VENERABLE ARCHDEACON COLLISON PASSED AWAY AT KINCOLITH, NAAS RIVER, AFTER LINGERING ILLNESS.

Columbia, "Northern British Columbia has lost its veteran missionary who for over forty-eight years labored steadily in this region. The outline of his life is quickly given but it would take a volume to fill in the details.

"He was born over seventy five years ago in the North of Ireland. When he was a young man he became a school teacher, and was teaching in Cork in the south of Ireland when he heard the missionary call. He then went to the church missionary college at Islington where he prepared for the mission field, being told in 1873 that it was best for him not to go alone to the North Pacific. He married in August of that year a trained nurse who had done heroic service on the battlefields of France during the Franco-Prussian war. In less than four weeks with his young bride he was on his way west and after travelling almost continuously for two months arrived at Metlakatla early in November, 1873.

At Metlakatla.

"For three years he labored under Mr. Wm. Duncan, the pioneer missionary. On November 1, 1876, with his wife and child, he landed at Massett on the north end of Graham Island which is one of the Queen Charlotte Group off in the Pacific Ocean, and became the pioneer missionary to the Haida Indians both at Massett and Skidegate. In 1879 he was recalled to Metlakatla as he was one of the few who could work without friction under Mr. Duncan. In the interval he had been ordained first deacon and then priest by Bishop Borpas who made a special trip on foot and by canoe across the Rocky Mountains. In 1880 he opened the Mission at Hazelton going up the Skeena River by canoe but did not remain there long. Returning to Metlakatla he continued to labor there until 1883 when with growing family he was finally located at Kincolith, an Indian village at the mouth of the Naas River where after over thirty-eight years of unselfish toil for the benefit of others he laid down his life.

Hallowed Spot.

"Three years before his beloved partner of his missionary career ceased her devoted efforts for the uplifting of the native women and children, and was buried in a sheltered spot on a grassy slope of the cliff above Kincolith. This was a great blow to the veteran missionary. Offered by the Bishop an easier post, he resolutely declined as though wedded to the spot hallowed by so many associations of the past.

On the rugged cliff there is now no longer a lonely grave. Such in brief outline is the story of a great and noble life lived amongst much seclusion.

"The church honored him in 1891 by giving him the rank of Archdeacon, but neither in Eastern Canada or in Great Britain and Ireland was he fully recognized as no doubt he will be in time, as one of the great heroes of the Mission Field. We are glad that he has left us his book entitled "In the Wake of the War Gane" but we shall miss his fervent Irish eloquence and his sympathetic Christian fellowship. Northern British Columbia salutes its veteran missionary, "Soldier of Christ, well done."
