Victory Of Such
Size Was Not Expected.

While many expected that the Conservatives would win in the British elections, there were few who anticipated that they would receive such a tremendous verdict in their favor as was registered by the Old Country voters on Wednesday. The result of the contest marks the passing of the Coalition and will put the House of Commons back on party lines once more with Ex-Premier Lloyd George's following in a rather insignificant position and Ex-Premier Asquith's little better. The election was one of those periodical turnovers that comes in due course of time in any country governed by party politics.

Labor Makes Big Gain In Strength.

The Labor party has been gaining strength steadily of late in Great Britain and the fact that Laborites, as a group, are second in strength in the House of Commons and will lead in the Opposition is not a great surprise although they may have gained more seats than it was generally expected they would get. Stormed against in the campaign by the Liberals and Conservatives, and particularly by Lloyd George, they came through in no uncertain measure. There are real statesmen in the British Labor party, and their increasing influence in the House of Commons should be of benefit rather than hindrance to the Government of the land.

Lloyd George Repudiated; Appreciated Nevertheless.

Though Ex-Premier Lloyd George was elected by acclamation and will thus be not lost to the House, the defeat of his followers was decided. For many years considered the most wonderful pilot of the nation, the little Welshman has suffered the ungrateful buffeting of public opinion and finds himself now in a rather isolated position. He has been repudiated by the people, it is true, but even should his political career be at a turning point, his name will go down in history as one of England's greatest statesmen who guided the nation through its most serious crisis, outshining all others. He is still in the House and will, doubtless, continue his usefulness in the moulding of the nation's destiny even if it may be in a different capacity.

What Will Lloyd George's Future Be?

What Lloyd George's future in British politics may be is a matter of keen speculation. Some are of the opinion that he is done and that he will never again come into power. Others emphatically declare that in no short space of time he will again be Premier of England. If the latter is to be the case it will be necessary for him to find new alliances or bolster up his party in a remarkable manner. After the breaking up of the coalition little time was allowed him for organization, and it is little wonder that his followers met with the reverses that they did, although, some say, their fate was a rejection of their leader in a tide that was not to be turned. An alliance with the ever growing Labor strength is a suggestion often heard in regard to the deposed Premier.

"There Were Many Things Which I Could Not Eat"

Mrs. H. Robert Wells, English Harbour, Trinity Bay,
Nfld., writes:

"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia—so much so that there were a great many things I could not eat at all on account of the distressed feeling afterwards. I used many different remedies, but they did me little good. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and was surprised at the relief this combined treatment gave me in such a short time."

Six-Year-Old
Had Bronchitis
Every Winter

Bronchitis generally begins with chills, followed by fever and a harsh, dry, hacking cough. There is a raising of phlegm, which at first is of a light color, but, as the trouble progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color and is sometimes streaked with blood.

All those who are troubled with bronchitis will find in Dr. Wood's Pine Syrup a remedy that will stimulate the bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, and loosen the phlegm. Mrs. Oliver C. LePage, South Rustico, P. E. I., writes:—"My little six-year-old girl had very bad attacks of bronchitis every winter. In the evening and during the night, she would have fever and choke up, and had a wheezing in her chest. We tried several cough medicines, but they never seemed to do her any good. A neighbor advised us to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which we did, and after she had taken two bottles she got perfectly well."

Price 35c and 60c a bottle; put up only by The T. McBurn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MOCK TRIAL AT ROTARY DINNER

Varied Program at Meeting Called for Discussion of Ethical Principles

A higher standard in the business and professional life of the community was advanced by speakers at the Rotary Club dinner in the St. Regis cafe last night. The meeting was held primarily to discuss the ethics of business and professional men in following out the program laid down by the International Association. It was the first time in the history of the local club, since its inception eighteen months ago, that the members were asked to bring a competitor or friend and when the program ended late in the evening it was voted a great success.

Duncan McRae, vice-president, in the absence of the President T. R. Johnston, occupied the chair and in speaking of the aims and ideals of Rotary declared that the members should do their utmost to maintain the highest standards in business. He told of the first club formed in Chicago in 1905 by Paul P. Harris, a native son of Edinburgh, Scotland, and pointed out that there were now 1253 clubs in twenty-five countries throughout the world with a membership of 85,000 men.

J. W. Nicholls was the song leader and he got more harmony out of some of the business men in the city than they ever produced before in their lives. Several members were announced to sing solos but when the time came they took stage fright and backed out.

The Mock Trial

The big feature of the evening was the mock trial. Mike McCaffery as chairman of the stunts committee arose and stated that Fred Stork, M.P. had been appointed judge for the trial of several members of the club for neglecting their duty. Then he named Dr. Grant crown prosecutor, E. A. Wakefield, counsel for the defence, and George Woodland, assistant counsel.

ON information laid by Jack Nicholls, Sheriff McCaffery had Jack Campbell put on trial on a charge of being delinquent in his duty as chairman of the boys' work committee. Dr. Grant urged His Lordship not to press the charge too hard on the prisoner and interjected a number of humorous remarks into his speech to the court. The prisoner was dismissed.

The next person to be arraigned was Everard Duby on a charge of never smiling while speaking at meetings. Dr. Grant, in making the charge, stated that the accused was a neighbor of his and that his back yard lock was still intact but he had so proceeded with the case as a matter of duty. He asked the accused if the presence of three clergymen in the club was an excuse for never smiling but he added that this was a court of justice and not one of law and urged the court to be lenient. His lordship pronounced that the accused had been found guilty and sentenced him to sing one verse of "Pack up your troubles."

Biggest Hit

The biggest-hit of the evening was the arrest of Duncan McRae on a charge of not bringing new speakers to the luncheons but using his neighbors in Section Six most of the time. Jack Nicholls was called as a witness and whenever Dr. Grant suggested that the speakers had told old jokes and had not dealt with their subjects in a proper manner, the witness agreed with him although the defence counsel argued several times that the questions were leading ones. Of the speakers named, Doc Orme, Magistrate T. McClymont, E. A. Wakefield and others came in for some comical criticism.

The counsel for the defence entered a brilliant plea on behalf of his client and was rewarded by having His Lordship discharge the prisoner with honor. The court was adjourned till the next meeting.

Medical Ethics

On behalf of the professional men, Dr. W. T. Kergin gave a fine talk on the ethics of medical men. In speaking of the relations between doctor and doctor he stated that they were forbidden to advertise their cases in the daily press and were not to use any means whatsoever to get a patient from another doctor. In relation to the pub-
