Mudania Convention Has Been Signed.

The signing of the Mudania convention is a great relief. While the possibility of trouble is not wholly averted yet, the prospects are that there will be peace and that Europe will be able to proceed with the program of reconstruction, a most difficult task.

Beware Of Fake Investment Schemes.

Prince Rupert has been flooded with circulars designed to get from them good Canadian dollars in exchange for useless paper marks. In any arguments that are used to push the sale of German securities it must be remembered that while currency has often been debased, there never before has been a time when any country counted on paying all its debts by printing millions of paper notes. This has been done by Russia, Germany and Austria with fatal results. There seemed at first to be a temporary advantage but now there is so much paper money in circulation that it has become valueless in trade with other countries and even for home use it is almost useless. There is so much of it that the government cannot hope to redeem it.

There are plenty of good investments that may be made or if lighter speculation is desired, there is mining and oil stock that may bring big returns even if the security is not very good. To send the cash to Germany to buy money that is valueless is like throwing it into the sea. The gambler should at any rate have something approaching an even chance of winning.

Bulkley Beef Controversy.

Considerable controversy has been raised over Bulkley beef and the ability of the farmers to kill and dress it properly. The matter seems likely to be settled by the big dealers purchasing the cattle on the hoof and dressing it here. That seems to be the logical outcome. The ordinary farmer has no facility for killing and he has not served an apprenticeship to the trade.

The vital thing is that the farmer shall find a proper market for his stock, and that now seems assured. In the scattered districts of the north, markets are few and it is very desirable that there shall be the most complete co-operation between the dealers in Prince Rupert and the farmers of the interior.

Moderation Over Mining News.

When a prospector goes into the hills and knocks off a chunk of ore that carries high values he usually thinks he has a mine worth one hundred thousand dollars at the least. At any rate he says so and he gets an assay made showing the immense values in the bit of rock. He then expatiates on the thousands of tons of ore exactly like the sample that is in the mine.

People who do not know prospectors are apt to be misled by their enthusiasm. They sometimes are led to invest large sums in what is nothing more than a hole in the ground.

What is needed today is accurate news of the mines and their possibilities. Until a mine is proved it is a prospect. There is nothing to be gained by exaggeration, but often much harm may be done that way. The wonderful output of a mine such as the Premier is romantic enough without telling wild stories about it.

Stewart Does Not Need The Booster.

Stewart mining camp does not need the booster to put it in the prosperous class with all sorts of possibilities. With one mine shipping ore carrying immense values and with others getting out ore in smaller quantities and making a few small shipments, and with the prospects looking extremely good at many of the properties, this place should be a permanent camp and should attract capital from all parts of the world. As a matter of fact it is already doing so.

Ten Years Ago In Prince Rupert

L. Crippen, who returned last evening on the train from a hurried business trip to Hazelton, is most enthusiastic about the progress that has been made the last few months along the line of the G.T.P.

D. McLeod, chief accountant for Foley, Welch & Stewart and well known in this city, arrived on the train last evening and is registered at the G.T.P. Inn.

There will be launched at Terrace within the next few days an addition to the press of Northern B.C. in the shape of a bright and breezy little weekly newspaper to be called the "Skeena Record." The first copy, making its initial bow to the public, will be awaited with interest.

Cyril H. Orme, the pioneer druggist, left on the Prince George this morning on a short business visit to Vancouver and Victoria.

The Man in the Moon SAYS:-

ONE hears a lot about the secret of success. What about the success of secrets?

"ARE tennis shoes unhealthy?" reads a headline. To say the least they do look a bit pale.

THE interior of the house these days looks like another spring cleaning era. Sis is trying to locate her white shoes again.

IF the good weather keeps up the cry of "All aboard for the Salt Lakes" will be heard again.

A STEAM roller has left its home in the Old Country. Probably if it wanders back again all will be forgiven.

WE hear a lot about Angora these days. Isn't that the place where the rabbits come from?

AN optimist is a man who can enjoy eating the skin of a sausage.

OF course you've heard of the Scotchman who magnified a dime and made it look like a dollar piece.

IT is bad manners to hold a loud argument on the street.

LOCAL business must be looking up, judging from the number of presentations made recently.

WHERE to go for the picnic next Sunday. That is the burning question.

IT is pleasant to meet a Stewart man, he is an optimist.

IT is said that a lot of people are too shy to visit Tite's furniture store. The bare legs of the tables and chairs shock them.

NOW then boys, three cheers for Bulkley beef and may we get plenty of it.

NANAIMO is a bad place to visit. Even if you stand behind the butt of a gun you are liable to get shot.

NANAIMO is also worried over Sunday football. If that was all we had to worry about we should be happy here.

