WOULD REMEDY THE SMOKE NUISANCE

OTTAWA, April 9.—One suggestion to remedy the smoke nuisance and a means of overcoming the loss of by-products of raw bituminous coal is contained in the latest bulletin of the Conservation Commission. It quotes Joseph E. Progne as saying that the waste occasioned by the firing of raw bituminous coal in the U.S., including the loss of by-products and the damage by smoke, might be represented by an assessment of $150 on every family. The suggestion is the establishment of central coking plants near cities. The value of benzol, tar, ammonia and gas lost through the burning of raw coal is enormous. Coke is said to be equal to anthracite coal and holds heat as well, while its smokelessness renders it equal to bituminous coal and requires no special appliances.

HERB REMEDY DOES WONDERFUL WORK

Private Prescription of Scotch Herbalist Has Brought Relief to Thousands.

A wonderful testimony of the merit of Wonder Health Restorer, the great herb remedy sold by the Prince Rupert Drug Co., has just been received. On the advice of a Vancouver physician Mr. Golding, now residing in Calgary, took Wonder Health Restorer for a case of Asthma from which he had been suffering for years and for which the best physicians on two continents could give him nothing that would give permanent relief. He writes that after brief treatment he is free from the trouble and has gained 17 lbs. "This," he says, "is the only time I have been absolutely free from the distressing disease since June, 1915."

NEW OIL TOWN NEAR SWANSEA

Great Prosperity Comes to District from Installation of Refinery

LONDON, April 9.—Renewed attention has just been called to the romantic story of the great industrial development in South Wales, a land of romance in industry, by the building of a new £7,000,000 "oil town" near Swansea, where vast oil refineries have been constructed.

The site of the new enterprise for the refining of oil brought there from the Persian Gulf is Skewen, between Neath and Swansea with homes for a population of 1,500 workers.

There within a boundary wall 15 miles in circumference a great oil company has built a new town, including stores, canteens, a post-office and, in fact, almost every adjunct for the comfort and convenience of the workers and their families who are to inhabit the place.

The undertaking is described as amongst the largest and most ambitious ever known even in South Wales where the great advances in industry have yielded more fortunes than in any part of the United Kingdom.

Magician's Wand

The town sprang into existence as if by a magician's wand on an arid waste, lying in a hollow basin surrounded by small hills. It is about 400 acres in extent and about five miles from Swansea. Towering tanks each capable of holding 1,000,000 gallons of oil now rear their heads above the village and at Swansea great docks and reservoirs have been constructed to receive the ships with their oil from the Persian fields and other oil-bearing regions of the Near East. As received, the oil will be pumped through pipes from Swansea through the new refining town and after refinement will be returned over the same route to Swansea for worldwide distribution.

This inaugurates an industry in South Wales which it is predicted will add new wealth to that already prosperous region.

SCOTCH HERRING INDUSTRY RESTRICTED

LONDON, April 9.—A joint committee, representing the Scotch and English herring industry, has drafted a plan under which this season's cure is not to exceed 900,000 barrels, of which Scotland will furnish about 500,000 barrels and England the remainder.

The catch will be restricted. When a Scotch steamer drifter has earned $5,500 it will cease fishing. Scotch motor drifters will stop when their earnings reach $1,150. At Yarmouth and Lowestoft steam drifters will also continue fishing after earning $6,500, and motor craft on earning $5,000.

The project is dependent on a grant of $2,875,000 being made by the government, failing which, it is declared by those who have devised it, "the industry must come crashing to an end and ruin and unemployment will follow in the coast ports dependent on the herring fishery."

PIONEER HERE FOR 13 YEARS

Arthur Little has Weathered the Storms and is in Smooth Waters

There was a cool North wind swooping off Mount Moose bringing occasional flurries of snow on to what little there was of Prince Rupert thirteen years ago today when the old reliable Camosun warped into the small T dock and a man of middle height, middle aged, thick set and cheerful countenance disembarked.

He carried no baggage, but under his arm there was a wad of Vancouver papers. He watched the ship's derrick remove three boxes containing apples, oranges and candies from the hold. With the assistance of a couple of longshoremen he took these boxes to the wharf shed, opened them and Little's new stand was established.

Unbounded Optimism

There was Arthur Little's worldly wealth—a few oranges, apples, candies and newspapers. But he had something else and that was unbounded optimism and a cheery good nature. The optimism has not waned, and the good nature has endeared him to most every man, woman and child in Prince Rupert and he has been successful too.

The row of boxes shortly grew into a good sized stand on Centre Street and with the removal of squatters from railway reserve, Arthur Little moved up town to his present location on Third Avenue, later opening again at the waterfront in the steamship waiting room.

His Bank Roll

The bank roll, according to all reports, has also grown. The first May 21 that the "old man" was here, a canvasser came a-come, and asked him for a donation towards a celebration and he put his hand in his pocket and drew out a $5 bill—it was all the money he had. But there was a record day's business that celebration and there have been many good ones since, saying nothing of the dull ones. And on May 1st of that year he had the post-office and he will see where nickels have constantly dropped for a decade or more, until now, with opportunities well taken it is likely that almost any bank in the city would loan him his check well into the five figures.

Arthur Little has weathered the storms and has made good not only financially but socially. He has been the host for the village parliament for the past thirteen years, but if you notice he seldom takes the floor. However, he has sized the most of Rupert's citizens up, even if he did not hear everything that was said. If Arthur Little is prepared to recommend a man in this town that man must be all right.

And every body has a good word for Arthur Little, too. It is a mighty recent comer here who has not become acquainted with him and learned to like him. That cheery word and that readiness to do a favor has made him, perhaps, Prince Rupert's best liked man and if there was a popularity contest, Arthur Little was voted it. "The industry must come crashing to an end and ruin and unemployment will follow in the coast ports dependent on the herring fishery."

Good Wishes
He has been here thirteen years.

today and everyone hopes that it will be here another thirteen years, say, for what would Prince Rupert be without Arthur Little. There is no man or woman in the city who could so ill afford to lose and certainly no one would be more missed generally. So, Mr. Little, you have pulled through the thirteen years, we wish you luck in many more to come.

CANADIAN NATIONAL PALATIAL OFFICES

Victoria is Lucky City to Secure Splendor of Equipment

The Canadian National Railways yesterday took possession of the new offices of the company on Government Street with the shifting of the freight officials from the former premises on Fort Street, says the Victoria Colonist. The process of gathering the various departments to the central location that has now been established will go ahead, and the passenger department will be installed in the splendidly-equipped new quarters as soon as possible.

The entire building has been taken over by the C.N.R., and the work of refitting and remodeling both upper and lower floors has been going on for some time. The termination of the old offices is witnessing the installation of the Canadian National Railways into one of the most palatial office buildings in the city, outdoing in splendor and equipment, it is claimed, the premises of the company in every other coast city.

Read the Advertisements.

The publishers of this paper draw your attention to the advertising columns, and particularly to the advertisements of the local merchants.

These merchants have invested their money in goods to satisfy the needs and desires of us all.

Their enterprise is a distinct service to our community. For this reason we should buy from them to the best of our ability and in so far as our needs and judgment of value dictates.

Then, too, the general commodities advertised in our columns are worthy of consideration. It is desirable that readers should ask merchants to supply advertised goods wherever possible. By doing so the cycle of trade is kept alive and inter-community commerce stimulated. We repeat—read the advertisements.
