EVIDENCE IN LIQUOR CASE

Garland Denies Selling But Admits Others Did

INGENIOUS DEFENSE

Defendant Declares he Refused to Give Drinks to Spotters

Taking of evidence and argument of counsel in the Len Garland whiskey selling case was concluded yesterday afternoon in the city police court and adjournment made for eight days for the notes of the case to be transcribed before delivery of judgment.

On the opening of the afternoon session of the case when the examination of Jack Stewart, defence witness, commenced there was a tilt between City Solicitor Hooper and L. W. Patmore, counsel for the defence. The prosecutor accused the defending barrister of asking leading questions arising out of previous evidence and demanded that proof be given of where such had been allowed. The magistrate called an adjournment of fifteen minutes and Mr. Patmore, on returning, established his point. Stewart's evidence was to the effect that Garland had ordered Harrison and Dixon, the detectives, out of his place and had sold them no whiskey. Mr. Hooper, in cross-examining, made several inquiries into witness' private life and business which, after some objection on the part of witness, which were overruled from the bench, were answered.

Were Suspected

Len Garland, accused, said that he had had two bottles of "The Dimple" whiskey which he had bought from the government vendor. Harrison and Dixon had come to his house on Sunday night and asked to buy a drink. Garland told them they must have the wrong house but Dixon had said: "No Len we have not got the wrong house." They said they knew John King, of Terrace, friend of accused who was inside. On saying this, they were admitted but King repudiated knowing them and they were asked to leave the house which they did, protesting that all they wanted was to buy a drink of whiskey.

Witness said that he had every reason at that time to believe Harrison and Dixon were "stool pigeons" and he had communicated that belief to others. He would not have sold liquor to them even if he had been in the business.

Not Admitted

On Wednesday the detectives had come again with Sid Waring and had entered without invitation. Sig said that they were friends of his who had come to buy him and themselves a drink of whiskey which they all needed. Witness had said "I am sorry but I have not a drop of anything in the house." Witness then stepped to the door and opened it saying "Good Night." The men, who had been sitting down, then walked out. On Thursday night, the night that the liquor was alleged in the information to have been sold, while Stewart and witness were playing solitaire Harrison and Dixon had come again and asked

Burdock Blood Bitters

Relieved Her of Headaches

Headache seems to be habitual with many people, and some, if any, are seldom free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief.

In all cases of headache the treatment should be directed to the removal of the cause, and with the cause removed the headaches will vanish.

It is impossible to find a better remedy for headaches of every description than can equal B. B. B., acting as it does on every organ of the system.

Mrs. Douglas Riechborough, 280 McLeod St., Sarnia, Ont., writes: "Having suffered from severe headaches for a considerable length of time I decided to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and found that it helped me wonderfully. It relieved the headaches, and I noticed a decided improvement in my health."

Burdock Blood Bitters is a remedy that has been on the market for the past forty years, so you don't experiment with some new and untried medicine. It is put up only by The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

P.R.N.

if they could buy a drink. Witness said "No" and shut the door on them. They were not even admitted to the house that night.

Acquitted of Vagrancy

Cross examined by Mr. Hooper, Garland said that Waring had never even received drinks from him though he might have from George Sweet previously. Witness had been there for five years and had been a trainman and prospector. He had also run a club in the city and had worked at one time in Alice Arm. He had been charged with vagrancy in the police court once but had been acquitted. He had had several kinds of liquor in his house on Fraser Street all of it having been bought from the government vendor's. All of the liquor in the house was his with the exception of some that George Sweet had left the definite description of which he did not definitely know. One night the police had called at his house on account of reported disorder. That had been Constable Logan with whom he (witness) "was at war." They were out to get each other. Mr. Sweet and witness had been in on several little deals and lately he had been taking care of his house.

Seen George Do It

"Have you ever seen Sweet sell whiskey in the house?" asked Mr. Hooper. Witness said that he had although he had never assisted in the sales or served liquor for Sweet. Outside of looking after Mr. Sweet's house witness said he had done nothing for the past two months.

In making his address in behalf of the accused Mr. Patmore declared that the evidence brought in the case had been as weak and flimsy as he had ever seen in a liquor case. In the last case in the city of a similar nature bottles of liquor had been produced in court. The crown witnesses had one story which was denied by the defense. There was nothing to corroborate the story of the detectives. The story could have been made just as well about himself (Patmore) as about Garland. Garland had been suspicious of the two men of being "stool pigeons." Was it likely that he would sell them whiskey or allow them to stay around. They had failed to buy liquor but had brought in their story. It was up to detectives to get certain places and they were out to get George Sweet's house. Their notes and evidence could have been easily manufactured. Everybody knew that liquor had been sold at Sweet's house but the evidence went to show that Garland had not been doing busness of that sort. When evidence of the kind that had been brought forward in this case was dealt with, there must be a doubt and if there was a reasonable doubt His Worship must find in favor of accused.

Plea for Crown

MR. Hooper put up a strong plea for the crown case and argued that the evidence of the two main witnesses had been of a truthful and convincing nature. It was their duty to use such means in these cases.

Court adjourned about 5 o'clock.

METHODIST LADIES: ANNUAL BAZAAR WAS SUCCESS YESTERDAY

The Methodist Church Ladies' annual bazaar was held yesterday afternoon between the hours of 3 and 9 in the church parlors. The affair was a great success and was well patronized, the results being even more satisfactory than last year.

The rooms were specially decorated for the occasion with hallowe'en colors of yellow and purple and autumn flowers and foliage. Mission Band colors of white and blue were used at the candy stall and red was the centre color of the men's booth. Altogether the scene was pretty and tasteful.

Those in charge of the various booths were:

Tea Room—Mrs. E. Stuckdale, Home Cooking—Mrs. W. T. Kergin and Mrs. George Kerr, Fancy Work—Mrs. S. J. Evans and Mrs. Bowd.

MASQUERADE DANCE TERRACE TUESDAY

Very Pretty Costumes Seen at G.W.V.A. Hallowe'en Event

TERRACE, Nov. 2.—The annual Hallowe'en Masquerade was held Tuesday evening under the auspices of the G.W.V.A. Their large new hall was crowded and the music and floor were good. There were a large number of splendid costumes, shepherdesses, gypsies, witches, soldiers and cowboys mingled in a fascinating medley during the dance. Between the dances much amusement was afforded by the Chinaman and his laundry, who later won the prize, and by a number of clowns.

A medieval looking monk mingled with the crowd and a gay troubadour was conspicuous all evening.

A chef in spotless white aroused thoughts of supper long before the proper time. A gay little Japanese lady flitted through the crowd and Knave of Hearts and the Knave of Diamonds were darting in and out everywhere. Night with its thousand stars and crescent moon was also there.

Prize Winners

The ladies' prize was awarded to a very pretty and original autumn costume made of autumn leaves. Miss Galworthy of Amhurst was the winner.

Bobbie Henwood won the gentlemen's prize in his well sustained part of Chinaman.
