Question of Alsace- Lorraine's Status.

The status of Alsace-Lorraine, the butt for many years of German and French border differences, will be discussed at an international conference to be held there this fall. Autonomy and neutrality for the little country is the moving spirit behind preparations which are being made for the conference. It is expected that a number of delegates will come from America, especially Alsacians living there. Friends of the movement are to be invited also from Switzerland, England, Denmark, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Holland, Spain, and other countries.

At a recent meeting in Kolmar of persons interested in the project, it was unanimously decided that the proposition for autonomy and neutrality should be placed before the League of Nations. The consensus was, however, that support should first be assured in such lands as the United States and England, and in countries which were neutral during the World War.

Speakers at the assembly, particularly those coming from agricultural districts, voiced opposition to the French administration. They cautioned at the same time against "sighing for the Prussian spiked helmet."

Political Conditions In Great Britain

Political conditions in Great Britain will bear comparison to almost anything that denotes disorder, from a scrambled egg to a strike riot. The collapse of the coalition released the elements of which it was composed. But the Unionist "split," and the Liberals stayed split. There are thus two so-called Unionist parties in the field, two so-called Liberal parties, and the Labor party; with a possibility that the late premier may be able to hold the "dissident" members of the two former together and reduce the total to a quartette. In the readjustment a good many well known figures are finding themselves in strange company. Perhaps the most notable instance is that of Mr. McKenna, former Chancellor of the Exchequer under Mr. Asquith, who is supporting the Bonar Law Government. For the time, too, some prominent men seem to have got lost in the shuffle. Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Balfour have not been heard from since the crash, and Mr. Winston Churchill is for the moment out of public life because of ill-health. The voters are under fire of political argument from all sides, some of it evidently manufactured in Moscow. The Labor party has issued a manifesto pledging itself to tax the rich unmercifully and spend the money in delusion that that would help the poor. Mr. Asquith's following have issued a manifesto the chief purpose of which seems to be to assure the public that they are not socialists, though the contents are of a kind to make one wonder where the line of distinction runs. Mr. Lloyd George says he and his associates will support any government that stands for "peace, economy and progress"—patterned after their own ideas of course. The new premier proclaims the ground-work of his program to be a desire to restore public confidence, indulge in fewer stunts in the field of international politics, encourage industry, and help the revival of trade. Nerves So Bad That She Would Sit and Cry

Mrs. Mary Hocking, Madoc, Ont., writes:—
"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a wonderful lot of good. I suffered from general weakness and was so run down and my heart and nerves were in such bad shape that I would sit down and cry and not know what I was crying about. I also used to have weak spells. Thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, however, I am real well now. I shall always keep a box of the Nerve Food in the house, and recommend them to my friends; they are a wonderful medicine."
(Mr. J. W. Vince, Druggist, of Madoc, Ont., says: "I have sold Mrs. Hocking your Nerve Food, and the medicine has done her much good.")

Capt. Alexander and Capt. Hawthorne, owners of the famous Engineer mine, at Atlin, went south on the Princess Sophia which passed through this port yesterday afternoon. They had samples with them of gold ore from the property, the value of which is said to run as high as $100,000 per ton.

Joe Belway and Alex. McLaren arrived from Kitsumkum on today's train. They recently made a rich strike of ore in the Kalum district.

NEEDLE SWALLOWED BY WOMAN REMOVED FROM HER DAUGHTER

STOCKTON, Cal., Nov. 3.—Three years ago Mrs. Frank J. Schwing, then Miss Ethel Frick, swallowed a needle two inches long. Two months later she was married. Charlotte, her 22-months-old babe, began to cry recently and continued apparently without cause.

Mrs. Schwing investigated the girl's repeated rubbing of a spot on her left shoulder and felt a foreign body under the skin. She found the needle.

The head of the needle had disappeared. The blunt end of the needle finally protruded and the mother withdrew it. Neighbors were present when she withdrew the needle.

Mother and daughter had never suffered pain from the needle until the girl felt it in her shoulder.

The fire brigade answered a call early this morning to the house of Alderman Geo. Kerr on Borden Street. Upon arrival a slight chimney fire was found to be in progress. It was easily overcome with a hand extinguisher.

George Bushby Addresses Rotary Club on Work at Tuck's Inlet

"When I came to Prince Rupert and took charge of the reduction plant at Tuck's Inlet I found the buyers did not want Prince Rupert product at any price. They could not rely on it. Now, after a season's work and the marketing of first class goods, people order by wire without question as to quality." That was the important statement made by George Bushby in an address to the Rotary Club yesterday.

Mr. Bushby said he had learned a good deal since he came here last spring. In reading up on the reduction and fish rendering business, he found that it was an ancient industry. The Chinese had engaged in it for many centuries. The Malays had been doing the same and using the product for fertilizer and food. In Britain fish had been used for fertilizer but the oil soured the land. Then the oil was taken from it and the fertilizer used.

Feed for Cattle

It was only of recent years that Germany conceived the idea of feeding swine and cattle with the nitrogenous proteins taken from fish. It was found that this had great food value and could be fed to poultry or cattle up to from seven to ten per cent without flavoring the meat or eggs. The protein from fish is more valuable than that from vegetable matter. Fish meal is now classified as a commodity for transportation.

Mr. Bushby compared the fish meal with meat scraps and showed that only in one or two cases was a meat scrap of higher nutritive value than fish meal. It was made from fresh fish and was not decomposed.

The oils manufactured here contained very little acid. They were used for tanning, for the manufacture of linoleum and synthetic rubber and some of it for paints. Hitherto they had shipped most of the product to the United States but now they had discovered a Canadian market which people had been buying from the people to whom the local market had been selling.

Telling of the process of manufacture, Mr. Bushby explained that the scrap fish was first cooked in huge cookers for three and a half hours. The oil was allowed exude, then it was put through hydraulic presses and the oil taken out. Then the glue and other by-products were taken out. The oil was shipped away on the car barge to the railway and thence to the market.

The meal was dried in a steam drier leaving only from five to six per cent of moisture. This prevented decomposition. There was no odor left.

Mr. Bushby said they were trying to live up to the Rotarian standard and latterly had received nothing but congratulations on the quality of their product.

They were now asking the Government for a bounty to the fishermen on dog fish in order that they might be able to secure
