MODERN APPLIANCE STAMPING LETTERS

Machine Obviates Use of Stamps Where Much Mailing Is to be Done

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press)—In pursuance of the Postmaster General's policy to study modern appliances with a view to their adoption in connection with Post Office work, if deemed advisable, sanction was recently given for a demonstration before officers of the Meter department for a Postage Meter machine, and the question of approval of this particular style is now under consideration.

The machine which is driven by a small electric motor, prints an impression on each letter signifying that say 3c. postage has been paid, also showing the date and hour at which the letter was prepared for mailing. If desired, it also seals the letter in the one operation. Connected with the printing die is a small, ingeniously devised mechanism which records the number of letters stamped Postage Paid. This recording device is called the Postage Meter and is under the control of the Post Office. It is set to record the number of letters specified in a contract granted on payment of the amount of postage involved. When this total is reached the device locks automatically and will print no more impressions until re-set at the Post Office. The main portion of the machine may however, continue to be used for sealing envelopes if desired. The machine operates at a speed of approximately 250 pieces per minute and stamps letters of varying size and thickness.

The benefits to be derived from the use of such a machine by business concerns which send out a large letter mail or which use the mails to a considerable extent for advertising may briefly be summarized as follows:

1. Postage being paid in cash, there is no necessity to purchase large quantities of postage stamps.
2. No loss of postage through stamps falling off letters due to excessive moistening of stamps by office staff.
3. Time saved in closing letters.
4. More expeditious treatment at Post Office, as letters or circulars when so mailed are immediately ready for sorting and despatch.

INDUSTRIAL BANK IN RUSSIA IS FORMED

MOSCOW, Oct. 20.—Private interests in Russia have received further recognition by the Communists. The government has granted permission to private persons to participate, by their capital, in the organization of a Trade and Industrial Bank.

The institution which is now being organized and will begin its operations in November will be a private limited company. Fifty-one per cent of the shares are assigned to the founders, the Supreme Economic Council, while the remainder will be covered by public subscriptions by the trusts and syndicates, and private persons.

The new bank is going to finance industry and transport on a broad, commercial basis. Private capital is not only allowed to participate, but guarantee is given to place its representatives on the board of directors of the bank.

SPEED SYSTEM IN FOOTBALL

Difficult to Account For Large Number of Accidents This Year

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(Canadian Press)—Although only in its early stages, the football season has already levied a heavy toll, the list of injured players being unusually lengthy. The matches, with a very few exceptions, have been free from illegal plays, so that it is somewhat difficult to assign a cause for the many accidents. Foul tactics are no more prevalent than in former years, and so far as first-class games this season are concerned, football has never been cleaner.

Getting Faster
The desire for speed, and the accomplishment of this desire, is held in some quarters to be the main reason for the long trail of accidents this autumn. Football is very much faster than it used to be and consequently when two players come into contact while going at full speed there is more likelihood of injury, if only because of the greater momentum. Again, if a player running at top speed, in seeking to pass his opponent happens to lose his balance when tackled, he falls very heavily, and where a defender has locked a ball the attacking player frequently wrenches his ankle or knee, owing to the sudden jerk with which he is brought up. It is from the latter cause that a considerable number of injuries have been sustained.

Opponents of the "speed system" say that these accidents are unavoidable and must be expected so long as the present style of playing continues. They also charge that the value of speed or pace has been over-rated and that the time devoted to its development is not warranted by the results obtained, and they point to the result of the last two international matches with Scotland as justifying their criticisms.

Lacks Combination
In the last two internationals between England and Scotland, the English side was admittedly the faster, but was lacking in combination and the speed was soon reduced to helplessness by the determination and skillful anticipation of those whose business it was to keep the ball from entering the Scottish goal. At Birmingham last April the English forwards must have scored again and again if they had kept their heads when in the neighborhood of goal. They over-ran the ball, shot wildly or hesitated until they were robbed, or they failed completely to place in possession when tackled, or just before they were tackled, a colleague who was exceedingly well-placed to defeat the Scottish goal-keeper. There was pace in plenty in the English attack, but there was not enough skill.

