THIEVES HOLD HIGH REVEL

Evidences of Celebration In Cellar of Wine Merchant; Stocking Left.

LONDON, July 12.—A raid was made by thieves late on Saturday night on the premises of Hedges and Butler, wine merchants, at Heddon Street, W. The men who apparently entered by forcing a side window, stayed some time, opening carefully selected expensive bottles of wine and whiskey, and boxes of cirags and cigarettes.

Traces of their midnight carousal were found on Monday morning in an office in the wine celler, where four empty bottles, in which had been Melnotte, and two others, which had contained respectively Pomeroy and the best Scotch whisky, with many cigar stumps and cigarette-ends, were found on the floor. On the table were three glasses, which had been used. A jemmy was also found, and on a desk, a silk stocking. It is thought that the stocking may have been used by the man who handled the jemmy, so that no finger-prints might be left, or possibly to prevent noise.

The thieves took away several dozen bottles of wine and whisky, and boxes of choice cigars, in all about £200 worth. They attempted to open the safes, but succeeded only in taking copper coin from a till.

BOOKLETS DEALING CANADIAN NATIONAL AND NORTHRN B. C.

Two interesting booklets issued by the Canadian National Railways are to hand, "Across Canada,' 'the "National Way" and "Playgrounds of British Columbia and the Pacific Northwest." These are very creditable publications and should do a good deal to advertise the railway and the country through which it operates.

In these publications Prince Rupert is much better treated than in former similar works. The map in one of them shows no descrimination between this port and any other and the amount of descriptive matter is liberal. To those who dreamt of a great transcontinental railway for the north, however, it is anything but pleasing to find practically the whole of the larger book devoted to a trip from Halifax to Vancouver, with Pri Halifax to Vancouver, with Prince Rupert and most of northern British Columbia put in as somewhat of an addenda.

The booklet on the playgrounds explains that tickets may be purchased by way of Prince Rupert and there are illustrations of scenes at Lakelse, the Bulkley, Kitwanga, Lake Kathlyn and the Skeena as well as of the steamers, with one scene of the inside passage. On the whole the North is treated well in this booklet.

POSTAGE CHANGE ON OLD COUNTRY LETTERS

Those who get letters from the old country will have begun to note a difference in the stamps. Instead of the old penny stamp there are now two with three halfpence for each additional ounce. The only rate to remain unchanged is the magazine post which charges a penny for six ounces.

BOARD OF TRADE EXCURSIONIST IS ARRESTED IN SOUTH

Detective Alet. Lawrence of the Alberta Provincial Police arrived in Vancouver last week to take to Edmonton E. L. Janney, who was arrested on a charge of getting money under false pretenses.

Captain Janney will be well remembered in Prince Rupert for he was one of the members of the Vancouver Board of Trade party who made the excursion here early last month. Dressed up as a policeman he was seen on the local streets as well as at other points the party visited. Instead of returning south with his party he stopped off here and later visited Stewart and Terrace.

Janney was the first man from Vancouver to enlist in the Air Force and after an adventurous service he returned to B.C. where he was engaged in promoting an aerial company to fly to Fort Norman to carry passengers and trade in furs.

He is charged now with having issued checks without having money in the bank and his arrest was made on information from Edmonton. Several prominent business men of Kerrisdale and Vancouver are said to hold Captain Janney's checks. He absolutely denies the charge preferred against him, claiming that it is merely made in an effort to collect debts through the police court.

Friends of Captain Janney—and they are legion in Vancouver—state that if there is anything wrong they are satisfied that it is his war experiences that are responsible.
