PROGRESSIVES AND BUDGET

OTTAWA, June 6.—The final week of the budget debate opened yesterday with Laughlin speaking. The procedure cut sharply across parliamentary practice of years. Hon. A. T. Greer moved an amendment to the Drayton amendment declaring that the Progressives' point of view was that the budget proposals, based as they were mainly on the principle of protection, were in respect to tariff, wholly inadequate to implement the Liberal pledges by legislation. Mr. Greer also said that the principle of protection as a basis for fiscal policy was unsound. Speaker Lemieux will give his opinion today.

Two New Experts Are to Be Called for Further Advice on School Affair

In view of the fact that the reports of Consulting Architect A. A. Cox and Supervising Architect Potter on the condition of the Booth Memorial School so widely differ and the report of Mr. Cox for remedy of the defects would entail such a large expenditure and for other reasons, the School Board last night decided to engage another expert, A. M. Jeffers, former provincial government architect of Alberta and a man with wide experience in the business of brick and hollow tile building, to make a further examination and report. The provincial government is also to be asked to send a structural engineer to act in collaboration or separately from Mr. Jeffers on the matter. The resolution of the board to this effect was submitted to the city council where it received unanimous endorsement. Accordingly telegrams were sent last night to Mr. Jeffers and Hon. T. D. Pattullo, member for this district, and replies are expected today.

Complete Court House by August 1 Says Contractor; Ready for Occupation Then

The new provincial government court house for this city being built on the Market Square will be completed and ready for occupation by August 1, weather permitting, stated E. C. McDougall, head of the contracting firm of McDougall and McNeill, who with Albert McGaffery, of this city, are erecting the building, yesterday afternoon. Mr. McDougall with Hugh Whitaker, government architect, have been here for a few days inspecting the work and are very satisfied with the splendid progress that has been made and the finished shape the building is now taking.

Mr. McDougall reports that plastering will be in full swing this week with 25 men on this work. It was started this week.

The stone and brick and tile work, including the cornices, is practically completed, all that remains now being to clean down the walls. All the interior hollow tile partitions are finished. The marble and terrazo work will be commenced in about a fortnight and the windows are nearly ready for the putting in of the glass.

Since the cornices have been put on the handsome appearance of the building has been accentuated and one can now have an idea of what a fine, substantial structure it is going to be. Mr. Whitaker, the architect, says that when building operations are done and the unused material and temporary store and office structures are removed, a start will be made on the putting in of the gardens and the platting off the grounds. Before the end of this season, the entire place will have a finished appearance.

Mr. McDougall is returning tonight on the Princess Louise to Vancouver. He intimates that his firm, McDougall and McNeill, have now made a good start on the contract for the building of the new mental hospital at Essondale. Already a large number of men are employed there. It will cost in the neighborhood of $750,000 and will take two years to complete. Mr. Whitaker, architect, left on last night's train for Smithers
