Have You Registered For Civic Campaign?

Today is the day to register so that you may be entitled to vote at the civic elections this winter. Anyone not the registered owner of property must go to the City Hall and register or he or she will not be allowed to vote at the civic election. Anyone not registered before the end of the month is off the list until next year.

Most people put off the matter of registration. They think there is plenty of time and then they wake up on November 1st, after duly celebrating Hallow E'en to find that there is a real civic campaign under way and they are without the right to vote.

In spite of all the efforts of the committees and individuals there are always a lot of people who do not take the trouble to register. There are also a lot of people who find that they would like to have the right but it is denied them. Your vote may be the one that will bring good government to the city so do not neglect the opportunity today.

British Changes Take Place Rapidly.

When Lloyd George was defeated there was no delay in giving up office. He did not hang around for a week before handing in his resignation to the King. Almost the moment he heard that the Conservatives had decided against him and even before calling Parliament and laying his position before them, something he would have been quite justified in doing, he went to the King, told him he no longer possessed the confidence of Parliament and that he wished to resign. The King promptly accepted the resignation and just as promptly called upon another man to take his place. That is representative constitutional government as carried out at headquarters in connection with the mother of parliaments.

New Premier Is Said To Be Popular.

Premier Bonar Law is said to be popular. He is a Canadian by birth, a bluenose, but for twenty years he has been interested in British politics and has had a powerful influence there, especially previous to and during the war. When he resigned the leadership of the House of Commons under the Lloyd George regime, it was thought he had retired permanently from public life and some of his former political enemies began to deliver the funeral oration, but he is back to prove that he is just as good a man as they said he was.

There is a curious situation developing in Britain today. On the election that is to take place in the near future will depend to a great extent what the future of the country will be. Many think labor will come into power, but judging at a distance and from a quite ex parte point of view, we should prophesy that Bonar Law will win the forthcoming election. The only thing that can beat him would be a union of Labor and Liberal forces under Lloyd George and there seems no likelihood that such a union will take place, especially after all the bitter things Labor leaders have said about the former premier.

New Company To Use Dog Fish.

Another company is being organized to utilize dog fish in addition to the one at Tucks Inlet. The latest is to operate at Skidegate Inlet if it gets going. A Victoria lawyer and an expert manufacturer have the company in hand and it is quite possible more will be heard of it soon. If the company locates at Skidegate Inlet, this will be an additional industry to the many likely to be established on Queen Charlotte Islands in the near future.

EXPECTS BIG FISH CATCHES

BUSINESS DISCUSSED

James Lee Gives Interesting Talk
on Industry and Its Problems

That the present autumn deliveries of fish are likely to be large and that the catching of halibut in the autumn is a menace to the future of the halibut industry were the chief points made by James Lee in an address before the Rotary Club at its luncheon yesterday.

Mr. Lee said that he was brought up in a small fishing town of about ten thousand inhabitants on the shore of the North Sea and that his father was a fish curer. There were eighty or ninety fish curing establishments in the town. One of the first jobs was as an accountant in a steam trawling establishment. Later he went with a Scotch cure concern there and at other centres.

It was in 1911 that Mr. Lee first came to Canada landing in Vancouver where he first went into a lumber yard and later spent two years in the fish business on Queen Charlotte Islands. He came here and worked with McRae Brothers and for the past seven years had been manager of the Atlin Fisheries at this port.

Least Developed

The fish business, Mr. Lee said, was the oldest and until recently the least developed industry in the world. Prehistoric man had fished before he had tilled the soil. The industry was cradled in the North Sea, which was particularly suited to propagation of fish being shallow with an average depth of 60 fathoms. The Dogger Banks averaged about eight fathoms. The bottom was affected by the waves and the sunlight was able to penetrate the shallow waters. This helped to produce the food on which the fish feed.

Another advantage the North Sea has is that there are 160,000,000 people living around it and these are all fish eating people.

Producing Area

Mr. Lee went on to say that ten million square miles of the water surface of the earth was a fish producing area. It was known as the continental shelf. Fish lived to eat and be eaten. There were no deaths from old age. The halibut banks on this coast extended from Oregon to far Alaska, a distance altogether of about 2,000 miles. The 100 fathom mark was the limit on the outside of the area which was long and narrow. It was about the same as the fishing area of the North Sea. The southern banks had been fished out and at the spawning season, which was from now to the end of the year, the halibut were found in large quantities on the northern banks. Last year they were brought here in large quantities and this year more vessels than ever were going north for the fish. With this big fleet operating he looked for a big catch.

All fishermen were agreed that it was almost a crime to catch the fish during the spawning season. The question was being taken up by the Fisheries Association and by the Fisheries Commission and it was expected a close season would be arranged. The fish were very poor when spawning. On one shipment he had sent to New York the shrinkage had been as much as 20 pounds to the box.

The halibut was twelve years old before it began to breed so propagation was slow. The fishing power was increasing and unless protective steps were taken a rapid decline in the halibut on the banks would be bound to follow. The fisheries had suffered from being a sideline instead of being administered by a separate government department. They hoped to have a minister in charge before long.

F. L. Buckley, manager of the Massett Timber Co., who has been over to the Queen Charlotte Islands, making arrangements for the opening of the lumber mill at that point, returned on the launch Epauline yesterday morning and left on the Prince George for Vancouver last night.

LOYAL ORANGE LODGE SUCCESSFUL EVENING

The first whist drive and dance of the season, under the auspices of the Loyal Orange Lodge and the L.O.R.A. was held in the Metropole Hall last night. The evening was a decided success, about 60 couples being present.

Whist was played until 10.30 p.m. to which eighteen tables sat down.

Mrs. W. Reid won the ladies' first prize, while Mrs. Strong took the second prize.

C. Wilson, was the winner of the gentlemen's prize, and W. F. Cameron carried off the second prize.

At the termination of the card playing delightful refreshments were served after which dancing was enjoyed to the strains of Arthur's orchestra until the early hours.

The committee responsible for the success of the evening comprised: Ladies committee, Mrs. Geo. Leek, Mrs. Howe, Mrs. Greer, and Mrs. H. Smith.

Gentlemen's committee: Alex. McRae, Duncan Munro, Frank Alder, C. Lemon and A. MacKenzie.

LABOR COMMITTEE MET LAST NIGHT

The organization committee of the labor movement met last night in the Exchange block.

It was decided to subdivide the city into eight districts in which a house to house canvas will be made by the different members of the committee for the purpose of seeing that all eligible residents are on the civic voters' list.

A public meeting will be held next Thursday evening in the Carpenter's Hall when short speeches will be made by some of the prominent workers in the labor movement on certain phases of civic politics as was outlined in the editorial of the Daily News of yesterday's date.

Steps are being taken to enlist the sympathy and support of other labor organizations that are not affiliated with either of the central labor bodies.

ALASKA JUNEAU IS GOOD PRODUCING MINE

JUNEAU, Oct. 20.—If the present rate of production is maintained through the remainder of this year, the Alaska Juneau will mine this year approximately 2,200,000 tons of ore, surpassing the best year's production ever experienced by the Gastineau Company, according to P. R. Bradley, General Manager of the company. The Alaska Juneau produced in September an average of 7,450 tons daily and a total for the month of 224,000 tons and the present rate of production is slightly in excess of that, said Mr. Bradley.

CORRECTS IMPRESSION

Editor, Daily News.
In order to correct a wrong thought that has developed from some of my answers given at the meeting of the School Board, held on Tuesday evening, I wish to inform your readers that my remarks re the efficiency of the plasterers and bricklayers do not apply to the men at present employed on the works, nor to a few of those who were employed and left of their own free will.
