Pulp Company Affairs
Being Straightened Out.

The affairs of the Prince Rupert mill seem likely to be straightened out as a result of the purchase of the assets of the concern by the Prince Rupert Holding Co. Ltd., which was recently organized. This company, it is understood, is controlled by the same interests that formerly held the mill. In addition to the local concern there are some valuable timber limits that will provide a good supply of pulp to keep a mill going for many years. While there is no information available as to the future operations of the company it is hardly likely that the valuable mill property and timber holdings will be allowed to remain idle, especially at a time when there is a demand for paper.

What we all hope, and what is quite within the realms of possibility is that a paper company will be organized to erect a mill here and that one of the water powers of the Ecstall River will be harnessed to supply the whole district, including Prince Rupert with power. This would really mean something in the way of development.

Organizing For Winter Sports.

Organization for winter sports is under way. While there have been many changes in the players, there are still in the city a great many who are interested in athletic games and some excellent sport should be seen. We suggest to the people of the city generally that anything they can do to help on the winter games will be appreciated by the young people and will tend to improve the living conditions in the city. If we are to have a strong virile lot of men we must encourage the games of skill and endurance which develop those qualities.

British And American Politics.

We are all interested in both British and American politics. British politics interest us because we are a part of the British Empire and anything they do in Britain has an influence on us. We are interested in American politics because we are close neighbors and are vitally affected by legislation passed at Washington. It is well for us to study the various political moves in each of these countries and to note particularly their bearing on us and on world problems.

RAIL-ROADED

There's a trick in the game they call "Bumping"
That takes all the joy out of life,
It keeps you continually jumping,
It hurts like the stab of a knife.
For just when you think you are all settled
And plant a garden and crop
Some older man turns up and bumps you
And you hit the ceiling—ker flop!!

I've allus been sort of a bouncer
And many's the job that I've jumped;
But it knocks me flat as a flounder
When I learn I'm gonna be bumped.
I've landed a mighty good position
And wading notions I've dumped,
But my son's in the depth of perdition,
Ye Gods! I'm gonna be humped!!

I leave my goodwill to the bumper,
For bumpin's according to Hoyle,
But it sure puts a guy on the hummer
And makes you sore as a boil.
I'm living in sweet contemplation
But they say you never can tell,
For wonderin' if some guy will bump me
From my seat on the front row in hell.

They've ruined my sweet disposition,
They've killed all my joy in a lump;
I'm left in an awful condition,
My finances suffer a slump.
I'm sittin' right flat on my fanny
And countin' the money I owe—
Guess I'll go back to the army,
That's one place where bumpin' don't go!

The Man in the Moon
SAYS—

IT is a great art to be able to say nothing and say it artistically.

POLITICIANS either Dominion, provincial or civic become adepts at the art.

ONCE a person of the talk a lot and say nothing type broke into verse and here is what he said:

It was midnight on the ocean,
Not a street car was in sight,
The sun was shining brightly,
For it rained all day that night.

'Twas a summer's day in winter,
The rain was snowing fast,
As a barefoot girl with shoes on
Stood sitting on the grass.

It was evening and the rising sun
Was setting in the west,
While the little fishes in the tree
Were cuddled in their nest.

Then the organ peeled potatoes,
Lard was rendered by the choir,
While the sexton rang the dish-rag
Someone set the church afire.

"Holy Smoke," the preacher shouted,
As he madly tore his hair,
Then his head resembled Heaven
There was no parting there.

A SCOTCHMAN who was carrying home two bottles, one for himself and the other for his brother John, fell and broke one. "Poor John," was all he said.

They pass, those laughing girls
Rouged, perfumed, trim,
Eternally alert
To seek some him.

If we talk politics let us talk Scottish politics for a change.
But the north countrymen never waste words even on politics.

IN future Methodist ministers must not smoke. That ends the Church Union controversy.

ANYOX ELKS
FINE CONCERT

About 450 People Attended Event
In Recreation Hall Monday
Night

ANYOX, Oct. 14.—The Anyox Elks excelled themselves on Monday evening at the recreation hall when they put on a grand concert and vaudeville entertainment. The seats were all sold, about 450 people attending. The affair was under the able management of Harry Braithwaite. So many wanted to see the event that it had been decided to repeat it if arrangements can be made. At the close of the entertainment all those who took part or helped in any way were entertained at supper in the Elks' Dugout, about 40 partaking. The program follows:

Program

Overture—Selections by Elks' Orchestra. Messrs. Hessler, piano; Armstrong, banjo; O'Conner, and Overend violin.

Max Morrow and The Rainbow Chorus—It was a beautiful sight when Max and his seven pretty girls appeared, the dresses representing the different colors of the rainbow, the singing and dancing holding the audience spellbound until the act was completed, but they returned twice in response to thunderous encores of the audience.

Dr. Benzol introduced the World Famous Professor Lumbago. This number consisted of a series of tricks with cards and billiard balls. Dr. Benzol explaining that it was due to telepathy. Jimmy Cameron as Prof. Lumbago, Harry Braithwaite as Dr. Benzol, and Al Pound as the Turk who should have been a Hindoo.

Ed. Yard, the well known Anyox entertainer, gave some laughable local information in ducky form, besides a laughing song which was much enjoyed.

Max Morrow and Rainbow Chorus—Another number by these delightful artists. The girls who composed the chorus were Mesdames Davis and Loscke, Mesdames Rosie Moffat, Betty Baxter, Janet Moffat, Pretoria Caine and Margaret Wilson.

Tynemouth and Whittaker, in "Atta Boy, Petey."—Petey was introduced by Tynemouth as the fellow from the farm who knew everything, could do everything, and could drink anything. Petey was surely a wise bird, for he told all about the cats, goats, etc., and a great many other things which caused a roar of laughter from start to finish.

A Close Shave—Time about 6.30 p.m. Scene, Room in Fuller Apartment. Cast, Minnie Fuller, Mrs. Percy Davis; Billy (her brother), a dope fiend, Fred Leggett; Officer O'Hara (a plain clothes man, Harry Chapman; Jake Fuller (a reformed crook), Cy. Greenwell. This was a story of the underworld showing how difficult it is to go straight after having once left the straight path. Mrs. Davis as Minnie Fuller took a difficult path and did it well. The play looked very real, and it surely was a close shave for the Fuller family, the contents of the plain clothes man revealing evidence which cleared the suspects. Harry Chapman, Fred Leggett and Cy. Greenwell performed their parts to perfection. All actors played their various parts well, and Mrs. Davis as Minnie Fuller played her part to perfection.

Behind The Scenes.—A musical farce in one act. The scene represents the back stage in a small town on Monday afternoon. Cast: Solly (the property man), Harry Braithwaite; Manager, Pete Braudson; Madam La La (Grand Opera in a nutshell), Mrs. O. M. Watson; Nelly, Miss Marjorie McDonald; and Maggie, Miss Florrie Eld (the Rickshaw sisters, comedienne and dancers); Voice (the Italian Nightingale), Max Morrow; Hammerstein (conducts the orchestra), Cy. Greenwell. This feature was composed by Mr. Braithwaite and while the name has been used before, the material itself is new, and to say it was good is mild indeed, and as the people of Prince Rupert may have an opportunity to see it, a brief description will suffice. Mr. Braithwaite was a show in himself, but the beautiful singing by Madame Watson took the house by storm. Mr. P. Aivazoff, manager of the Westholme Theatre, journeyed to Anyox to see this show and if the Anyox amateurs can be persuaded to visit Prince
