Spasmodic Enforcement Of Criminal Laws

The spasmodic enforcement of laws is not good for any country. To allow people to break laws for months and then to make a raid of a spectacular nature is not in the interests of good government. Yesterday a number of local citizens were before the courts for offenses which seem to have been openly condoned. For months beer has been sold more or less openly and there seemed to be no attempt to stop it. Then there is a spectacular raid and Prince Rupert gets the name of being a law-breaking place, which it evidently is, judging by the number of men and women haled into court at one time. It was by just such action that the prohibition law was brought into disrepute and the moderation law for which such a large majority of the people voted, is being discredited by laxity in enforcement.

If it is the will of the people to have open selling of liquor and beer, then pass a law to that effect and make everything open. If, on the other hand, it is the will of the people that there shall be restrictions on the sale of liquor and beer, then the law to that effect should be enforced, not spectacularly in occasional raids, but all the time.

If Some Can Sell
So Should Others.

The point of view of those engaged in the business is reasonable. They say they saw others selling with impunity and no steps being taken by the authorities to stop them. Then why should not they do it? Would it be reasonable to allow a dozen people to make money from the trade while others refrained? "Enforce the law and we will all abide by it," was the expression of one violator. All they ask is an equal break with the others.

Laws Become Inoperative.

In Britain and in this country laws are often allowed to become inoperative rather than repealed. Take as an instance that occurs at the moment, the law against the use of salmon eggs as bait in trout fishing. That is illegal, yet its provisions are never enforced. The law against shooting from a launch had not been enforced until very recently in this part of the country. In England the extension of the Truck Act to farmers was never enforced. Here it looked as if the selling of beer in clubs was not being enforced. Then sudden activity occurs and men are haled into court for doing what has been more or less openly allowed for some time.

Take another instance, that of the export liquor law and the right for local people to purchase liquor from local dealers. The business has been carried on so openly that it has been looked upon almost as a legal business. Many local citizens never thought of going to the vendor for their supplies because they could get it cheaper from export houses. Then comes the strong arm of the law, and it is found that men are implicated who would not have been so if the law had been enforced throughout.

TEACHERS AT HOME TO FRIENDS LAST NIGHT AT DE LUXE

Enjoyable Time Spent With Trustees, Officials and Others as Guests

Last evening the teachers of the city were at home to their friends in the De Luxe Hall, the event having been arranged by the local Teachers' Association and the school trustees and officials were invited to be present. The hall was very tastefully decorated with Halloween emblems such as black cats, witches, pumpkins and full moons. Each guest on arrival was presented with a paper cap made by the teachers to match with the general scheme of decorations. Hidden in each hat was a charm written in verse.

Court whist was the amusement of the evening and there were violin solos by C. Woodworth accompanied by Miss London, which were much enjoyed.

Following the games refreshments were served and short addresses were given by Principal Brady of the High School and Dr. W. T. Kerzin, chairman of the school board. Mr. Brady spoke appreciatively of the work done by Mrs. Ling as trustee, a lady who had formerly been a teacher and who now was leaving. Dr. Kerzin spoke for the board of trustees and mentioned the keen interest the board took in the welfare of the teachers and in their work. He was glad to meet them on that occasion and thanked them for the opportunity. He thought it would be bitter if they met oftener. He also spoke of the loss the board would sustain in the departure of Mrs. Ling.

The room was cleared of tables and a short dance closed a most enjoyable event.

TERRACE, Oct. 28.—The first meeting of the Terrace Welfare League was held in the Presbyterian Church Tuesday night. It had been well advertised by a variety of striking posters and was very well attended.

After the opening exercises the life of John the Baptist was studied for a short time. A varied program followed then, in which a number of new artists took part. The rest of the evening was spent in old fashioned games and refreshments were served by the ladies. The evening was a splendid success and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

WONDERS NEVER CEASE

The wonderful success of the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal has been more marked year by year continuously for half a century. There are households literally by tens of thousands all over Canada where for thirty, forty and fifty years the Family Herald has not only been a welcome weekly guest, but one indispensable to the home life. The success of the Family Herald of Montreal has been so conspicuous and so overwhelming that Publishers everywhere refer to it as a phenomenal journal. The price of subscription to it looks ridiculously small when the wonderful contents of the paper are considered. Those who do not know it can, we understand, have a sample copy free by writing to its Publishers, Montreal.

OF FOOTBALL TEAM

Sons and Daughters of England
Held Delightful Affair Last Night—Presentation
to Dave Wiggins

The Sons and Daughters of England entertained delightfully at a very enjoyable whist drive and dance last night in honor of the lodge's football team. The affair took place in the Knights of Pythias hall and there were about 120 persons present.

The winners at the twenty tables of whist were Mrs. B. McDaniel and Sam Wood, first prizes, and Mrs. H. H. Hemming and George Howe, seconds. Balagno's orchestra provided the music for the dance which continued until an early hour this morning. Delightful refreshments were served in the course of the evening.

A special feature of the proceedings was the presentation to Dave Wiggins of a handsome gold and pearl stickpin as a mark of appreciation of his services with the football club during the season. F. J. Fuller made the presentation on behalf of the club, of which he is president, with a suitable speech.

D. J. Cook was master of ceremonies and those in charge at the door were B. Yates and B. Fenning. The ladies' committee comprised Mrs. Joe Howe, convener, Mrs. H. H. Hemmings, Mrs. George Leek, Mrs. D. J. Cook, Mrs. R. Boulter and Mrs. H. Whatman, Joe Howe, convener, P. Cameron, Frank Vickers, C. L. Barker, R. Yates, Dave Wilton and B. Fenning made up the gentlemen's committee.

This is the last S. O. E. event to take place in the old hall as the lodge is moving before November 1, into the Emad Block.

To show you how the "local enterprises" are operated to assist the settlers, I wish to draw your attention to the fact that the Massett Timber Co., after telling me and others that they wished to purchase local products exclusively if Vancouver prices plus added freight charges (L.B.