If, in the future, more attention is not paid to football strategy and subtlety and less dependence placed on mere speed, there will be an immense improvement in first class football as a spectacle and a sensible reduction in the number of injuries to players, is the prediction of the "anti-speed" element.

TOMMY BURNS HAS NEW WHITE HOPE TRAINING ENGLAND

Former Local Resident Busy in London Training Irish
Giant.

Tommy Burns, ex-heavyweight champion and formerly a resident of this city and now in London, England, claims to have found a new "white hope" in Robert Read, a gigantic Irish youth who lived in Scotland since he was 12 years old. Read is now 21. He is 6 feet 4-2 inches tall, weighs nearly 200 pounds, and has a reach of 81 1-2 inches, 7 1-2 inches more than Dempsey's.

In a photograph sent to the Daily Mail, the new man towers above him; Burns head reaches only to Read's shoulders. Read has a good appearance, an athletic build, and is gaining fight experience in the rough and tumble life of the English travelling boxing show, a familiar sight at any small town carnival or country fair.

Burns says that he has tried

MACDONALD'S

Read out and that he is not disappointed in him. "Last year Read won the amateur western district championship in Scotland," said Burns. "He is a quiet, gentlemanly boy, and of course he needs a lot of experience. Only time can tell whether he will develop into a real champion. The experience with the travelling boxing show, which he joined after winning the amateur championship, certainly won't do him any harm."

Sport Chat

Samuel Reschieski, the nine-year-old Polish chess prodigy, lost his first game recently in the ninth American Chess Congress.

Playing in the fourth round against I. Bernstein, New York State champion, he was forced to resign after 41 moves. Bernstein launched an energetic attack, which carried him through to victory, when the boy wonder began with a faulty defence, after declining the queen's gambit.

The bout between Panchito Villa, United States flyweight champion, and Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne, scheduled for Oct. 30, has been ordered cancelled by the chairman of the State Athletic commission. The bout was ordered off on the ground that the former champion is thoroughly outclassed by Villa.

Laid up in New York for six weeks as the result of an operation, Gene Sarazen, America's greatest golfer, will lose $3,000 in matches. Walter Hagen and other professionals will fill the dates Sarazen had to cancel.

Upon the advice of John McGraw, manager of the Giants, Arthur Nehf, Irish Meusel and George Kelly will decline the invitation to go to Japan with a specially picked team.

Jack Britton, welterweight champion of the world, will defend his title in a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden, New York, on November 1, against Micky Walker, of Newark.

The United States commissioner of internal revenue announces that with 185,947 paid admissions to the World baseball series and receipts totalling $605,475, the admission tax collected by the Federal government from the series was $60,547.50.

The Smiths Athletic Club have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Al Finnelly, president; Norman Kilpatrick, vice-president; H. G. Windt, secretary; G. Hefferman, treasurer; Executive committee: George Wall, J. E. Kirby, J. G. Stephens, C. Warner and Sandy Gealey.

Stanislaus Zhysko, the famous Polish wrestler, is one of the wonders of the athletic world, for at the age of 40, when most athletes are only fit subjects for the scrap heap, "Biscuits" as he is familiarly known in sport circles, has just reached the pinnacle of success. For 23 years he has wrestled all comers, taking part in over 1,600 matches. Zhysko is a well educated man, speaking seven languages, and holds law degrees from the University of Vienna. The adventures he has had in many strange quarters of the globe would fill a large sized book. He has appeared by special command before the late King Edward, the ex-kaiser and the Czar of Russia.

SPENT THE NIGHT AT WOLF ISLAND

J. J. Raleigh and S. J. Evans were forced to remain overnight Saturday on Wolf Island. When, about to return from a duck hunting expedition, they found the storm too heavy and the night too dark to make the passage across the harbor in the former's launch, Betty. They put up comfortably at the fishermen's cabin on the island and returned home safe yesterday morning early.
