It was reported at last night's council meeting that the street surfacing on Third Avenue between McBride and Second Streets was not really finished yet and further work to be done could not be classed as extra work but simply part of the process adopted. The cost of finishing these two blocks will be 12c per square yard.

Munro is now chief on the Prince George and William Baillie on the Prince Rupert.

Difficulties in the public works department were brought to the city council last night in the form of a report indicating that the city engineer was really the public works superintendent. The report from the Board of Works recommending the purchase of a 1-ton truck chassis for the public works department was referred to the finance committee by the council last night.
