NEWBOLD, LADY ASTOR AND VARIOUS LEADERS HEARD IN REPLY TO SPEECH

Communist Member Made A Sensation With Speech British House Commons

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Newbold, the Communist member of the new government, created a sensation in the House of Commons by warning the government members that shortly they would have to work at useful work. He described the formalities of opening parliament as a "tomfool show" and expressed his regrets that the King's Speech only referred to unemployment without suggesting a remedy. He said that soviet Russia was carrying on in spite of everything that the British had done to it and while he (Newbold) was the first Communist member to reach the foot of the throne he would not be the last.

The House was periodically in uproar and the Speaker warned Newbold that his remarks were not in order. In reply, Newbold said with sarcastic assurance that some day they would be. The speaker then appealed to the government members to listen to Newbold's "maiden speech." Finally the House got down to good natured derision.

After several new Labor members had heckled Lady Astor while on the floor and warned her to keep a civil tongue in her head, Ramsay MacDonald and other leaders were obviously chagrined and worried over the attitude of the House. The House got in a big day's business in speeches on the debate in reply to the King's Speech. Several leaders, including Premier Bonar Law, spoke along conventional lines.

The Laborites opposed it. The motion carried by 238 to 135.

PRINCE JOHN GETS PLENTY OF WEATHER

Was Forced to Anchor Under Tow Hill All Night on Account of Terrible Southeaster

If Capt. Harry Neden and his crew were susceptible to that malady known as mal-de-mer it is hard to say where the good ship Prince John would be today. However, they don't get sea sick so everybody's happy, although the officers say that every time the staunch G.T.P. coaster sticks her nose out she runs into a duster—at least that has been the experience from the past month.

The John arrived in port this morning about 11 o'clock from Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands with a good-sized passenger list and some freight cargo. She was due last night but yesterday afternoon she ran into a terrible southeast gale out of Massett Inlet and was forced to anchor under Tow Hill until early this morning when the blow abated somewhat.

She returns tomorrow evening to Vancouver and the Queen Charlottes.

MAYOR WANTS MORE STRICT TRAFFIC RULES

Would Require Motorists to Make Wider Turns at Intersections

Mayor Harry B. Rochester is determined that Prince Rupert will not be behind other cities in the province in regard to the Motor Vehicle Act. At the police commission meeting last night he suggested a plan, which the Commissioner E. H. Shockley agreed with, by which all motorists in future, following the passage of a bylaw, would have to go around an imaginary point in the center of the intersection of any corner before turning on to another street.

By this method the police hope to avoid any accidents which are liable to occur by motorists turning corners too sharply. In other cities a bylaw governing the intersection of the streets has to be passed and the same applies here so it will likely be dealt with at the council meeting next week.

COMMUNITY CHEST SO FAR FAILURE

Victoria Committee After Two Weeks' Work is Still Far Short of Objective

VICTORIA, Nov. 24.—The community chest scheme here has been a failure so far. In two weeks only $14,000 out of the proposed $86,000 has been collected by the committee. Another committee is to take up the scheme and try again.

The idea of the community chest is to administer the finances of local charities in one fund, eliminating overlapping and enabling people to give to charity once a year and know that the money is well spent. Various charitable organizations of the city have adopted the scheme and are making concerted efforts on its behalf.

Dr. C. A. Eggert, of This City, Receives News of Father's Death at Atlin

Jules Eggert, of Atlin, one of the oldest timers and best known figures of Northern British Columbia, died yesterday afternoon at Atlin, word to this effect having been received from the north by Dr. C. A. Eggert, of this city, his son, last evening.

The late Mr. Eggert was 67 years of age and was a native of Switzerland. He went into Atlin in 1897 at the time of the gold rush and has resided there ever since, following his business as a jeweler. News of his death comes as a shock to his many friends not only in the north but all along the coast.

Dr. Eggert, on receipt of advice of his father's demise, had intended going to Atlin to attend the funeral but found that it would be practically impossible to do so on account of the ordinary transportation routes being now closed for the winter.

Baron Sonnino, Silent Statesman of Italy and Twice Premier, Died at Rome After Long Useful Career

ROME, Nov. 24.—Baron Sonnino, twice Premier of Italy, and foreign minister during the Great War, died today.

Baron Sidney Sonnino, "the silent statesman of Italy," disliked to talk but could be fluent in five languages. He was Prime Minister of Italy in 1906 and again in 1910. From 1914 to 1919, he was Minister of Foreign Affairs. He also served as Minister of Finance, as Minister of the Interior, and as a member of Parliament. He brought to the Paris peace conference the reputation of "the first financier of Europe, the man who had probed the economic life of the world to the core."

"I do not shine, I do not glitter," he said on one occasion in the Chamber of Deputies. "I leave that sort of thing to my political opponents. I am satisfied if I can reveal an occasional gleam of common sense."

At another time, addressing his indifferent colleagues, he said: "I propose to put a little knowledge of the state of the nation's revenue into your heads, whether you feel interested or not."

Financial Ability

While Minister of Finance he was credited with having laid the foundation for his country's steady welfare from the revenue standpoint done, he declared. The attention of the attorney general had been drawn to the condition in a note. He said that the police were supposed to enforce the law especially in relation to restaurants.

Baron Sonnino was one of the most abstemious of men in spite of his wealth. Even before the war, he practiced the most rugged economies. Italy could not borrow favorably in the London market by reason of her enormous public debt. Sonnino lowered it by vigorous taxation, by reducing public salaries and expenditures and dismissing needless employees. The politicians, therefore, hated him.

"I would not think of having a fire in my bedroom," he protested to the deputies on one occasion. "Our Italian winters are too beautiful to be spoiled in that fashion." When a Sicilian deputy complained of the food supply in a crisis of the war, Sonnino grimly responded: "I have tasted no meat for a week."

Scotch Mother

A Jew by race, a Protestant by faith and a native of Egypt, the man who was one day destined to handle the Italian ship of state, was born of an Italian Jewish father and a Scotch mother on March 11, 1847, on the banks of the Nile. He was educated partly in England and at the University of Pisa.

Sonnino's grandfather migrated from the ghetto of Leghorn, Italy, to Egypt, where he built up an enormous fortune as a banker, a fortune which the future Premier of Italy enjoyed.

Before entering politics he was editor of the magazine "Bassegna" which he founded and in which for years he aired his political and economic views. He also wrote and lectured on Dante and Petrarch of whose works he was a close student. Later he became one of the proprietors of the Giornale D'Italia. Baron Sonnino was always interested in the welfare of the Italian farmers. His book, "The Peasants in Sicily," was a notable contribution to public knowledge of agrarian conditions in that country. One of his aims, he said, was to revive southern Italy economically and morally. He also built local railways, put isolated regions in touch with great markets, strengthened the farm banks and assisted villages and towns in fighting illiteracy. He possessed a wonderful library. The Baron never married.

CHIROPRACTIC IS DISCUSSED

Legislature Sends Bill to Committee—Speaker Calls for Order

VICTORIA, Nov. 23.—Spectators in the legislature yesterday cheered two or three times in the course of the discussion on the appointment of a committee to consider the Chiropractic Bill. Speaker F. A. Pauline announced to the people in the galleries that they must not show assent or dissent. The resolution was opposed by Attorney General Manson and others and was supported by several other speakers. It was finally amended by Premier Oliver and carried. It is hardly likely that it will pass this session and the probability is that it will never get back from the committee.
