according to rules. There was, however, too much of a desire to win even at the expense of the spirit of fair play. They did not always play the game. Until we can learn to do this in our games we cannot hope for nations to do it. The basketball league may be made a practical adjunct to the peace conference if it can train its members to play the game all the time and never to take an unfair advantage of an opponent.

MURDER MYSTERY IN TONIGHT'S FEATURE WESTHOLME THEATRE

Through the creation of an unusual character, the murder mystery in Louis Bennison's latest picture, "High Pockets," which comes to the Westholme Theatre tonight is solved. The Crime has baffled the sheriff and the U. S. Marshal "High Pockets" Henderson, who discovers the murder. The first clue is obtained only when the marshal begins to suspect a gang of cattle thieves as the perpetrators of the crime. As his suspicions cannot be confirmed, he is powerless to proceed in the case, when a half-witted musician, who has drifted to that deserted part of the world, gives the marshal his first real information.

Vicious Dance Hall.

In "High Pockets" little Tony the musician in the vicious dance hall where the cattle thieves made their headquarters, had long been forgotten as a person of consequence and was treated by the gang as a little insignificant cog in their scheme of pleasure. But this cog knew the key to the mystery which had so long baffled the authorities and the knowledge bore upon his conscience with a pressing fear he could no longer conceal. Finally, when he saw the determination of "High Pockets" he could no longer remain silent but revealed his knowledge of the crime. Through him the marshal was then able to connect the scheme whereby the real murderers were brought to the point of admitting their crime and so vindicating the course of justice.

A NEW BOOK

James Oliver Curwood Writes an Outdoor Tale of Northland.

"The Flaming Forest" is the title of a new book recently written by the great outdoor author, James Oliver Curwood. It is a tale of the northland which will stir up the wanderlust in the heart of the adventurer. This is Curwood's third book of the Three River Country. The theme of the story is that David Carrigan, sergeant of the Mounted Police, goes into the wilderness to get his man. He becomes the victim of a strange marksman, and is nursed back to health by Marie-Anne Boulain of the famous Boulain fur brigade, whose chief is the mysterious St. Pierre Boulain. Of course Carrigan falls in love with Marie-Anne, but Boulain stands between them.

There is a fight—woodsman against skilled boxer—and Carrigan wins. But he is kept prisoner and goes north with the brigade to the forest domain of St. Pierre Boulain. There is a forest fire, a tragedy, and then the smoke of mystery is cleared away.

HOUSTON HAS ADVANTAGE OF FINEST SOIL

Bulkley Valley Settlement Raises Finest Crops and is Prospering.

HOUSTON, Nov. 14.—Houston, located 277 miles from Prince Rupert on the Canadian National Railway, is the centre of one of the coming farming communities of the Bulkley Valley. From an agricultural standpoint the land here presents great opportunities and as a place to live it is unexcelled. Houston is one of the prettiest spots on the line, and the country for miles around is the same. The country is flat and the bush is light, so the land is not hard to clear. For miles there are no large mountains and the country is undulating over the small hills.

Farming here at the present time may be said to be in the experimental stage, although it is realized that, similar to most of the rest of the Bulkley Valley, the principal business will eventually be dairy farming. Timothy hay is raised with success and thus farmers in the district should be able to feed their own stock, although it is doubtful if hay will ever be raised for the outside. Potatoes are also raised here to advantage. Great crops have been reported this season on some of the farms on the flats.

Many Farmers.

There are already thirty or more resident farmers who are actively engaged in developing their land in this district within a radius of six miles of the town. There are still others farther away, not to mention those who hold land and spend part time working it and the rest of the time working on the railway and the government roads. This year four of the ranchers shipped cream to the creamery at Vanderhoof. There is a great deal of stock already here, this including mostly beef cattle. There are also horses, sheep and swine.

There are some prospectors in the neighborhood, but it is not likely that mining will ever play much part in the future of Houston or the territory immediately surrounding it.

Fine Summer Resort.

With such scenic advantages and also splendid hunting and fishing, Houston has much to offer as a summer camping resort. Roads that are being built now are opening the country up and making this town a centre from which a holiday seeker or traveller can get for many miles both east and west. The climate is dry and cool and is a pleasant change from the coast.

In the way of a town there is not much at Houston. The people are farmers and not business men or tradesmen, and come here to go on the land. However, John Gould, a pioneer of the North, conducts a general store as well as the postoffice and government telegraph office. There is a fine homelike little hotel run by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Davies. This house is certainly not like the ordinary run of small town hotels, and the good meals, where one gets fresh cream with Bulkley Valley berries, fresh meat, fresh milk, fresh eggs, all cooked in a home kitchen, are making for it a popular reputation. Travellers like to make their plans to stay here if at all possible when in the district, for it is more like home than any other stopping place in the Bulkley Valley. H. Nickerson is the Canadian National Railway telegraph operator and also acts in the capacity of station agent.

Saturday is Tan Day for the G.W.V.A. Aid French Widows and Children and Local Funds.

The delayed tag day will be held on Saturday next when poppies will be given to all who donate to the G.W.V.A. funds. It is a worthy object and doubtless will be well supported. The French widows and orphans, who made the poppies, will benefit as well as the G.W.V.A. relief fund. The collection will be taken by the L.O.D.E. aided by a number of school girls.
