MILITARY SERVICE ACT IS DEAD, SAY GOVERNMENT LEADERS

OTTAWA, April 4.—The debate opened by William Irvine, labor member for Calgary, brought the declaration that the Military Service Act, 1917, is dead and its repeal is not necessary. Premier King and Mr. Lemieux both said that the act was dead and the debate unnecessary. Mr. Meighen complained that the act had been made a weapon against Conservatives in the election when the Liberals knew the act was dead.
