FORCING TARIFF IN CONGRESS

Warnings Sounded in U. S. Senate Against Carrying Measure Too Far.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—(By Canadian Press)—The conviction is steadily growing in Washington that the United States is faced by another great political upheaval in consequence of the new tariff measure such as the one that followed the enactment of the Payne-Aldrich law in 1909.

Talk of such an upheaval might be dismissed as ill-considered and inconsequential if it came from democrats alone, but such is not the case. Hardly a day passed recently in the tariff debate in the Senate without some Republican of prominence sounding a warning that the excessive rates of duty in the Fordney-McCumber bill is steering for the rocks. Republican Senators such as Lenroot, Kellogg, and even Wadsworth—a conservative Republican from New York—as well as others, have given warning of this character to the high tariff leaders.

It will be recalled that in 1909 thirteen years ago, that the last high tariff law was passed in the United States. This was the Payne-Aldrich law. Its passage was effected by the high tariff leaders in Congress who drove it through regardless of the protests of many Republicans, such as Dooliver, La Follette, Knute Nelson and others. Its passage was followed by the election of a Democratic House in 1910, and two years later by the Democrats capturing the presidency and virtually gaining control of the government. The Democrats then passed the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, a moderate tariff measure, which has survived until this time. It is true an emergency tariff has recently been put on agricultural products.

In this connection, it may be said that the collections of revenue by the government from tariff duties in the fiscal year just closed were the highest on record, showing that the existing tariff law is a long way from being a free trade measure. In fact it is protective and is sufficient to protect the minds of even many Republicans, to say nothing of the Democrats.

Duties Will Be High.
Now, while insurgent republicans in the Senate are protesting against the high rates carried in the Fordney-McCumber bill, and are reducing a few of those rates, it is seemingly certain that the bill as it will finally be passed will contain duties so high in many instances as to be almost prohibitive.

The failure of Senators Lenroot and Wadsworth to bring about reductions in the wool schedule is significant of the fact the high tariff leaders in the Senate finance committee are in the saddle. Almost no hope exists for cutting the rates in the bill in such a way as to meet the wishes of the moderate tariff Republicans.

EUROPE REVERTS TO EXCHANGE OF GOODS

Old Time Method of Doing Business Again in Favor Owing to Currency Difficulties

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Barter, or the exchange of goods, as against the transfer of actual cash has figured in recent international loans, according to the Geneva correspondent of the Observer. In this way the difficulties of exchange have been overcome.

Romania wanted a loan of 45,000,000 gold francs from Switzerland. The Swiss said it was impossible unless they knew how the money was to be spent. Romania replied: "We need to replenish railroad rolling stock, particularly engines."

"Fine," said the Swiss bankers, "we have these for sale. Take them, and pay for them in cereals and petroleum, both of which you produce and we need." Thus were the arrangements concluded.

Similar borrowing and paying by barter also has taken place with Czechoslovakia. Here, again, Czechoslovakia is receiving Swiss manufactured goods and is to pay for them with truck loads of sugar. Therefore the question of exchange and the comparative values of the Czechoslovakian krone and the Swiss franc does not arise.

WOMAN ENGINEER ON BLUE FUNNEL VESSEL

Miss Victoria Drummond Was God Daughter of Late Queen Victoria.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—If the ambition of Miss Victoria Drummond, now working in the Liverpool office of Messrs. Alfred Holt & Co., Ltd., owners of the Blue Funnel Line, is realized, she will be the first woman engineer to go to sea in a liner.

Miss Drummond is a dark-haired, athletic-looking young Scotswoman, and for six years she has worked in the engineering office of the Caledonian Shipbuilding and Engineering Co., Ltd., Dundee. A press correspondent found her wearing horn-rimmed spectacles and poring over formidable engine designs spread on a desk. "My ambition is to go to sea as an engineer," she declared. "I believe I will be the first woman to achieve this. I am hoping to leave in a month or two. I am not a bit shy of being the only woman working among men in the bowels of a ship. I am devoted to engineering. I find it a fascinating subject."

The Blue Funnel liners run to Australia and China, and as a large part of the journey is through the tropics the conditions of the engineers' work are arduous.

Miss Drummond is a granddaughter of the first Lord Amherst of Hackney, who died in 1912, and a god-daughter of Queen Victoria. She is a graduate of Marine Engineers.

Up to May 2 the number of cases of typhus in Soviet Russia, the Caucasus and Central Asia was 513,319, compared to 326,665 during the corresponding period last year. There were 167,678 cases of relapsing fever.
