DAILY EDITION December 6, 1921

Liberals and The Campaign.

The Liberals have been conducting an election campaign for the past five or six weeks, and they can congratulate themselves on the manner in which they have carried it out in this constituency. They have in every case treated the opposition with consideration and have again and again refused to bring forward matters which might have been personally offensive to the other candidate. This is in line with the best traditions of the party. It is better to go down to defeat with clean hands than to win a campaign of which not only the party but the whole country is ashamed.

The Liberals expect to win in this constituency, but if by the fortunes of war they should lose they will have nothing to regret. They have fought for the cause they believed was deserving to win and believing the people were willing to back such a cause.

No Complaint of Other Side.

In regard to the other side there is little of which to complain. Perhaps the most objectionable feature was the Collart telegram, which had all the appearance of trying to use undue influence to weaken the forces of the opposing side. Good influences have undoubtedly been at work to temper the language of some of the backers of Colonel Peck, an influence which is bound to prevail in the long run, for gutter language never helps any cause. It causes amusement in some quarters and disgust in others. That there was a steady improvement as the campaign advanced was very evident and will make for a better feeling throughout the community. It is time we got away from village politics and village pettiness, and the campaign which has just concluded is an indication that we are en route to something better.

Curious Differences in Liberal Policy.

People here must have been struck by the different brands of Liberalism set forth by different speakers and writers. At the meeting last night in the Westholme Theatre W. E. Williams spoke most emphatically against government ownership of railways, yet government ownership of railways is an accomplished fact and there is little chance of their ever being turned back to a private party. No matter what may be our opinions, the railways will be conducted by the nation in the interests of the nation. Mackenzie King is pledged to this course of action and will undoubtedly carry it out.

We mention this to show that in Liberalism there is no such thing as a definite hard and fast set policy. There is much latitude for the expression of opinion. Now and then the views of the people are crystallized on one or two outstanding reforms that are necessary and other minor matters are forgotten. There are always, however, in the party, people with advanced ideas and those who are inclined to hold back. In the most radical are often phases of retroaction. We move forward little by little and not all at once. There is also the backwash of Toryism that moves us back from time to time, not to the old starting point, but just far enough to make us anxious to consolidate our positions and strive for the next goal.

World Generally Moving Forward.

The armament conference, the long drawn out Irish negotiations and dozens of other examples of advancement are before us. We see the world steadily changing its viewpoint. Now and then there is a wave of extreme radicalism, as there was two years ago in Canada, which was a protest against the retrogressive policy of the Government. It is almost impossible for such a movement to take place during Liberal administration, and yet there is more real progress from Liberal administration than from the progressive protests during the reactionary periods.

The rule of progress has been for the radicals to blaze the way, and often to suffer for being pioneers. At any rate, they are sure to bear the scoffs of the more careful but less energetic. University students are apt to be very radical, for they have plenty of idealism and energy but no responsibility. As people get older they sober down and tend to become conservative, especially if they should be burdened with much of this world's wealth.

Older people are apt to look with horror on the prospect of political or economic changes, for it might mean that they would have to alter their mode of life should the theories of the radicals become effective. On the whole, however, everything is working out well, and no matter what our attitude, progress is being made all along the line and generations to come should benefit materially from the progress that is being made today.

THE HORRORS OF INDIGESTION

Relieved by "Fruit-a-tives"
 the Fruit Medicine

Indigestion, Weak Digestion or partial digestion of food, is one of the most serious of present-day complaints—because it is responsible for many serious troubles.

Those who suffer with Indigestion, almost invariably are troubled with Rheumatism, Polipitation of the Heart, Sleeplessness and excessive Nervousness. "Fruit-a-tives" will always relieve Indigestion because these tablets strengthen the stomach muscles, increase the flow of the digestive juices and correct Constipation, which usually accompanies Indigestion.

 TO AUDIENCE

Colonel Peck Was Bright Spot
 in Otherwise Dull Meeting.

The last meeting of the campaign was held last evening in the Empress Theatre by Colonel Peck's committee. D. G. Stewart, president, Scotty Dennis, Rev. Jas. Evans of Smithers, Major McGregor, V.C., and Frank Salter were on the platform supporting Colonel Peck. Of these the Rev. Mr. Evans was the strongest speaker, but as he commenced his argument with the wrong premises, he came to the wrong conclusions right along.

Colonel Peck had travelled far during this campaign and was tired. Still, he lightened an otherwise dull evening with many flashes of unobscured humor, which his audience was not slow to take up. They enjoyed his colloquialisms to the full. The political part of his address was largely taken up in reading the current number of the Daily News.

The meeting closed shortly after half past ten.

LAD AT CEDARDALE WAS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT AND KILLED

Bernard Peacock, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Peacock, of Cedardale, was accidentally shot and killed yesterday when a .22 rifle, with which he and his brother, Robert, were playing, went off. A wire to this effect was received by the provincial police yesterday afternoon.

The parents of the dead boy are both in town at present.

ELKS' MINSTREL SHOW IS COMING

Big Event to Be Staged on Wednesday Evening of Next Week.

You have heard about "the thrill that comes once in a lifetime" in moving pictures, in the newspapers and in the spoken word. You will get it next Wednesday evening if you attend the Westholme Theatre. When the curtain goes up and the interlocutor of the Elks' Minstrel show says, "Gentlemen be seated" there will begin one of the best shows that has ever been put together by any local group of artists or entertainers. Then you will get "the thrill that comes once in a lifetime."

The Elks' Christmas Cheer Committee has spared no expense, time or trouble to give the public the best obtainable and they trust, although last year's performance was commented on for its success, that that this year's will be far superior in every respect.

The Minstrels.
 There will be twelve minstrels, an orchestra of eleven minstrels, specially minstrels, minstrel artists, music, songs and jokes that will give many a laugh and chase dull care away.

The program will be the largest and best ever handed to patrons of the Westholme Theatre. It will contain twenty-two pages and, in itself, will be a souvenir well worth keeping.

Between the first and second-parts specialties will be given. They will consist of a saxophone quartette, illustrated song, stringed instrument quartette and a Hebrew act by one of the "Brother Bils."

Plantation Scene.
 A "Plantation Scene" will constitute the second and last part of the program and two or three of Prince Rupert's lady Elks artists will be specialized. The entire company will take part in this scene both individually and collectively and it will be a real old time production.

The evening's entertainment will be brought to a close with the singing of a medley of songs by the entire company.

The proceeds of the show will go towards the Christmas Cheer fund to provide sunshine on Christmas Day for the mothers and kiddies of Prince Rupert who are not blessed with an abundance of the world's goods. It will be distributed irrespective of whether the receivers are Elks families or not.

SUGGESTION MADE TO MUNICIPALITIES
 UNION BY COUNCIL

The city clerk is to write to the secretary of the Union of B. C. Municipalities suggesting that the Union consider the inaugurating of a more satisfactory follow-up system so as to allow the municipalities to know more of what work was being done especially in regard to negotiations between the Union and the legislature. If present finances did not allow for that then the dues of the municipalities might be increased. A motion embodying these suggestions was presented by Ald. Perry at the council meeting last night. It was seconded by Ald. Dybhavn and was passed unanimously.
