Highest Prices of Season Paid For Halibut Here During Past Week—Halibut Livers Profitable—Ketchikan Out of Halibut Picture

During the week ending yesterday highest prices of the season for halibut were paid on the Prince Rupert Fish Exchange. The week's business was featured by very gratifying prices, more particularly for American fish. For the week the high bid for American fish was 12.4c and 4c which the Charlotte received for 6,500 pounds. The low price of the week for American fish was 4c and 2c which the Leviathan was paid for 26,000 pounds. There was only one catch bought at this low price, the general average for the week being a great deal higher than this. For Canadian fish the high price of the week was 8c and 4c, which the Tramp received for 9,500 pounds, the low price of the week being 5.90 and 3c which the Helen II and Toodie were paid for catches of 16,500 and 10,000 pounds respectively.

Landings for the week totaled 453,500 pounds of which 120,000 pounds was from Canadian vessels and 453,500 pounds from American. The total landings for the season up to and including September 30 were 12,298,500 pounds, consisting of 3,745,750 pounds Canadian and 8,552,800 pounds American fish, as compared with a total of 14,012,340 pounds for the 1931 season up to a similar date which figure was made up of 5,300,900 pounds Canadian fish and 8,711,440 pounds American.

Official figures issued by the chief supervisor of fisheries for the Pacific Coast indicate that the salmon packing for the 1932 season up to September 17 had further built up its lead over 1931, the total pack for the coast up to that date being placed at 925,690 cases this year as compared with 625,394 cases at the nearest corresponding date last year.

Per varieties, the pack for the coast this year was as follows, figures for 1931 also being shown for comparison:

	Cases 1932	Cases 1931
Sockeye	269,300	267,810
Springs	68,385	25,980
Steelheads	973	1,189
Bluebacks	25,757	24,768
Cohoés	121,958	60,657
Pinks	214,258	198,361
Chums	225,059	46,649

Per district, the pack this year and last:

Fraser River	143,389	88,574
Naas River	79,052	14,674
Skeena River	223,322	173,543
Rivers Inlet	70,836	76,517
Smith's Inlet	26,362	13,915
Central Area	248,252	126,834
Q.C. Islands	6,851	6,187
District No. 3	127,626	125,050

Rising like Phoenix from his ashes, Einer Solem, whose little restaurant on the waterfront near Manson Way was recently burned out, is having the place rebuilt and expects are long to be open for business again. He is being congratulated upon his enterprise and many friends will wish him success in his renewed business.

According to word received from the Queen Charlotte Islands, coho trolling on Skidegate Bar has been very poor and the fish small. No large catches are reported. Throughout the district, trolling seems to be falling off.

The fact that the halibut catch in District No. 2, from Willapa Harbor to Cape Spencer, had reached 18,343,000 pounds on Sept. 1, or only 4,157,000 pounds short of the quota set for the season with heavy fall fishing impending, has been explained as being the actual factor in the decision of the International Fisheries Commission to order fishing stopped in this area on October 22 instead of continuing until November 1, the regularly set date for the 1932-33 close season. Practically all the Canadian boats and many of the American vessels are affected by the order. With the catch in District No. 3, from Cape Spencer to the Aleutian Islands, where many of the larger American vessels operate, reaching only 14,228,000 lbs. up to September 1, there appeared little if any likelihood that the quota of 23,500,000 lbs would be reached, so the fishing season will remain open in the westward area until Nov. 1. The close season will end on January 15 instead of February 15 next year.

Halibut livers, formerly considered offal of the fish, have, it is estimated, brought more than $20,000 to fishermen of the British Columbia coast this year. After careful experiments and investigations, drug companies of North America last year learned that vitamin content of the halibut liver was equal or superior to cod liver oil and so informed fishing interests of this coast. As a result, the fishermen have all season been turning in the livers with their catches. This additional revenue, it is estimated, meant $20 to $40 more for each boat, the liver averaging as about two per cent. of each fish. Fishermen receive 14c a pound for the livers. Halibut livers from Prince Rupert are handled by the Booth Fisheries in co-operation with the Bacon Fisheries.

For the first time since 1915, halibut prices on the Seattle market recently slipped below 4c per lb. for first class fish. Incidentally landings at Seattle for the month of August, amounting to 2,885,000 pounds, constituted the second largest monthly deliveries since 1915, having been surpassed only by the 2,938,350 pounds landed there in March of this year.

With only one company buying halibut at Ketchikan at present, the Alaskan port recently has not been figuring as much of a factor in halibut landings on this coast. During August only 181,900 pounds in all were landed at Ketchikan, the only producers there being small boats of the local fleet. Vancouver handled only 115,000 pounds of halibut in August. Landings at either Ketchikan or Vancouver for the whole month amounted merely to what Prince Rupert would consider a fair day's business. Practically the entire halibut production is being handled now by Seattle and Prince Rupert.

Trans-Atlantic Traveller
Having already made two crossings of the "Big Pond," Bill Bacon, son of Jim Bacon, pioneer fish curer of Prince Rupert, is now on his third trans-Atlantic voyage, according to word which has been received at his home here. By the time his journeyings are over, he will indeed be an experienced trans-Atlantic traveller. Having left Prince Rupert on August 19 for the Old Country, Bill sailed two or three weeks later from Quebec aboard the steamer Empress of Britain on the same voyage as Capt. James Mollison, noted British aviator, returned to the Old Land, following his trans-Atlantic flight. It appears that some formality in regard to Bill's passport had been overlooked before embarkation at Quebec with the result that, after some journeyings around between France, Germany and England, Bill, having been denied a landing at Southampton, had to return all the way to Quebec. The detail in connection with the passport having been arranged, Bill sailed again yesterday afternoon from Quebec and this time will, no doubt, reach his destination without further complications. While the situation might prove embarrassing to some, we can imagine that Bill will be getting a real "kick" out of it and will fully enjoy three Atlantic crossings where he had expected there would only be one. Bill will visit with relatives in England and will also inspect fish processing operations on the east coast of Scotland. He may be away six months and it may be two years.
