IN THE LETTER BOX

HOOMES K. LOOKS BACK.

Editor Daily News:

Looking back on the past seven years can you see any improvement in government? Is it not true that all the traditions of the Anglo-Saxon have been thrown aside. The old ideals of individual liberty have once more commenced to rear their heads in the circles of restrictive legislation. Looking back on the prohibition law does it seem absurd that we would ask the police to be honest in their enforcement when the bootlegger is in a position to outbid our price? One-half of our population said with their votes and their mouths that they wanted prohibition and nine-tenths of this half said with their money that they wanted liquor. We now have a system of special privileges or licenses. The architects are licensed. The result is the Booth School scandal to commemorate the glorious death of one of our heroes who fought for liberty. The Sophia disaster, with the greatest number of certified officers ever in a wreck, is before us as a monument to those who served in our navy to prevent verboten being written on our crest. Everywhere, while the "boys" over yonder wrote their names in the history of liberty, we who stayed behind in smug hypocrisy threw liberty in the discard and issued special privileges to those who were too proud to fight and too base to earn. The time has now come when we can and shall demand our old liberties, when once more we can claim and I hope secure equal rights for all; when we shall insist that no more special privileges be granted.

Every Canadian has an equal right to engage in any business, without seeking permission or paying graft. Eat, drink and be merry. Those who wish to deny this right are not good citizens.

HOOMES K. FREEMAN.