ANOTHER difficulty about Nanaimo is that if you go there you are likely to get married. One of Prince Rupert's citizens did it there today.

Fred Bishop, who has been in the city on a business trip for the past two days, returned to Terrace on the train last night.

In the Letter Box

MR. MEIGHEN'S CALL TO ARMS

Editor Daily News:

In the critical period through which we are now passing one reads with interest the extracts from the "Financial Post" and Winnipeg "Free Press" as given in your issue of 4th inst. and there is that in the situation which should cause Canadians to consider before committing themselves to any rash or irrevocable decision.

One thing at least is certain—Canada has no need of a counsellor such as Mr. Meighen to teach her in which direction her duty lies nor has she occasion for heart searching on the question of loyalty to the Motherland. Her part in the Great Crusade is written large on the pages of History and places her for all time beyond and above the cavilling of mere notoriety seeking politicians. And so we may be forgiven if we do not all take Mr. Meighen quite so seriously as he might wish.

But there are other matters which have to be taken into consideration and which may bear considerably on the decision which now lies before the people of this country.

Pseudo-Patriotic

Following the ex-premier's pseudo-patriotic political outburst one is almost impelled to ask whether he is aware that Canada emerging from four years of exhaustive effort and unprecedented drain on her resources, weighted by a huge debt, taxed to the utmost bearable limit is only beginning to struggle back to a normal basis of business prosperity. Are there not enough Canadian graves in Flanders to satisfy Mr. Meighen's idealistic conception of loyalty? Is he aware of the thousands of maimed and crippled human wrecks which still crowd our hospitals and institutions? Is he conscious of the tears—scarce dry on the cheeks of widows and orphans throughout the length and breadth of this land that he so lightly essays to sweep the youth of his country into another inferno the end of which neither he nor his colleagues can possibly foresee?

For loyalty may have its penalties as well as its rewards. Would Mr. Meighen like to learn? Let him go among the loyalists—or rather what is left of them—throughout the south and west of Ireland.

Black Betrayal

When the history of their black betrayal and sufferings comes to be written—as written, some day it will be—Britons throughout the Empire will have cause to hang their heads in shame. For not only were these poor people disarmed—deprived of their only means of defence—but were handed over, bound and helpless to the mercies of their enemies. Their only crime was their loyalty; and they paid for it—in blood and tears—for the ink on the infamous treaty was scarcely dry ere their martyrdom began, and it might be well, at this crisis to bear in mind that the signatures at foot of that treaty which was in reality neither more nor less than the death warrant of many of these unfortunate people, are those of David Lloyd George and Winston Spencer Churchill, these same gentlemen who but a few days ago broadcasted an appeal for aid to the loyalists of the Overseas Dominions.

We have no assurance that the appeals of these martyrs penetrated to the council chamber in Downing Street yet it is possible that they were heard and are on record before a Higher Tribunal than that over which Messrs. Lloyd-George and Churchill preside.

And, hearing these things in mind Canadians may be pardoned if they hesitate at the clamor call so persuasively sounded by Father Wolfe, who has been spending the summer at the coast, returned to the city a few days ago, and left on Thursday last to take charge of the mission at Fort St. James. This mission was opened by Father Wolfe about twelve years ago.

Okanagan apples are being sold by the grocers here as cheaply as they can be had at Vancouver. The growers are determined to keep their home markets, and they are doing so by making prices which outsiders cannot approach.

Work has been commenced on the skating rink, and it is assured by the officials that an excellent open-air rink will be in shape by the time there is sufficient frost to make ice. The grader is being run over the site, and the building of a high board wall will commence this week.

Paddy O'Connell, of Rider, was a business visitor in the city last week.

Terry Johnson left the city last week to resume his studies at the University of Oregon.

Mr. Meighen and pause to weigh carefully the policies of a government which includes among its members such notorious rewarders of loyalty as Lloyd-George and Winston Churchill.

Not Labored in Vain

So, if Mr. Meighen can only succeed to the extent of awakening the people of this Dominion to a sense of their position he will not have labored in vain; for we have it on the authority of those whose experience in such matters ought to be sufficient guarantee, that the Treaty of Versailles with its mandates, concessions and countless intricacies, has forged the most potent weapon for the waging of future wars among the nations of the earth, that the blunderings of statesmen and the greed of politicians could possibly achieve.

Therefore, for this reason alone, it is time that our Government, sweeping aside all secret treaties or commitments affecting the peace and security of this country, insist once and for all on the exercise of the inalienable right of a Free Democracy, that the question of peace or war is one that shall in future be decided solely by the Parliament and the People of Canada.

W. H. Bird, who has charge of the local arrangements in connection with the sawmill which J. D. McArthur proposes for South Fort George, is expected to arrive in the city this week.
