Drought and Hot Summer Caused Glaciers and Snowfields to Melt Unusually Much.

GENEVA, Dec. 29.—The long drought and the long hot summer this year caused the glaciers and the snowfields to melt so much that bodies of climbers have been found who have been lost for many years. In some cases all hope of ever finding them had been abandoned. At Zermatt it is even hoped that the remains of Lord Frederick Douglas, who was killed on July 11, 1865, during Whymper's first ascent of the Matterhorn, may now be discovered. It will be remembered that during the descent of the Matterhorn on that occasion Mr. Hadow, the Rev. Charles Hudson, the guide, Michel Croz, and Lord Frederick Douglas were all killed, and that the bodies of the three first-named were recovered but not that of Lord Frederick Douglas. It was assumed that he fell some 6,000 feet on to the glacier below, where he may very well have fallen into a crevasse.

Missing 18 Years. Recently the body of Josef Tressch, belonging to a well-known family of Swiss guides, was found at the foot of the Kliserstock, in the Gotthard range, after he had been missing for eighteen years. The remains of a Swiss school teacher, who disappeared in the accident towards the end of 1914 in the Piz Languard range (Grisons), have also been found, after seven years. Bodies of other long lost tourists and climbers have been found not in the Swiss Alps alone, but in the French Alps and in Tyrol.

In the opinion of Alpine guides and climbers, if this winter is as snowless as the last, then next summer it should be possible to discover all the bodies of persons who have disappeared in years gone by on glaciers and snowfields. As yet, the mountains have been merely powdered with snow, whereas generally the first heavy snowfalls have occurred by this time.

SERBIA IS NOW DISEASE FREE

Great Improvement in Many Respects in the Little Kingdom.

NISB, Jugoslavia, Dec. 29.—(By The Associated Press)—Serbia today is practically free of epidemics of disease. The population never enjoyed better health or more genuine contentment. The hospitals never held fewer patients. The death-rate seldom has been lower. Doctors have rarely found it so difficult to make a living. This is regarded as remarkable in view of the fearful scourges which claimed half its population during the world war and the post-armistice period.

The correspondent, who visited Serbia at irregular intervals during 1918, 1919 and 1920, recently made another journey through the country. He noted an amazing change in the appearance of the people. The men and women looked strong, vigorous and well-fed. They wore the finest homespun clothing. The children were fat, rosy-cheeked and full of life. The babies were plump, bright-eyed and smiling. All were warmly clad. Everywhere the homes were examples of cleanliness, comfort and abundance.

No such picture could be found in Serbia in years previous. In 1918, for example, when the armistice mercifully intervened and saved Serbia from extinction, the correspondent saw men and women clad in rags, afflicted with disease, homeless and hopeless, dying of inanition as they walked. He observed babies wrapped in empty flour sacks, in newspapers, and even in pieced-together leavers, life bones showing through their frail little bodies for want of sustenance or as a result of disease. He visited hospitals packed with typhus-ridden patients; orphanages overflowing with parentless children; asylums crowded with the feeble-minded and distracted.

Complete Recovery. But Serbia of 1921, or Jugoslavia, as it is more correct to call it, presents a different scene. The country has emerged from those years of misery, want and woe in almost miraculous fashion. It is a changed nation, not merely politically and territorially, but physically and spiritually. While the rest of the world has been squabbling over territorial boundaries, economic zones, reparations, indemnities and internal strife, Jugoslavia has been "sawing wood" and minding her own business.
